Supreme Court Coal Hearing Is Set For Today

Contempt Conviction Is Assailed By CIO

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—The CIO forgot its enmity with John L. Lewis today to battle by his side in the Supreme Court against what it termed "the evils of government by injunction."

It filed a brief as "friend of the court" assailing the contempt conviction and $3,510,000 fines against the United Mine Workers and Lewis. The contempt was based on disregard of a lower court's restraining order at the time of the soft coal strike. The CIO claimed the order would have compelled Lewis "to violate his oath of office."

"It tells him to act as a strike-breaker," the brief said, "to do that which he may deem fatal to the best interests of the organization which he is charged with leading and protecting. If any type of compulsion is more obnoxious to all that is held dear in a democratic society, we do not know what it is."

Court To Hear Arguments

The court will hear arguments tomorrow from counsel for Lewis and the government over the legality of the restraining order, issued by Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough, and the temporary injunction which followed it and is now in force. The government contends, however, that the contempt convictions and fines can stand even if the original restraining order was illegal.

The CIO, with which Lewis broke after the re-election of President Roosevelt whom he opposed in 1940, will not appear in the arguments. Its brief was prepared by Lee Pressman, CIO general counsel, and his assistants to present its views that the Norris-LaGuardia Anti-Injunction Act bars injunctions against unions sought by the government as well as by private employers.

"It is our view," the brief said, "that government activity in connection with labor disputes prior to the Clayton Act and the Norris-LaGuardia Act was of such a character as to make inescapable the conclusion that these acts were intended to apply to the government and that the abuse of equity jurisdiction which gave rise to these statutes was an abuse which the attorneys-general, the executive, had sponsored and popularized. The phrases 'government by injunction' and 'federal intervention in labor disputes' did not confine their objection merely to the role of the federal judiciary but included as well the role of the executive. The participation of the executive in the abuse which the Clayton and Norris-LaGuardia Acts sought to cure has a long genealogy of substance.

Use Of Injunction Traced

"Injunctions at the instance of government itself were used in labor matters from the beginning of the period when this weapon became prominent."

The brief traced examples of the use of the injunction by federal legal officers in labor disputes, including the Pullman strike of 1894 which resulted in the injunction against Eugene V. Debs.

The CIO lawyers contended that the entire record in the Lewis case "is pervaded with what can only be called a callous disregard of the procedural and constitutional rights of the defendants below."

"Proceedings of the type here under review have historically raised grave constitutional questions," the brief continued. "The court below seemed content to gloss over the problems presented by the Constitution on the bases of its own personal assurance that whatever unconstitutional implications were present in the order were being misconstrued since the court had no intention of giving the injunction an undue scope."

Bodies Of Plane Crash Victims Are Identified

GALAX, Va., Jan. 13 (AP)—Bodies of all 18 persons killed in an Eastern Air Lines passenger plane crash had been identified tonight as the Civil Aeronautics Board and EAL probed the plane's wreckage to determine the cause of the accident.

The names of the victims were released earlier by the airlines company. Four of the bodies were sent today to their homes for burial.

New Attempt To Provide Jury Service For Women Inaugurated In Assembly

"Drone" And Its "Mother" Fortress Land At Washington

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP) — A radio-controlled B-17 "drone" and its "mother" Fortress landed at nearby Bolling Field at 5:05 p. m. (EST) today after bad weather blocked a scheduled non-stop flight from Florida to the Capital and back.

The "drone" was guided to within two miles of the field by the "mother" ship, and Lt. C. H. Shambeck, Wilson, Tex., who was aboard as a "safety" pilot, landed the craft. The "mother" ship followed it in immediately.

State Senate, House Hold Night Sessions

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 13 (AP) — A new attempt to provide jury service for women in Maryland was inaugurated tonight in the House of Delegates with introduction of a bill by Delegate Argabright (D-Balto 5th).

With the Senate and House meeting briefly in their first night session of the 1947 General Assembly, only two bills were introduced—both in the House—while major interest still revolved around the dispute among members of the Baltimore City delegation over selection of a chairman.

Women's Clubs Back Bill

Argabright's bill, which would provide optional jury service for women, has the backing of numerous women's clubs in Maryland.

Similar bills have been introduced regularly at recent sessions of the Legislature, but all have met defeat. Two years ago, the women's jury bill got safely past the House, only to meet defeat by a close margin in the Senate.

Argabright also introduced the other new House bill, which would provide the official order in which candidates would be voted upon and listed on Baltimore City voting machines.

Meanwhile, the Senate met for only about 25 minutes, and adjourned until 2 p. m. tomorrow. The House was in session 20 minutes and adjourned until 1 p. m. tomorrow.

The Baltimore City delegation wrangle seemed just as far from settlement as ever, and the House was an hour late before being called to order as various factions met with Speaker Sybert (D-Howard) and other legislative leaders.

There was no flareup comparable to last Friday when various Baltimore delegates took the floor and argued over organization of the city group of 36 members.

Baltimore Borrowing Program

A $62,000,000 borrowing program for improvements for the City of Baltimore was handed formally to the city's Democratic delegation in the House of Delegates.

Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin and City Solicitor Simon E. Sobeloff were among the speakers at a city delegation dinner at which the legislative program drafted by the Baltimore Board of Estimates was explained.

The proposals, most of them worked out in the last two years, cover items from $10,000,000 for a redevelopment program to $20,000,000 for a school improvement project.

Meanwhile, the State Revenue and Estimate Board held a lengthy session at the State House, continuing well into the evening. The board met in the office of Secretary of State John B. Funk, and reports were that among the subjects at hand were new revenue sources and methods of tightening up income tax collections.

London Strike Talks Scheduled To Open Today

Walkouts Threaten Distribution Of Food

LONDON, Jan. 13 (AP)—Britain's Labor government and employer and union representatives hurriedly set up new negotiating machinery tonight in an effort to end a mushrooming series of strikes threatening vital food distribution.

In a series of night meetings called by the Ministry of Labor both employes and union representatives agreed to confer early tomorrow to draft a charter for immediate reconsideration of workers' demands.

Troops Replace Truck Drivers

This development came as the government's use of troops to replace 21,000 striking truck drivers brought an angry reaction from labor unions members throughout the country. There was some fear that sympathy walkouts in London and other British cities would grow to general strike proportions.

The labor dispute began a week ago when the truck drivers walked out. They demanded a 44-hour week, overtime pay after eight hours daily and other concessions. Their present pay is approximately $20 a week.

In an effort to break a meat famine resulting from this tieup, the government sent in troops today to get the trucks rolling.

Within a few minutes seven thousand workers in London's wholesale food markets—porters, shopmen and laborers—walked out in sympathy with the truck drivers and other sympathy strikes began in London and other parts of Britain.

No Hint Of Any Proposals

Employers were summoned for the first talks with R. M. Gould, chief industrial commissioner of the Labor Ministry. Union representatives were on hand at the ministry for the second phase of the consultations.

After the talks had been in progress for two hours there still was no hint of what proposals the government was making to halt the strikes. Labor Minister George Isaacs jointed in the talks.

The troops moved in, on orders of the government, to handle vital food distribution.

W. Va. Legislature Will Get Budget Measure

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 13 (AP) — A budget measure proposing record expenditures from the state's general revenue and other funds will be presented to the reconvening West Virginia Legislature tomorrow to become bill No. 1 in both the Senate and House.

The formal presentation will be made in both houses by Secretary of State William S. O'Brien, ex-officio secretary of the Board of Public Works, and will be accompanie dby a budget message from Gov. Clarence Meadows who indicated he would not appear in person to present it.

Details of the measure were not disclosed pending its submission to the legislature.

Young Democratic Senators Organize

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—Senate Democratic leaders moved today to form a compact group of legislators to battle for President Truman's program and to sharpshoot, at the drop of a hat, any Republican proposal they deem unwise.

Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) told a reporter he plans to announce shortly the appointment of a seven-member policy committee authorized under the Congressional Reorganization Act. He declined to divulge the membership.

But there were reports that some of the veteran Democrats who have taken a leading part in past party councils will be passed up for young men. The aim is to put more vigor in the new minority's counterattack against the GOP.

With this in mind Barkley was said to have under consideration the appointments of Sen. Tydings, of Maryland; Russell, of Georgia; Hatch, of New Mexico; Hill, of Alabama; O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, and Green, of Rhode Island, as other members of the group.

Ten Jews Arrested In Haifa Explosion

JERUSALEM, Jan. 13. (AP)—Ten Jews were seized for questioning today as British troops combed the alleyways of Haifa for three men who blew up the Haifa police station last night, causing four deaths and injuries to approximately 150.

The search was terminated this afternoon after 872 persons had been screened. A communique said that residents of the half-Arab, half-Jewish port city were "generally co-operative" during the search.

Arab officials, meanwhile, demanded that Britain take stern measures to wipe out violence in the Holy Land, and said that the present British attitude encouraged terrorism.

French Reinforcements

PARIS, Jan. 13. (AP)—The liner Ile De France steamed toward Indo-China today with 8,000 French reinforcements aboard as a general staff communique indicated that French troops scored some successes against the Viet-Namese resistance during the day.

SLAIN PATROLMAN—Fred P. Unger, 38, (above right) Baltimore patrolman, was shot and killed yesterday by an alleged holdup man who, in turn, was shot to death in a gun battle with the crew of a police radio car. At left are Mrs. Fred Unger and their daughter, Carole Lynn.

Baltimore Cop, Holdup Suspect Slain In Battle

Gunman Was Spotted On Deserted Street

BALTIMORE, Jan. 13 (AP)—Fred R. Unger, 38-year-old plainclothes policeman who only last week was commended for meritorious service, and a holdup suspect tentatively identified by police as Milfred M. Davis, 25-year-old ship's officer, lay dead today as the result of a gun battle.

The patrolman's attractive, brown-haired widow, informed of his death at their unpretentious home, said she "still can't quite realize" the father of her two girls is dead with a gunman's bullet through his eye.

Central police headquarters said the body of Unger's assailant was identified. A blackjack, a pistol and $1,804 in cash were found in his pockets, police said.

Patrolman George Pfaff, Unger's radio-car partner, said the two officers spotted the man running down a deserted street shortly after they received a radio alarm for the taxi-bandit.

"Unger rolled down the window and asked the man, 'What are you running for?'" Pfaff recounted. "He didn't answer—just stared at us. Then he whipped out a gun and started to fire at us.

"The bullets were whizzing very close to my face, and I opened the car door and rolled out into the street. As I rolled I drew my revolver. The assailant ran around in front of the car. x x x I fired several times."

Pfaff said the man stumbled but continued to flee. The officer, noticing his partner was absent from the chase, radioed for help. An ambulance, 20 police cars and 25 foot patrolmen responded.

Police cornered the fugitive in a yard, where he fired one shot before falling under their volley. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Maryland General Hospital.

Commerce Department Group Urges Tax Slash

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13. (AP)—The Commerce Department's 18-man Small Business Advisory Committee called today for a 20 per cent income tax cut, despite President Truman's opposition, and for laws treating management and unions alike.

The recommendations were made public without comment by Secretary of Commerce Harriman. The committee was established by his predecessor, Henry A. Wallace.

Portal Pay Claim Proves To Be In Error For $3,996,000,000

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 13 (AP) —David Diamond, Buffalo attorney who today filed a $4,000,000,000 portal-to-portal pay suit on behalf of employes of Bell Aircraft Corporation's Marietta, Ga., plant, said tonight the suit was in error—for $3,996,000,000.

"It should have been four million, not four billion," Diamond said.

Asked how he believed the error occurred, Diamond said: "It was probably a stenographic error. These things (portal suits) are being gotten out in a hurry nowadays. The way astronomical figures are being bandied about I've sort of expected something like this to happen."

Curley Conviction Upheld By Court

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP) — James M. Curley, colorful Boston politician, and two associates today lost an appeal from mail fraud convictions growing out of war contract deals. The United States Court of Appeals ruled against them in a 2 to 1 decision.

Curley's attorneys immediately declared they will ask for a rehearing, automatically staying the sentence of six to 18 months in jail and $1,000 fine. Curley, former congressman, governor, and several times mayor of Boston, said at his home an appeal will be taken to the Supreme Court if necessary.

Justices Henry W. Edgerton and E. Barrett Prettyman said they found no doubt of Curley's guilt but that even if they saw any doubt they would not be justified in overturning the jury's verdict. They upheld the lower court's refusal to direct an acquittal, which was the principal point attacked in the appeal.

Justice Wilbur K. Miller dissented. He wrote that the jury's verdict as to Curley "is not supported by the degree of proof which I deem essential to a finding of guilty knowledge and criminal intent."

Curley, 72-year-old veteran of more than half a century in politics, was sentenced in federal court here last February 18 after lengthy trial for his alleged activities as president of Engineers Group, Inc. The government argued that the concern realized about $60,000 by falsely representing that it could get war contracts for clients.

Atom Showdown To Find Britain Supporting U. S.

Would Place Control Ahead Of Disarmament

NEW YORK, Jan. 13 (AP) — Authoritative sources said today that Great Britain will support the United States in insisting that atomic energy control be given priority over general disarmament if there is a showdown with Russia in the United Nations Security Council.

Russia is insisting that "all phases" of world disarmament be taken up immediately by the 11-nation security body. She is opposed to giving priority to atomic energy control.

The United States argues that atomic energy control should be given top consideration on the grounds that if there is an international system of protection from atomic weapons, the problem of lesser weapons should not prove insurmountable.

Council Meets Wednesday

Delegates believed the basic argument between Russia and the United States over priority for atomic energy control or general disarmament may be resolved when the Security Council meets Wednesday at 11 a. m. (EST).

Meanwhile, council members examined a voluminous file submitted by Great Britain in her dispute with Albania over the Corfu channel blasts which killed 44 British sailors. The case is not expected to be taken up by the council before Friday.

Official British sources explained they did not want to disrupt the disarmament discussions to hear the case but believed it could be handled concurrently without any confusion.

Reds Oppose Atom Priority

One high British source said Britain would support the United States in demanding that atomic energy control be given top priority if there should be a showdown on the issue with Russia.

He added, however, that the British delegation felt that the disarmament program could be acted upon simultaneously with the atomic energy control question.

Under the Russian proposal, atomic energy would be included but without any special priority such as the Americans deem necessary.

Mount Mayon Volcano Erupts With Roar

MANILA, Jan. 13 (AP) — Mount Mayon volcano in Southern Luzon swelled and burst with an earth-shaking roar today, sending fiery lava and house-sized boulders two miles above its top.

The eruption occurred at 10:16 a. m. (9:16 p. m., Sunday Eastern Standard Time).

Mayon had no crater, and the fissures through which lava and smoke had poured from its cone since Wednesday proved insufficient to relieve the tremendous pressure inside.

A plane piloted by Capt. Robert A. Harris, Dayton, Ohio, of the United States Army Fifth Weather Observation Squadron, was circling the mountain at a distance of two miles at the instant of eruption.

Apartment Fire Tragedy

YONKERS, N. Y., Jan. 13. (AP)—Trapped in a smoke-filled fourth floor apartment, a panic-stricken mother disregarded the pleas of firemen today and as horrified spectators looked on hurled her two babies to their deaths then followed them in a fatal plunge to the ground 50 feet below. David Norris, 2, and his three-month-old sister, Charlotte, died almost instantly. The mother, 24-year-old Mrs. Charles Norris, died an hour later.

Negro Must Make Second Trip To Chair

Young Killer's Appeal To High Court Fails

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP) — Willie Francis, condemned negro holdup slayer, was strapped into the electric chair, the switch thrown, and nothing happened—but the Supreme Court ruled by a bare majority of one today that that is no reason to let him off.

"I guess a man's got to die some time and I reckon my time has plumb done come," said 17-year-old Willie in his cell at New Iberia, La., when told his appeal had failed. His lawyers still may ask a rehearing.

The court's 5 to 4 decision was reached with the reluctant vote of Justice Frankfurter. In a separate opinion, he recorded "personal revulsion" againt a second electrocution attempt and against what he called the state's "insistence on its pound of flesh." But he held the letter of the law does not permit interference by the court for any personal objections.

Burton Speaks For Dissenters

Justice Reed announced the majority finding which rejected the contention of Francis' counsel that the second execution attempt would constitute "cruel and unusual punishment" in violation of the Constitution. He was joined by Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Black and Jackson.

Justice Burton spoke for the dissenters. They held that the case should go back for a retrial with the question of how, much, if any, electricity was applied to Francis last May 3 as one of the issues.

The case was decided in a busy day of opinions and hearings as the court cleared its decks for arguments tomorrow in the appeal of John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers from the injunction against a coal strike last November 21 and the subsequent $3,510,000 fines for contempt. In other major decisions the court:

Other Major Decisions

1. Narrowed the field of information which counsel for one side in a lawsuit may require the opposing lawyer to disclose. It ruled that unless there are unusual circumstances, what a lawyer learns from witnesses is private.

2. Strictly applied a two-year limitation rule on the time within which a bank receiver, suing stockholders on assessments, may sue their executors when the stockholders themselves have died.

3. Broke a stalemate which had held up action by the National Railroad Adjustment Board on labor disputes involving yardmasters by ruling that the fourth division of the board, rather than the first division, has jurisdiction.

AFL Union Raps Portal Pay Suits

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—The AFL Metal Trades Department assailed portal-to-portal pay suits as a breach of faith on the part of unions today as bills to outlaw the claims, mostly filed by CIO unions, got attention in both branches of Congress.

Sen. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) ruled that all portal pay bills will be assigned to the Judiciary Committee, headed by Sen. Wiley (R-Wis.), rather than to the Labor Committee headed by Sen. Taft (R-Ohio). A Judiciary subcommittee already has set hearings for Wednesday.

Rep. Hoffman (R-Mich.) called for action in the House. He said the Supreme Court evidently "thinks Congress is incompetent to legislate or lacks the inclination to legislate or doesn't know what it's all about."

Head Of Greek Rightist Organization Is Slain

ATHENS, Jan. 13. (AP)—The head of the Xites, rightist organization, in Kokkinia, suburb of the Piraeus, was shot to death today by two persons described by police as Communists.

In an exchange of shots with the victim's bodyguards, both assailants were hit. One was seriously wounded and was arrested; the other escaped.

Police said the man arrested had previously been released from jail under the amnesty law passed by the government of former Premier Themistokles Sophoulis.

Inquiry Urged As Air Travel Shows Decline

Rivers Says People "Scared To Death"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board will be called before the Senate Commerce Committee tomorrow as part of a congressional study of the airplane accident situation.

This was announced tonight by Sen. Brewster (R-Me), as cries resounded on Capitol Hill that recent plane crashes are making Americans "afraid to fly."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP) — Cries that recent airplane crashes are making the American people "afraid to fly" and demands for investigation were voiced on Congress today on the eve of a Senate committee's scheduled broad examination of commercial avaition.

Although this inquiry by the Senate Commerce Committee will embrace the question of safety precautions, House members urged a separate investigation by that branch of Congress.

"The American people are horrified and scared to death," Rep. Rivers (D-SC) told the House. "If there is something wrong with the whole doggone setup, then something should be done."

He called attention to the crash of an Eastern Airlines plane near Galax, Va., yesterday with the loss of 18 lives and to the emergency landing last week of an airliner on a Long Island, N. Y., beach.

Joining Rivers, Rep. Hinshaw (R-Calif.) asserted there should be a "complete and thorough inquiry in hope of finding a remedy."

Sen. McCarran (D-Nev.), addresser of the Senate Commerce Committee, said "people are getting afraid to fly."

"The situation is destroying popular confidence," he told reporters. "There won't be anybody flying if it keeps on."

Sen. McCarran (D-Nev.), addressing the Senate, raised the question whether alarums are not out of order.

Air Travel Falls Off

He said that domestic and international operations of United States airlines have shown steady declines in passenger fatalities.

Airline men, taking the same view, acknowledged, however, that air travel has fallen off, though none was prepared to say whether airplane crashes were a factor in the decline. They said there is customarily a season lull at this time in air travel.

They say, too, that the demands for congressional investigation come at a time when the industry is making its greatest effort to improve dependability of air travel.

The Galax accident was the first fatality on a scheduled airline this year. Last year the airlines marked up their best record since 1939, with a passenger fatality rate of 1.24 for every 100,000,000 passenger miles. The 1939 rate was 1.19 and the 1945 rate was 2.14.

Here is a quick picture of what is happening now in the safety field:

1. The Army Air Forces, Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, Civil Aeronautics Administration (CAA) and the airlines have been co-operating in a series of studies of "blind" flying aids or radio aids to navigation, and experiments are being carried on by all of them and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics concerning other problems, such as icing, fire control and avoiding storms in flight.

Landing Aid Experiments

2. Some operating experiments with landing aids now are being arranged at major air centers — New York, Washington, Chicago, Pittsburgh, and Gander, N. F.— using ground controlled approach (CCA) and radar search equipment. Actual operation of the equipment should begin this month.

3. The Air Transport Association has established the airborne instruments laboratory at Mineola, N. Y., to study and develop radio equipment for flying safety aids.

4. American Airlines has ordered search radar built into large transports which will be delivered late this year—the first such step by any airline. Such equipment would be used to avoid collision and storms and to aid navigation.

5. United Air Lines is equipping

President Releases Army Surgeon To Operate On Girl With Hiccoughs

NEW YORK, Jan. 13. (AP)—"It's wonderful—I have faith in him," Anna Mayer, 23-year-old singer, said today when told that a government surgeon had been released temporarily by President Truman at her request to perform an operation in an effort to end the hiccoughing that has afflicted her continuously for almost two months.

Dr. Lester Samuels, surgeon at the veterans hospital at Alexandria, La., left there by plane today and is due at Newark, N. J., airport at 7 a. m. (AES) tomorrow. He operated on the girl three years ago to stop a similar siege.

The blond singer, thin and pale, attempted a smile today at her home in South Ozone park, Queens, as she heard the news.

She believes Dr. Samuels is the only doctor who can help her. He was released from Army service to perform the first operation after Miss Mayer had appealed to the late President Roosevelt.

Miss Mayer's brother, William, said today "her whole body shakes. She has terrible pains in her back and chest. Nobody gets any sleep in our house."

The victim, cheerful throughout her ordeal, joked today with her father and brother and with a priest who visits her daily.

"I'm getting along as well as you'd expect," she told friends, and then laughed.

Argentine Minister Calls Byrnes Speech "Unjust"

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 13. (AP)—Argentine Foreign Minister Juan Bramuglia attacked James F. Byrnes by name tonight declaring that the speech by the retiring United States Secretary of State in Cleveland last Saturday was "unjust and intolerant."

In a written statement Bramuglia emphasized that he was referring to Byrnes as a "citizen of the United States" and not as Secretary of State. He described Byrnes' speech as a "personal reaction."

(At Cleveland, Byrnes said the United States was "eager to proceed" with the negotiation of a mutual assistance treaty for American nations at a projected conference in Rio de Janeiro but did not wish to do so without Argentina. He added that the State Department was of the opinion that Argentina had not yet complied with the commitments "which she as well as the other American republics" agreed to at the Chaptultepec conference.

(Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich), who shared the platform at Cleveland with Byrnes, said he thought a conference of American nations should be held now.)

Bramuglia said that Argentina had fulfilled all her commitments regarding the elimination of Nazi influences "in a most advisable manner" and cited United States Ambassador George Messersmith, now in Washington, as a witness to this fulfillment. He highly praised both Messersmith and Vandenberg.

20-Year-Old "Baby Sitter" Liked Job So Well He Married The "Baby"

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Jan. 13 (AP)—The tale of a 20-year-old "baby sitter" who liked his job so well he married the "baby" came to light today as the result of a complaint filed by the 13-year-old bride charging desertion.

James Schuffert, a former Indianola coal miner, was hired by Mrs. Elsie Loman to "sit" with her daughter, Deloris, while the mother was working nights as a charwoman.

A few weeks later Schuffert asked and received written permission from Mrs. Loman to marry the petite, blue-eyed blonde bobby-soxer. They were married in May and all went well until Schuffert decided six weeks ago he wanted his bride to live with him in Springdale.

Mrs. Loman objected, saying her daughter was "too young to leave home." Schuffert left away and the bride filed a complaint charging desertion.

The squire told Mrs. Loman, "You didn't think your daughter was too young to get married. Why do you object to her leaving your home to live with her legal husband?"

That was Saturday. The couple have now reconciled and are living with Schuffert's parents in Springdale until their own house is ready.

The youthful Mrs. Schuffert said she was in the eighth grade when she quit school last November to "devote more time to being a housewife."

Supreme Court Coal Hearing Is Set For Today

Contempt Conviction Is Assailed By CIO

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—The CIO forgot its enmity with John L. Lewis today to battle by his side in the Supreme Court against what it termed "the evils of government by injunction."

It filed a brief as "friend of the court" assailing the contempt conviction and $3,510,000 fines against the United Mine Workers and Lewis. The contempt was based on disregard of a lower court's restraining order at the time of the soft coal strike. The CIO claimed the order would have compelled Lewis "to violate his oath of office."

"It tells him to act as a strike-breaker," the brief said, "to do that which he may deem fatal to the best interests of the organization which he is charged with leading and protecting. If any type of compulsion is more obnoxious to all that is held dear in a democratic society, we do not know what it is."

Court To Hear Arguments

The court will hear arguments tomorrow from counsel for Lewis and the government over the legality of the restraining order, issued by Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough, and the temporary injunction which followed it and is now in force. The government contends, however, that the contempt convictions and fines can stand even if the original restraining order was illegal.

The CIO, with which Lewis broke after the re-election of President Roosevelt whom he opposed in 1940, will not appear in the arguments. Its brief was prepared by Lee Pressman, CIO general counsel, and his assistants to present its views that the Norris-LaGuardia Anti-Injunction Act bars injunctions against unions sought by the government as well as by private employers.

"It is our view," the brief said, "that government activity in connection with labor disputes prior to the Clayton Act and the Norris-LaGuardia Act was of such a character as to make inescapable the conclusion that these acts were intended to apply to the government and that the abuse of equity jurisdiction which gave rise to these statutes was an abuse which the attorneys-general, the executive, had sponsored and popularized. The phrases 'government by injunction' and 'federal intervention in labor disputes' did not confine their objection merely to the role of the federal judiciary but included as well the role of the executive. The participation of the executive in the abuse which the Clayton and Norris-LaGuardia Acts sought to cure has a long genealogy of substance.

Use Of Injunction Traced

"Injunctions at the instance of government itself were used in labor matters from the beginning of the period when this weapon became prominent."

The brief traced examples of the use of the injunction by federal legal officers in labor disputes, including the Pullman strike of 1894 which resulted in the injunction against Eugene V. Debs.

The CIO lawyers contended that the entire record in the Lewis case "is pervaded with what can only be called a callous disregard of the procedural and constitutional rights of the defendants below."

"Proceedings of the type here under review have historically raised grave constitutional questions," the brief continued. "The court below seemed content to gloss over the problems presented by the Constitution on the bases of its own personal assurance that whatever unconstitutional implications were present in the order were being misconstrued since the court had no intention of giving the injunction an undue scope."

Bodies Of Plane Crash Victims Are Identified

GALAX, Va., Jan. 13 (AP)—Bodies of all 18 persons killed in an Eastern Air Lines passenger plane crash had been identified tonight as the Civil Aeronautics Board and EAL probed the plane's wreckage to determine the cause of the accident.

The names of the victims were released earlier by the airlines company. Four of the bodies were sent today to their homes for burial.

New Attempt To Provide Jury Service For Women Inaugurated In Assembly

"Drone" And Its "Mother" Fortress Land At Washington

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP) — A radio-controlled B-17 "drone" and its "mother" Fortress landed at nearby Bolling Field at 5:05 p. m. (EST) today after bad weather blocked a scheduled nonstop flight from Florida to the Capital and back.

The "drone" was guided to within two miles of the field by the "mother" ship, and Lt. C. H. Shambeck, Wilson, Tex., who was aboard as a "safety" pilot, landed the craft. The "mother" ship followed it in immediately.

State Senate, House Hold Night Sessions

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 13 (AP) — A new attempt to provide jury service for women in Maryland was inaugurated tonight in the House of Delegates with introduction of a bill by Delegate Argabright (D-Balto 5th).

With the Senate and House meeting briefly in their first night session of the 1947 General Assembly, only two bills were introduced—both in the House—while major interest still revolved around the dispute among members of the Baltimore City delegation over selection of a chairman.

Women's Clubs Back Bill

Argabright's bill, which would provide optional jury service for women, has the backing of numerous women's clubs in Maryland.

Similar bills have been introduced regularly at recent sessions of the Legislature, but all have met defeat. Two years ago, the women's jury bill got safely past the House, only to meet defeat by a close margin in the Senate.

Argabright also introduced the other new House bill, which would provide the official order in which candidates would be voted upon and listed on Baltimore City voting machines.

Meanwhile, the Senate met for only about 25 minutes, and adjourned until 2 p. m. tomorrow. The House was in session 20 minutes and adjourned until 1 p. m. tomorrow.

The Baltimore City delegation wrangle seemed just as far from settlement as ever, and the House was an hour late before being called to order as various factions met with Speaker Sybert (D-Howard) and other legislative leaders.

There was no flareup comparable to last Friday when various Baltimore delegates took the floor and argued over organization of the city group of 36 members.

Baltimore Borrowing Program

A $62,000,000 borrowing program for improvements for the City of Baltimore was handed formally to the city's Democratic delegation in the House of Delegates.

Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin and City Solicitor Simon E. Sobeloff were among the speakers at a city delegation dinner at which the legislative program drafted by the Baltimore Board of Estimates was explained.

The proposals, most of them worked out in the last two years, cover items from $10,000,000 for a redevelopment program to $20,000,000 for a school improvement project.

Meanwhile, the State Revenue and Estimate Board held a lengthy session at the State House, continuing well into the evening. The board met in the office of Secretary of State John B. Funk, and reports were that among the subjects at hand were new revenue sources and methods of tightening up income tax collections.

London Strike Talks Scheduled To Open Today

Walkouts Threaten Distribution Of Food

LONDON, Jan. 13 (AP)—Britain's Labor government and employer and union representatives hurriedly set up new negotiating machinery tonight in an effort to end a mushrooming series of strikes threatening vital food distribution.

In a series of night meetings called by the Ministry of Labor both employes and union representatives agreed to confer early tomorrow to draft a charter for immediate reconsideration of workers' demands.

Troops Replace Truck Drivers

This development came as the government's use of troops to replace 21,000 striking truck drivers brought an angry reaction from labor unions members throughout the country. There was some fear that sympathy walkouts in London and other British cities would grow to general strike proportions.

The labor dispute began a week ago when the truck drivers walked out. They demanded a 44-hour week, overtime pay after eight hours daily and other concessions. Their present pay is approximately $20 a week.

In an effort to break a meat famine resulting from this tieup, the government sent in troops today to get the trucks rolling.

Within a few minutes seven thousand workers in London's wholesale food markets—porters, shopmen and laborers—walked out in sympathy with the truck drivers and other sympathy strikes began in London and other parts of Britain.

No Hint Of Any Proposals

Employers were summoned for the first talks with R. M. Gould, chief industrial commissioner of the Labor Ministry. Union representatives were on hand at the ministry for the second phase of the consultations.

After the talks had been in progress for two hours there still was no hint of what proposals the government was making to halt the strikes. Labor Minister George Isaacs jointed in the talks.

The troops moved in, on orders of the government, to handle vital food distribution.

W. Va. Legislature Will Get Budget Measure

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 13 (AP) — A budget measure proposing record expenditures from the state's general revenue and other funds will be presented to the reconvening West Virginia Legislature tomorrow to become bill No. 1 in both the Senate and House.

The formal presentation will be made in both houses by Secretary of State William S. O'Brien, ex-officio secretary of the Board of Public Works, and will be accompanie dby a budget message from Gov. Clarence Meadows who indicated he would not appear in person to present it.

Details of the measure were not disclosed pending its submission to the legislature.

Young Democratic Senators Organize

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—Senate Democratic leaders moved today to form a compact group of legislators to battle for President Truman's program and to sharpshoot, at the drop of a hat, any Republican proposal they deem unwise.

Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) told a reporter he plans to announce shortly the appointment of a seven-member policy committee authorized under the Congressional Reorganization Act. He declined to divulge the membership.

But there were reports that some of the veteran Democrats who have taken a leading part in past party councils will be passed up for young men. The aim is to put more vigor in the new minority's counterattack against the GOP.

With this in mind Barkley was said to have under consideration the appointments of Sen. Tydings, of Maryland; Russell, of Georgia; Hatch, of New Mexico; Hill, of Alabama; O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, and Green, of Rhode Island, as other members of the group.

Ten Jews Arrested In Haifa Explosion

JERUSALEM, Jan. 13. (AP)—Ten Jews were seized for questioning today as British troops combed the alleyways of Haifa for three men who blew up the Haifa police station last night, causing four deaths and injuries to approximately 150.

The search was terminated this afternoon after 872 persons had been screened. A communique said that residents of the half-Arab, half-Jewish port city were "generally co-operative" during the search.

Arab officials, meanwhile, demanded that Britain take stern measures to wipe out violence in the Holy Land, and said that the present British attitude encouraged terrorism.

French Reinforcements

PARIS, Jan. 13. (AP)—The liner Ile De France steamed toward Indo-China today with 8,000 French reinforcements aboard as a general staff communique indicated that French troops scored some successes against the Viet-Namese resistance during the day.

Baltimore Cop, Holdup Suspect Slain In Battle

Gunman Was Spotted On Deserted Street

BALTIMORE, Jan. 13 (AP)—Fred R. Unger, 38-year-old plainclothes policeman who only last week was commended for meritorious service, and a holdup suspect tentatively identified by police as Milfred M. Davis, 25-year-old ship's officer, lay dead today as the result of a gun battle.

The patrolman's attractive, brown-haired widow, informed of his death at their unpretentious home, said she "still can't quite realize" the father of her two girls is dead with a gunman's bullet through his eye.

Central police headquarters said the body of Unger's assailant was identified. A blackjack, a pistol and $1,804 in cash were found in his pockets, police said.

Patrolman George Pfaff, Unger's radio-car partner, said the two officers spotted the man running down a deserted street shortly after they received a radio alarm for the taxi-bandit.

"Unger rolled down the window and asked the man, 'What are you running for?'" Pfaff recounted. "He didn't answer—just stared at us. Then he whipped out a gun and started to fire at us.

"The bullets were whizzing very close to my face, and I opened the car door and rolled out into the street. As I rolled I drew my revolver. The assailant ran around in front of the car. x x x I fired several times."

Pfaff said the man stumbled but continued to flee. The officer, noticing his partner was absent from the chase, radioed for help. An ambulance, 20 police cars and 25 foot patrolmen responded.

Police cornered the fugitive in a yard, where he fired one shot before falling under their volley. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Maryland General Hospital.

Commerce Department Group Urges Tax Slash

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13. (AP)—The Commerce Department's 18-man Small Business Advisory Committee called today for a 20 per cent income tax cut, despite President Truman's opposition, and for laws treating management and unions alike.

The recommendations were made public without comment by Secretary of Commerce Harriman. The committee was established by his predecessor, Henry A. Wallace.

Portal Pay Claim Proves To Be In Error For $3,996,000,000

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 13 (AP) —David Diamond, Buffalo attorney who today filed a $4,000,000,000 portal-to-portal pay suit on behalf of employes of Bell Aircraft Corporation's Marietta, Ga., plant, said tonight the suit was in error—for $3,996,000,000.

"It should have been four million, not four billion," Diamond said.

Asked how he believed the error occurred, Diamond said: "It was probably a stenographic error. These things (portal suits) are being gotten out in a hurry nowadays. The way astronomical figures are being bandied about I've sort of expected something like this to happen."

Curley Conviction Upheld By Court

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP) — James M. Curley, colorful Boston politician, and two associates today lost an appeal from mail fraud convictions growing out of war contract deals. The United States Court of Appeals ruled against them in a 2 to 1 decision.

Curley's attorneys immediately declared they will ask for a rehearing, automatically staying the sentence of six to 18 months in jail and $1,000 fine. Curley, former congressman, governor, and several times mayor of Boston, said at his home an appeal will be taken to the Supreme Court if necessary.

Justices Henry W. Edgerton and E. Barrett Prettyman said they found no doubt of Curley's guilt but that even if they saw any doubt they would not be justified in overturning the jury's verdict. They upheld the lower court's refusal to direct an acquittal, which was the principal point attacked in the appeal.

Justice Wilbur K. Miller dissented. He wrote that the jury's verdict as to Curley "is not supported by the degree of proof which I deem essential to a finding of guilty knowledge and criminal intent."

Curley, 72-year-old veteran of more than half a century in politics, was sentenced in federal court here last February 18 after lengthy trial for his alleged activities as president of Engineers Group, Inc. The government argued that the concern realized about $60,000 by falsely representing that it could get war contracts for clients.

Atom Showdown To Find Britain Supporting U. S.

Would Place Control Ahead Of Disarmament

NEW YORK, Jan. 13 (AP) — Authoritative sources said today that Great Britain will support the United States in insisting that atomic energy control be given priority over general disarmament if there is a showdown with Russia in the United Nations Security Council.

Russia is insisting that "all phases" of world disarmament be taken up immediately by the 11-nation security body. She is opposed to giving priority to atomic energy control.

The United States argues that atomic energy control should be given top consideration on the grounds that if there is an international system of protection from atomic weapons, the problem of lesser weapons should not prove insurmountable.

Council Meets Wednesday

Delegates believed the basic argument between Russia and the United States over priority for atomic energy control or general disarmament may be resolved when the Security Council meets Wednesday at 11 a. m. (EST).

Meanwhile, council members examined a voluminous file submitted by Great Britain in her dispute with Albania over the Corfu channel blasts which killed 44 British sailors. The case is not expected to be taken up by the council before Friday.

Official British sources explained they did not want to disrupt the disarmament discussions to hear the case but believed it could be handled concurrently without any confusion.

Reds Oppose Atom Priority

One high British source said Britain would support the United States in demanding that atomic energy control be given top priority if there should be a showdown on the issue with Russia.

He added, however, that the British delegation felt that the disarmament program could be acted upon simultaneously with the atomic energy control question.

Under the Russian proposal, atomic energy would be included but without any special priority such as the Americans deem necessary.

Mount Mayon Volcano Erupts With Roar

MANILA, Jan. 13 (AP) — Mount Mayon volcano in Southern Luzon swelled and burst with an earth-shaking roar today, sending fiery lava and house-sized boulders two miles above its top.

The eruption occurred at 10:16 a. m. (9:16 p. m., Sunday Eastern Standard Time).

Mayon had no crater, and the fissures through which lava and smoke had poured from its cone since Wednesday proved insufficient to relieve the tremendous pressure inside.

A plane piloted by Capt. Robert A. Harris, Dayton, Ohio, of the United States Army Fifth Weather Observation Squadron, was circling the mountain at a distance of two miles at the instant of eruption.

Apartment Fire Tragedy

YONKERS, N. Y., Jan. 13. (AP)—Trapped in a smoke-filled fourth floor apartment, a panic-stricken mother disregarded the pleas of firemen today and as horrified spectators looked on hurled her two babies to their deaths then followed them in a fatal plunge to the ground 50 feet below. David Norris, 2, and his three-month-old sister, Charlotte, died almost instantly. The mother, 24-year-old Mrs. Charles Norris, died an hour later.

Negro Must Make Second Trip To Chair

Young Killer's Appeal To High Court Fails

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP) — Willie Francis, condemned negro holdup slayer, was strapped into the electric chair, the switch thrown, and nothing happened—but the Supreme Court ruled by a bare majority of one today that that is no reason to let him off.

"I guess a man's got to die some time and I reckon my time has plumb done come," said 17-year-old Willie in his cell at New Iberia, La., when told his appeal had failed. His lawyers still may ask a rehearing.

The court's 5 to 4 decision was reached with the reluctant vote of Justice Frankfurter. In a separate opinion, he recorded "personal revulsion" against a second electrocution attempt and against what he called the state's "insistence on its pound of flesh." But he held the letter of the law does not permit interference by the court for any personal objections.

Burton Speaks For Dissenters

Justice Reed announced the majority finding which rejected the contention of Francis' counsel that the second execution attempt would constitute "cruel and unusual punishment" in violation of the Constitution. He was joined by Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Black and Jackson.

Justice Burton spoke for the dissenters. They held that the case should go back for a retrial with the question of how, much, if any, electricity was applied to Francis last May 3 as one of the issues.

The case was decided in a busy day of opinions and hearings as the court cleared its decks for arguments tomorrow in the appeal of John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers from the injunction against a coal strike last November 21 and the subsequent $3,510,000 fines for contempt. In other major decisions the court:

Other Major Decisions

1. Narrowed the field of information which counsel for one side in a lawsuit may require the opposing lawyer to disclose. It ruled that unless there are unusual circumstances, what a lawyer learns from witnesses is private.

2. Strictly applied a two-year limitation rule on the time within which a bank receiver, suing stockholders on assessments, may sue their executors when the stockholders themselves have died.

3. Broke a stalemate which had held up action by the National Railroad Adjustment Board on labor disputes involving yardmasters by ruling that the fourth division of the board, rather than the first division, has jurisdiction.

AFL Union Raps Portal Pay Suits

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—The AFL Metal Trades Department assailed portal-to-portal pay suits as a breach of faith on the part of unions today as bills to outlaw the claims, mostly filed by CIO unions, got attention in both branches of Congress.

Sen. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) ruled that all portal pay bills will be assigned to the Judiciary Committee, headed by Sen. Wiley (R-Wis.), rather than to the Labor Committee headed by Sen. Taft (R-Ohio). A Judiciary subcommittee already has set hearings for Wednesday.

Rep. Hoffman (R-Mich.) called for action in the House. He said the Supreme Court evidently "thinks Congress is incompetent to legislate or lacks the inclination to legislate or doesn't know what it's all about."

Head Of Greek Rightist Organization Is Slain

ATHENS, Jan. 13. (AP)—The head of the Xites, rightist organization, in Kokkinia, suburb of the Piraeus, was shot to death today by two persons described by police as Communists.

In an exchange of shots with the victim's bodyguards, both assailants were hit. One was seriously wounded and was arrested; the other escaped.

Police said the man arrested had previously been released from jail under the amnesty law passed by the government of former Premier Themistokles Sophoulis.

Inquiry Urged As Air Travel Shows Decline

Rivers Says People "Scared To Death"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board will be called before the Senate Commerce Committee tomorrow as part of a congressional study of the airplane accident situation.

This was announced tonight by Sen. Brewster (R-Me), as cries resounded on Capitol Hill that recent plane crashes are making Americans "afraid to fly."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP) — Cries that recent airplane crashes are making the American people "afraid to fly" and demands for investigation were voiced on Congress today on the eve of a Senate committee's scheduled broad examination of commercial avaition.

Although this inquiry by the Senate Commerce Committee will embrace the question of safety precautions, House members urged a separate investigation by that branch of Congress.

"The American people are horrified and scared to death," Rep. Rivers (D-SC) told the House. "If there is something wrong with the whole doggone setup, then something should be done."

He called attention to the crash of an Eastern Airlines plane near Galax, Va., yesterday with the loss of 18 lives and to the emergency landing last week of an airliner on a Long Island, N. Y., beach.

Joining Rivers, Rep. Hinshaw (R-Calif.) asserted there should be a "complete and thorough inquiry in hope of finding a remedy."

Sen. McCarran (D-Nev.), addresser of the Senate Commerce Committee, said "people are getting afraid to fly."

"The situation is destroying popular confidence," he told reporters. "There won't be anybody flying if it keeps on."

Sen. McCarran (D-Nev.), addressing the Senate, raised the question whether alarums are not out of order.

Air Travel Falls Off

He said that domestic and international operations of United States airlines have shown steady declines in passenger fatalities.

Airline men, taking the same view, acknowledged, however, that air travel has fallen off, though none was prepared to say whether airplane crashes were a factor in the decline. They said there is customarily a season lull at this time in air travel.

They say, too, that the demands for congressional investigation come at a time when the industry is making its greatest effort to improve dependability of air travel.

The Galax accident was the first fatality on a scheduled airline this year. Last year the airlines marked up their best record since 1939, with a passenger fatality rate of 1.24 for every 100,000,000 passenger miles. The 1939 rate was 1.19 and the 1945 rate was 2.14.

Here is a quick picture of what is happening now in the safety field:

1. The Army Air Forces, Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, Civil Aeronautics Administration (CAA) and the airlines have been co-operating in a series of studies of "blind" flying aids or radio aids to navigation, and experiments are being carried on by all of them and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics concerning other problems, such as icing, fire control and avoiding storms in flight.

Landing Aid Experiments

2. Some operating experiments with landing aids now are being arranged at major air centers — New York, Washington, Chicago, Pittsburgh, and Gander, N. F.—using ground controlled approach (CCA) and radar search equipment. Actual operation of the equipment should begin this month.

3. The Air Transport Association has established the airborne instruments laboratory at Mineola, N. Y., to study and develop radio equipment for flying safety aids.

4. American Airlines has ordered search radar built into large transports which will be delivered late this year—the first such step by any airline. Such equipment would be used to avoid collision and storms and to aid navigation.

5. United Air Lines is equipping

President Releases Army Surgeon To Operate On Girl With Hiccoughs

NEW YORK, Jan. 13. (AP)—"It's wonderful—I have faith in him," Anna Mayer, 23-year-old singer, said today when told that a government surgeon had been released temporarily by President Truman at her request to perform an operation in an effort to end the hiccoughing that has afflicted her continuously for almost two months.

Dr. Lester Samuels, surgeon at the veterans hospital at Alexandria, La., left there by plane today and is due at Newark, N. J., airport at 7 a. m. (AES) tomorrow. He operated on the girl three years ago to stop a similar siege.

The blond singer, thin and pale, attempted a smile today at her home in South Ozone park, Queens, as she heard the news.

She believes Dr. Samuels is the only doctor who can help her. He was released from Army service to perform the first operation after Miss Mayer had appealed to the late President Roosevelt.

Miss Mayer's brother, William, said today "her whole body shakes. She has terrible pains in her back and chest. Nobody gets any sleep in our house."

The victim, cheerful throughout her ordeal, joked today with her father and brother and with a priest who visits her daily.

"I'm getting along as well as you'd expect," she told friends, and then laughed.

Argentine Minister Calls Byrnes Speech "Unjust"

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 13. (AP)—Argentine Foreign Minister Juan Bramuglia attacked James F. Byrnes by name tonight declaring that the speech by the retiring United States Secretary of State in Cleveland last Saturday was "unjust and intolerant."

In a written statement Bramuglia emphasized that he was referring to Byrnes as a "citizen of the United States" and not as Secretary of State. He described Byrnes' speech as a "personal reaction."

(At Cleveland, Byrnes said the United States was "eager to proceed" with the negotiation of a mutual assistance treaty for American nations at a projected conference in Rio de Janeiro but did not wish to do so without Argentina. He added that the State Department was of the opinion that Argentina had not yet complied with the commitments "which she as well as the other American republics" agreed to at the Chaptultepec conference.

(Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich), who shared the platform at Cleveland with Byrnes, said he thought a conference of American nations should be held now.)

Bramuglia said that Argentina had fulfilled all her commitments regarding the elimination of Nazi influences "in a most advisable manner" and cited United States Ambassador George Messersmith, now in Washington, as a witness to this fulfillment. He highly praised both Messersmith and Vandenberg.

20-Year-Old "Baby Sitter" Liked Job So Well He Married The "Baby"

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Jan. 13 (AP)—The tale of a 20-year-old "baby sitter" who liked his job so well he married the "baby" came to light today as the result of a complaint filed by the 13-year-old bride charging desertion.

This story developed at the hearing before Squire John Hunger, of Arnold:

James Schuffert, a former Indianola coal miner, was hired by Mrs. Elsie Loman to "sit" with her daughter, Deloris, while the mother was working nights as a charwoman.

A few weeks later Schuffert asked and received written permission from Mrs. Loman to marry the petite, blue-eyed blonde bobby-soxer. They were married in May and all went well until Schuffert decided six weeks ago he wanted his bride to live with him in Springdale.

Mrs. Loman objected, saying her daughter was "too young to leave home." Schuffert left away and the bride filed a complaint charging desertion.

The squire told Mrs. Loman, "You didn't think your daughter was too young to get married. Why do you object to her leaving your home to live with her legal husband?"

That was Saturday. The couple have now reconciled and are living with Schuffert's parents in Springdale until their own house is ready.

The youthful Mrs. Schuffert said she was in the eighth grade when she quit school last November to "devote more time to being a housewife."

Deputy Ministers Will Meet Today

LONDON, Jan. 13 (AP)—A high American informant predicted tonight that the deputy foreign ministers conference would reach agreement on terms for the Austrian peace treaty "in a fairly short time," but no such forecast was forthcoming for the far more intricate German peace pact.

The deputies will open their conference tomorrow to draft recommendations for the four-power Foreign Ministers Council which will convene in Moscow March 10 to consider the German and Austrian treaties.

The American informant believed that the United States would make no reparations demands upon Austria and would try to prevail on the representatives of France, Britain and Russia to lighten the burden of the feeble Austrian economy.

The deputies will draft recommendations for a treaty to set up Austria as an independent state, as was promised in the Allied declaration in Moscow a year ago.

Krug Urges Development Of Synthetic Liquid Fuel

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—Secretary of Interior Krug, saying natural oil supplies are dwindling, urged Congress today to give "every encouragement and aid" to the development of synthetic liquid fuels.

"It is not realistic to depend upon the hope that our reserve capacity will again match our prewar figures," he said in a report sent to the legislators.

"As the nation moves into the postwar period, the need for development of synthetic oil and gas is more and more apparent.

"The demand for crude oil is already nearing the peak reached during the war, and every indication points to materially increased demands during the years to come."

Self-Discipline, Iron-Man Captain Saved Six Airmen

Polar Crash Survivors Had Two Meals A Day

ABOARD USS MT. OLYMPUS, Jan. 13 (AP) — Calm self-discipline and the leadership of an iron-man captain were credited today with saving the lives of six Navy men, rescued 13 days after a plane crash that killed three of their fellows in the icy wilderness of Antarctica.

The survivors were brought back by air Sunday to the Byrd expedition seaplane tender Pine Island, which their PBM-Mariner had left December 30 on a routine photographic expedition.

The traditional Navy salute was piped and a non-regulation but enthusiastic cheer from all hands sounded as Capt. Henry H. Caldwell, commanding officer of the Pine Island and leader of the castaways, once again set foot on the deck of his ship.

All Survivors Injured

All of the survivors were injured, five slightly, and the pilot, Lt. (jg) Ralph Paul LeBlanc, St. Martinsville, La., seriously.

Some, however, declined rest in order to give this description of their adventures to avid shipmates:

The photographic plane was flying low in thickening weather and started to turn back to the Pine Island when it brushed a peak of snow or ice, continued in flight and then exploded in the air, apparently from friction of the ice.

Ensign Maxwell A. Lopez, Newport, R. I., and Aviation Radioman Wendell K. Henderson, Sparta, Pa., were killed instantly, and Aviation Machinist's Mate Frederick Warren Williams, Huntington, Tenn., died shortly afterward.

Pilot LeBlanc, strapped in the pilot's seat, was knocked out but was pulled free of the licking flames by Lt. (jg) William H. Kearns, Jr., Boston, and Aviation Radioman James H. Robbins, San Diego, Calif. Kearns had been thrown through the cockpit windshield.

Two Thrown Clear

Chief Photographer's Mate Owen McCarty, Sonoma, Calif., dragged himself from the wreck while Capt. Caldwell and Aviation Machinist's Mate William G. H. Warr, Reading, Pa., were thrown clear.

The plane broke up, but the numbed, shocked men found shelter in part of the fuselage. There they huddled for a day and a half without food.

As the shock gradually wore off, they found a can of apricots which had not frozen, and each had two pieces.

Capt. Caldwell immediately established a policy of two meals a day from the emergency rations. Gasoline from an unbroken tank provided enough fire to heat some food. New Year's "dinner" consisted of a cup of hot chicken soup and a slice of bread smeared with peanut butter for each man.

Vagrant Advised To Leave The City

James Fresh, who gave an Akron, Ohio, address, was advised to leave town yesterday by Magistrate Frank A. Perdew, when he was given a hearing in Police Court on charges of loitering and having no visible means of support.

Fresh declared in court that he had a job to go to, but Lt. James E. Van said the man has been in court on the same charge before and always tells the same story. He was ordered either to leave the city, or return this morning for disposition of his case.

A. A. Harper, Pitcairn, Pa., and Ivan W. Godlove, 119 Fifth avenue, forfeited bonds in Trial Magistrates Court on motor vehicle violation charges. Harper was charged with operating a vehicle without a driver's permit, and Godlove with permitting an unauthorized person to operate his car.

Purcell To Get Hearing Today

Joseph C. Purcell, Eddystone, Pa., who is facing a second charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle in a month, will be tried this morning in Trial Magistrates Court. He was arrested for stealing a Cumberland Police Department cruiser car Sunday morning.

Purcell was fined $25 and costs in Trial Magistrates Court last Tuesday after being convicted of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, and early Sunday morning he again made off with a car, this time a police department prowl vehicle, authorities said.

The 22-year-old Pennsylvanian, who recently served thirty months in a federal prison for stealing a general's staff car during the war, was questioned yesterday in the office of the State's Attorney, and ordered held in county jail for the hearing this morning.

Ordinance Will Ban Liquor Sales To Alcoholics

Under an ordinance unanimously approved yesterday by the Mayor and Council, dealers in alcoholic beverages are subject to a fine up to $300 for selling intoxicants to persons "visibly drunk" and then after the sale is made to eject such a person from the place of business.

The new ordinance was sponsored and presented by Commissioner William V. Keegan, himself a tavern operator. City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett said the measure will be "a wholesome help" in policing some types of local establishments, adding that it will not hurt those which are being operated properly.

Under the previous ordinance, Heskett said, provision was made for the handling of habitual drunkards but only after a dealer had been notified that intoxicants should not be sold to a specified individual.

X-Ray, Fluoroscope Machines Arrive Here

A new X-ray machine and fluoroscope, purchased by the Maryland Tuberculosis Association with funds from the sale of Christmas seals, have arrived here and will probably be installed in City Hall next week, according to Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, city and county health officer.

The Health Department has one X-ray machine in use at its headquarters in the Public Safety Building. The use of two machines will speed up work of X-raying persons attending chest clinics, Dr. Franklin said, adding that the fluoroscope will also be used by Dr. Virginia G. Harris, pediatric consultant for the State Department of Health, at clinics for children here.

Medical Group Will Consider Question Of Emergency Calls

Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, city and county health officer, said yesterday that he plans to bring up the question of availability of physicians in times of emergency at the next meeting of the Allegany-Garrett County Medical Society, scheduled for January 31.

The question was discussed at the meeting of the Mayor and City Council by Finance Commissioner Clifton E. Fuller, who conferred with Dr. Franklin and Dr. Winter R. Frantz, assistant city and county health officer, after the meeting adjourned.

Fuller said a number of persons have told him that on occasions it is "virtually impossible" to get a doctor, although he made it clear that his discussion of the subject was in no way meant as a criticism of local physicians.

He related that when Mrs. Fuller suffered a fall recently, it was some time before a doctor could be located, explaining that the family physician was out of town at the time. When the latter returned, however, he was in constant attendance, the commissioner said.

Fuller suggested that the names of physicians available for emergency cases might be listed at City Hall or police headquarters as well as at both local hospitals, although he said that whatever the medical society decides in the matter will be satisfactory to him.

He suggested that a study be made to determine the respective cost to the city, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the Western Maryland Railway, the State Roads Commission and the federal government in building the viaduct.

Is your favorite brand going up in price?

IF YOU—like millions of discerning people—have selected one of these whiskies as your favorite, you'll be glad to hear that, as far as we are concerned, the answer on higher prices is . . . NO!

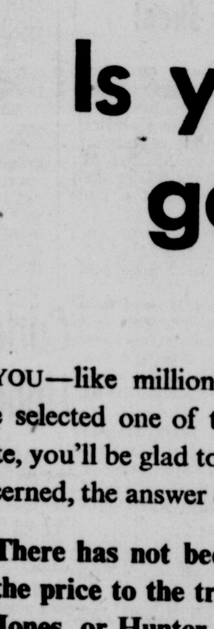

There has not been one penny increase in the price to the trade on Four Roses, Paul Jones, or Hunter.

The prices on these famous brands are exactly the same today as they were before the removal of OPA price ceilings.

We are sure that this is good news to you, who have been our customers and loyal friends through the times when your favorite brand hasn't always been available. In a measure, holding the line on prices is our way of thanking you for that loyalty.

We are sure, too, that it is good news to our wholesalers, retail stores, and to those who serve our brands in bars and taverns. For it means that they do not have to raise their prices on any of these brands—either by the bottle or by the drink.

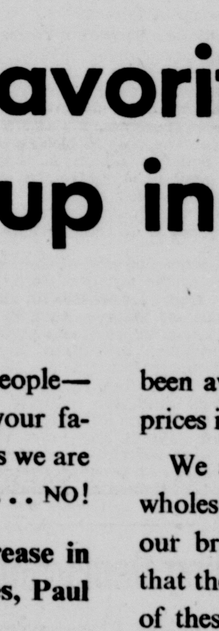

When you go to your package store . . . or step up to your favorite bar . . . you may expect to find Four Roses, Paul Jones, or Hunter at the same price as it was under OPA ceilings. For we are asking all retailers—in fairness to you—not to increase their prices, since we are not increasing ours.

Deputy Ministers Will Meet Today

LONDON, Jan. 13 (AP)—A high American informant predicted tonight that the deputy foreign ministers conference would reach agreement on terms for the Austrian peace treaty "in a fairly short time," but no such forecast was forthcoming for the far more intricate German peace pact.

The deputies will open their conference tomorrow to draft recommendations for the four-power Foreign Ministers Council which will convene in Moscow March 10 to consider the German and Austrian treaties.

The American informant believed that the United States would make no reparations demands upon Austria and would try to prevail on the representatives of France, Britain and Russia to lighten the burden of the feeble Austrian economy.

The deputies will draft recommendations for a treaty to set up Austria as an independent state, as was promised in the Allied declaration in Moscow a year ago.

Krug Urges Development Of Synthetic Liquid Fuel

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—Secretary of Interior Krug, saying natural oil supplies are dwindling, urged Congress today to give "every encouragement and aid" to the development of synthetic liquid fuels.

"As the nation moves into the postwar period, the need for development of synthetic oil and gas is more and more apparent.

"The demand for crude oil is already nearing the peak reached during the war, and every indication points to materially increased demands during the years to come."

There has not been one penny increase in the price to the trade on Four Roses, Paul Jones, or Hunter.

The prices on these famous brands are exactly the same today as they were before the removal of OPA price ceilings.

We are sure that this is good news to you, who have been our customers and loyal friends through the times when your favorite brand hasn't always been available. In a measure, holding the line on prices is our way of thanking you for that loyalty.

We are sure, too, that it is good news to our wholesalers, retail stores, and to those who serve our brands in bars and taverns. For it means that they do not have to raise their prices on any of these brands—either by the bottle or by the drink.

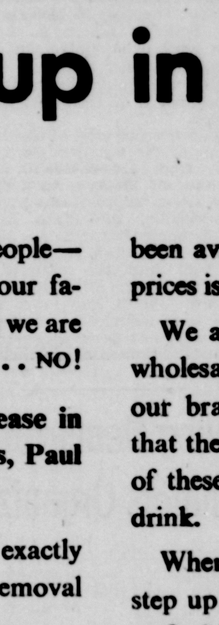

When you go to your package store . . . or step up to your favorite bar . . . you may expect to find Four Roses, Paul Jones, or Hunter at the same price as it was under OPA ceilings. For we are asking all retailers—in fairness to you—not to increase their prices, since we are not increasing ours.

Listen World

By ELSIE ROBINSON

DON'T GET YOUR FREEDOMS MIXED

Jim is home from the wars. Theoretically Jim fought in those wars to save the democratic way of life. Now he doesn't know what he's fighting for. He has gone sour on the whole world. Everybody he meets is somehow warped. Every institution has a worm at its heart. As for jobs, they are all a crooked framework, according to Jim.

So Jim lies around grouching at the universe and drawing his unemployment pay. Perhaps, maybe, somewhere, sometime Jim will find a job that suits him. At present he feels that he has done enough for the good old U. S. A. and is entitled to lie on his back 24 hours of the day and beef about his breaks.

Someone sent me a quotation lately that applies to a lot of Jims. It was taken from Newsweek.

"The war was fought for freedom from slavery to foreign powers, not freedom from hard work. Nothing in the Constitution, the Bible or anything else with common sense promises such privilege and no self respecting American would want it.

"The only freedom from want that you'll ever get is the one you write yourself—by efficient work. The more you produce efficiently, the less the cost, and the more you have a right to demand and get. The less it costs the more people there are who will buy it. The more people who buy it, the more secure your job and therefore the greater your freedom from want and fear of unemployment.

"Another name for the principle of freedom is opportunity. Is any freedom worth having if that (opportunity) is lost?"

There is no new principle in that statement. Nor does it apply only to veterans like Jim. It has applied to the whole human race since Adam took up the first hoe and broke into his first frenzied sweat. And the real point of the argument is this—the guy who refuses to work not only fails his family and his country but he double crosses himself. For there is no real pride or enjoyment in life except that which you receive from your own constructive labor.

No one can hand you such pride on a silver platter. Your parents can't hand it to you. Society can't hand it to you. Charity can't hand it to you, nor can old age bonuses or GI Bill of Rights hand it to you. You've got to achieve it out of your own sinews and determination.

It is easy to see why Jim thinks that the government owes him plenty for his sacrifices and risk during the war. But youth has always been a time of sacrifice and risk. Great grandpa may not have fought in the front line trenches but he learned about life the hard way just the same. And he got nowhere lying on the living room couch and drawing $20 per week instead of a full tinme wage.

One may greatly sympathize with the veteran Jims. One may be disposed to coddle them. But neither sympathy nor coddling will offset the fact that the fellow who won't work is a jerk. He is passing up the only activity that will build his self respect. He is throwing away the only real freedom that counts.

NO HUMAN BEING WHO IS CHAINED TO AN EASY CHAIR IS FREE.

And this applies to languid female warriors as well as to male. Women made a grand record during the war in nursing and laboring on the assembly line but far too many of them, particularly the childless ones, are taking it easy now and depending on some weary male or a grateful public to do the hustling.

Whom do they think they're kidding Gratitude is abundant where there is a real suffering and real need, but anyone who depends on gratiture to carry him through years of ease is dumb.

I am for veterans, male and female, but I am not for lazybones. I have been a lazybones myself. I would still be a lazybones if I thought I could get by with it. But long since I discovered that the only domestic or public response to lazybones is a swift kick in the shin.

If you want your opportunity, Jim, go out and get it. It will never come to you.

New Salvation Army Officers Arrive Here

Cadet-Captain and Mrs. H. Lynn Wiseman, Clarksburg, W. Va., have arrived in Cumberland to take charge of the South Cumberland Salvation Army Outpost, 511 Virginia avenue, succeeding Capt. Hilda Bell, who is at her home in Weirton, W. Va., on sick furlough.

The South End Outpost held a welcome meeting in their honor last night, conducted by Maj. Elmer Wall, commanding officer of the Salvation Army here. Commandant Fred Willis, Washington, D. C., an officer of the Salvation Army for over 40 years, who has been in Cumberland for the past week, preached at the Outpost yesterday morning and conducted his final service last night at the Citadel, 115 North Mechanic street.

The jet-propelled motor boat is forecast. The old putt-putt, it appears, will be replaced by a zing!-zowie!

Republicans Planning To Liberalize Social Security

Liberalization of Social Security appears to be one matter that will get considerable attention in the new Congress. When this brain-child of the New Deal was born, it was widely deplored by Republicans, but its sponsors and administrators see no likelihood of repeal or emasculating amendments. Instead Republicans are already talking of doing something very generous.

Most widespread is talk of increasing the benefits paid retired workers, and reducing the age at which benefits are payable from 65 to 60 years. Those proposals will be popular, not only with older persons, but with younger workers, many of whom are supporting their parents. If they come up for debate, Congress will be under considerable pressure to enact them. Any such proposals, however, should be given the most serious thought by both Congress and the people. In this matter, the nation is at an important crossroads.

Something, certainly, is going to have to be done about America's older people. They are increasing rapidly. By 1950 there will be 18,000,000 persons over 60. By 1980 they are expected to number more than 31,000,000, or more than a fifth of the population.

While they are increasing, their opportunities for self-support apparently are diminishing. They were employed in large numbers during the war, but now that the need for manpower is waning, employers again are showing a marked preference for younger workers. Two schools of thought on this question are before the nation—whether to go all-out on a Social Security program that will retire the older workers on fairly adequate incomes, or first make some serious attempt to provide employment for those who are able to work, and want to.

Observers during wartime found that many of the older workers are as efficient as younger persons. And George Lawton, specialist on problems of aging, declares in a new book that others, who may not be as efficient as they were in their 20's and 30's, still can do a satisfactory day's work if placed in the right positions. Of course, there are those who will argue that persons beyond 65 should be retired on an income that would provide adequate subsistence, and thereby release more jobs to the younger generation. One of the plans Republicans are considering is to increase the amount paid such persons, because they realize that, although living costs have advanced more than 50 percent in the past seven years the amount paid to beneficiaries of old-age insurance is what it was when the Social Security Act become operative in 1939.

It is agreed that any liberalization of benefits certainly should be accompanied by an increase in payroll deductions, so that the workers, and their employers, can pay for the benefits as they go along. Even with present benefits, such an increase is, some will argue, long overdue. Under the original provisions of the Social Security Act, the deductions would have amounted to 5 percent by now, but every Congress has frozen the rates, and they are still at the original 2 percent, shared by employer and employe. Senator Vandenberg has been the sponsor of this freeze, because he always felt the Social Security fund was large enough, measured by the amount of benefits paid.

Others have hesitated to increase the levy on workers so long as income tax payments have been so great, but with a reduction on the latter, now probable the lowering of that levy could be followed by an increase in Social Security Tax without lowering the take-home pay of the workers, and thereby making possible a liberalization of Social Security payments. It certainly would be the time to allow the increase in deductions to go through.

Republicans in Congress say they will get along nicely with the President if he doesn't adopt the Russian technique in using the veto.

Government Holds Its Own In Sale Of Bonds

In comparison with the huge volume of government saving bonds sold during the war years, the record for 1946 seems a trifle on the sickly side. For the year as a whole, the government did a little better than hold its own. Americans invested approximately $7,400,000,000 in government savings bonds, but they also cashed in bonds worth approximately $6,400,000,000.

In the Series E bond category, which is where most small investors put their funds, cash-ins exceeded new purchases for the year.

But, all things considered, this is a good record, and one which the Treasury is entitled to view with some satisfaction. No one expected war bond purchases to remain at war levels when the fighting was over. Sale of more than seven billion dollars worth of these bonds in a peacetime year is a remarkable record and one which shows that a great many Americans still appreciate the importance of thrift and realize that United States government bonds are the safest and best of all investments.

There are several factors which swelled the volume of bonds redeemed for cash during the past year. Great numbers of workers used up their reserves and had to cash in their bonds to feed their families during the long and costly strikes of 1946. Many individuals, living on fixed incomes, were severely pinched by rising living costs and felt compelled to turn in their bonds.

It is apparent also that a great deal of the heavy buying this past Christmas season was financed by war bond redemptions. But as long as new investments are greater than cash-ins and a balanced budget is in prospect, there is not too much for the Treasury to worry about.

America's egg surplus has reached 150,000,000 dozen, and a presidential election is still two years in the offing.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

EARACHE SHOULD NOT BE NEGLECTED

EARACHE is a common complaint particularly during the season when colds and contagious diseases are prevalent. The symptoms should not be disregarded, especially in children, as they may indicate something amiss in a vital area. Neglect often results in deafness which could have been prevented had the right steps been taken.

Thru examination, the exact source of trouble generally can be determined. The usual type of inflammation attacks the chamber on the inner side of the tympanum [drum] and the disorder is known as "otitis media:" Pus is present and as the secretion accumulates it presses not only on the membrane but other tissues. Until tension is relieved, throbbing is almost unbearable. Infections of this type usually occur in conjunction with a head cold, tonsilitis, sore throat, or during the course of influenza, scarlet fever, or measles. The bacteria on the infected throat find their way into the Eustachian tubes. Once the germs reach the acoustic apparatus they multiply and before long pus gathers.

Deafness may signify that invasion has taken place. In the majority, however, aching and a rise in temperature are noted. Physicians are aware of such a complication and, whenever fever returns in a person who has had a cold, a peek at the ear may reveal the origin hours before symptoms appear.

Since the advent of the sulfonamides and pencillin it is not always necessary to open the drum. The decision, however, is an individual problem which only the attending physician can make after inspecting the organ. Should the procedure be required, it is always advisable, for healing will follow within a few days and restoration of hearing in two weeks.

On the other hand, if the purulent material continues to collect, spontaneous rupture ensues. Repair is thus delayed and, in some instances, the opening may never close. Besides, if pressure from the secretion is sufficient to perforate the drum, there is danger that the hearing parts may be damaged permanently. Therefore incision should never be neglected if the wonder drugs fail to check infection.

Pain in this region is not necessarily a sign of ear disease. Because of the peculiar arrangement of the nerves in this locality, distress may be referred from infected tonsils of a swollen pharynx. For the same reason, soreness in the ears appears now and then subsequent to tonsillectomy. Dental caries is another possibility and sometimes an impacted wisdom tooth is to blame. Swollen neck glands or a stone in the parotid gland may likewise lead to ear discomfort.

Before daubing various preparation into the orifice to soothe aching, it is always best to have the cause ascertained. Any motorist knows that when the car knocks, adding oil may not solve the problem and a more expert opinion is often necessary. But let us not compare our bodies to articles which money can buy. Early diagnosis may preserve a priceless structure for which no duplicate is available.

CHILD WON'T EAT

Mrs. D. writes: How can a five-year-old child be induced to eat more.

REPLY

This is a long story, as it involves the attitude of the entire family. This is the finicky age and appetite is influenced by distractions, punishment, type of food, exercise, and a host of other conditions. If the lad is healthy and not losing weight, don't let it get you down.

HYDROTHERAPY

E. H. writes: What is a sitz bath?

REPLY

A hot bath where you sitz down in the tub with enough water to cover the hips. The procedure is helpful in pelvic infections and circulatory disturbances.

FIBROIDS

Mrs. M. writes: What are the symptoms of a fibroid tumor?

REPLY

These growths sometimes lead to menstrual difficulties or cause distress in the lower abdomen. When enlarged they sometimes cause pressure on nearby structures, such as the bladder, resulting in urinary disturbances.

GOHPER SUBWAY

To clear up the traffic problem and keep pedestrians from becoming extinct in Los Angeles the city is considering installing subways.

Of course there's nothing definite on it, but yesterday the mayor and 12 architects stood for seven hours watching a gopher hole and mumbling over the price of building material.

I hear they actually wanted to get gopher labor but the gophers said they were too busy working out their own housing shortage.

Of course the celebrities will find it inconvenient to sign autographs in them. The passengers will be packed so tight the stars won't be able to reach for their fountain pens.

And those people who are complaining about taxes now will have a real kick coming after the inception of subways. Then they will truly be in the hole.

Incidentally, they're also planning a complicated instrument for the people accustomed to California drivers. The subway stations will be equipped with special devices to dribble the passengers into the cars.

However, if they do install the subways, it will have one disastrous result. With no traffic problems about 200 gag writers will have to go back to their unemployment insurance.

NOT CHANGING HORSES

Two-Party System High In Strength Despite Wallace

By MARK SULLIVAN

Mr. Henry A. Wallace last Saturday night, on that excellent radio program "Meet the Press," said that this country does not now have a two-party political system, that what we have is one party. He meant, as listeners later gathered, that in his judgment both the old parties are alike, and that neither is the kind of party he wants, what he would call liberal.

Until one of the old parties is liberal, Mr. Wallace went on, there is not a real two-party system. Upon questioning by newsmen he said that unless one of the old parties adapts itself to Mr. Wallace's design, becomes liberal, it might be necessary to have a new party. Mr. Wallace said however that he personally does not favor or contemplate a new party at this time. From that, on infers, it must be that Mr. Wallace continues in his hope and effort to re-shape the Democratic Party to what he wants. That would be an extraordinary example of hope triumphing over experience. Domination of the Democratic Party by Mr. Wallace or his ideas is about the least foreseeable thing in politics.

Two-Party System Effective

In fact, dismissing Mr. Wallace's stipulation that one party must be liberal, that the two parties must have opposing ideologies and must contend with each other—dismissing all that, the American two-party system, is today exceptionally definite. It functions in an exceptionally striking and effective way. An example was seen last Saturday night, when a Democrat of the highest rank, Secretary of State Byrnes, spoke on the same stage with a Republican of corresponding rank, Senator Vandenberg; and the Democrat said of the Republican that the country's unity on foreign policy was made possible by Mr. Vandenberg's "whole-hearted and intelligent cooperation." Our foreign policy, Mr. Byrnes said, has not been that of a "political party" but "has been the policy of the United States."

A unity on foreign policy, more complete and definite and lasting longer than at any time in our history under similar circumstances, is but one example of the extra-ordinary picture Washington now presents. It is so novel and stiking that, when realized, it composes news of high importance.

There are two parties, almost exclusively two, for among the 531 members of the two branches of Congress only one bears a third party label, New York Representative Vito Marcantonio of the American Labor Party. In every preceding Congress during several decades there have been sizable representations of third parties. The two parties, contrary to a common impression, are very evenly balanced—in the Senate, the Republicans have 51, the Democrats 45. Ten years ago one party, the Republicans, had 17, the Democrats 75. That was when a one-party system seemed possible, and actually was expected by many. Emphasizing the present evenness of the parties, Congress is controlled by one party, the Presidency held by the other.

Spirit of Amity, Cooperation

Yet, with this evenness of party balance, the spirit in Washington, so definite that one can almost touch it, is amity and cooperation. There is amity between the President and Congress; to find any important differences between the two one needs to comb carefully, paragraph by paragraph, through the Democratic President's message to Congress and the utterances of Republican Party leaders, such as the comprehensive statement of policy given out by Senator Taft. Emphasizing non-partisanship, President Truman has appointed as the new Secretary of State one whose career has been remote from politics, a soldier, General George C. Mashall. With amity between the President and Congress, goes amity between the parties in Congress. Republican leaders such as Senators Taft and Vandenberg are esteemed by Democrats, just as Democratic leaders like Senators Byrd and George are esteemed by Republicans.

For the pervading good feeling, a reason is one immense common denominator. This is, defeat in the November election of a school of thought which was disliked by both parties, and, it is safe to say, was not cherished by President Truman, even though, preceding the election, he felt obliged to go along with it. Mr. Truman's actions and attitude since the election have been those of a man from whose shoulders an incubus has been lifted.

The defeat of the school of thought associated with Mr. Henry A. Wallace and left wing groups including the CIO Political Action Committee, has been followed by a split among them. At the organizing of one faction Mr. Wallace made a speech; to the organizing of the other Mrs. Roosevelt lent her presence. The left wing movement seems destined to fall into dissident splinter parties. At the same moment the two old parties, and the two-party system, are high in strength and confidence.

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Gen. Marshall Found Cheapest Thing In China Was Human Life; New Secretary Of State Says Worst Civilian Rule Is Better Than Best Military Rule

Says DREW PEARSON

(Editor's note—This is the third and last of Drew Pearson's penetrating personality sketches of the new Secretary of State.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—To get a full insight into the character of the new Secretary of State, it is necessary to know something of General Marshall's latest experiences in China.

Not many of his friends realize it, but Marshall for the most part enjoyed his tour of duty in China. He told visitors that it gave him time to think.

On the porch of his house in Nanking overlooking a flowery, walled-in garden, Marshall sat and philosophized about the Orient. In the distance he could see teeming, centuries-old Nanking and the tomb of China's great modern reformer, Sun Yat-sen.

Last summer, Marshall spent an evening talking with Postmaster General Bob Hannegan and Assistant Secretary of War Stuart Symington, who had carried a highly confidential message to Marshall from President Truman telling him to prepare to succeed Jimmie Byrnes as Secretary of State. What Marshall said that night was significant.

Going back over his life, he described his first tour of duty in the Philippines, even before World War I.

"I learned a lot from serving in the Philippines," Marshall said. "I learned that the worst civilian rule is preferable to the best military rule.

"The tragedy of China," he continued, "is that its cheapest commodity is human life. Everything else, clothes, food, land, raw materials—all are worth more than human life."

Moral Man Lags

Marshall expressed his unreserved contempt for the Kuomintang, the oligarchy which kept Chiang Kai-shek in power. A loose confederation of warlords, honest scholars, and large-scale financial manipulators—money lenders—who traded in human misery, was the way he described it. He was particularly bitter about the custom of "cumshaw" or "shakedown" prevalent all over China. Hannegan had already seen how five bribes were necessary to permit a peasant to visit a relative in a Nanking jail.

Marshall outlined his own views on what China needed as, first, a complete restoration of civilian rule; second, a broad educational program so that more of the people of China could choose their path to a better world; third, a national health and welfare program combined with national sports.

"In the Philippines," he declared, "I saw how competitive sports developed fair-minded cooperation and team play. We taught the Filipinos tennis. They mastered it easily and proved that all races have great capabilities in physical development if given the opportunity. Health is the great wealth of a nation."

Finally, Marshall said, China needs moral emancipation. It is a tragedy, he said, that scientific man is 100 years ahead of moral man, and that science is 150 years ahead of industrial man in many parts of the world—particularly China.

"Perhaps," said Marshall, "even I who have been round the world haven't realized how completely the world has shriveled. We've got to help all the peoples of the world or suffer ourselves. It's not a question of producing for their consumption. It's a question of letting them have a portion of our own civilization."

Marshall And WAC

It is easy to understand why General Marshall was shocked at the Chinese disregard for life, because, as Chief of Staff, he had great regard for the dignity of man. He was always thoughful for those who served under him.

One evening he invited Brig. Gen. Claude Adams to dinner at his home at Fort Myer, and afterward Marshall suggested they go to the movies at the Fort Myer theatre. The Chief of Staff was about to set out on foot when Gen. Adams said, "I've got a car here, with a WAC driver, and we might as well use it."

When they reached the theatre, Gen. Marshall said to the driver, Private Marcella Schaetz:

"After you park the car, come to the box office and there'll be a ticket for you."

WAC Marcella did as she was told. When she got to the box office, an usher said, "come this way, please," and led her to Gen. Marshall's box. She was only a private, but she saw the show from a place of honor between two generals, one being the Chief of Staff. She confesses she can't remember what the picture was about.

Pershing's Boy

Despite age and the busy whirl of life, Marshall has always kept up his friendship with General Pershing, his old commander and the man who started him up the ladder to fame. Every Sunday before the war got too tense, Marshall went out to Walter Reed Hospital to chat with his former chief. Pershing still believed he could win wars, and gave Marshall his opinion on various strategic problems. After each interview, Marshall rose and saluted.

"Thank you, General," he said.

"Thank you, General," was the reply.

Marshall Merry-Go-Round

Marshall has a "steel-trap mind," can ask 20 newsmen what their questions are, then, without taking notes, remember each question and answer it . . . . Marshall told visitors biggest change he would make in the State Department is in the foreign service. He left no doubt that he is down on wealthy bureaucrats . . . . Two groups which feared Marshall's appointment most were the British Foreign Office and the reactionary wing of the American foreign service. The State Department now has some streamlined, up-to-date diplomats, but the reactionary clique already has set wheels in motion to snarl up Marshall. They plan to keep him so busy with details of the forthcoming Moscow conference that he won't get a chance to take a real look at his department before going abroad. Once Marshall leaves for Moscow, he'll be embroiled for months, and the old guard won't have to worry . . . . One State Department hand pleased with Marshall's appointment is Undersecretary Dean Acheson, who wanted to resign but will stay on for six months or more if Marshall gives him a free hand at cleaning out deadwood. Truman sent a special emissary on the day he appointed Marshall to plead with Acheson to remain . . . . Acheson is looking forward to a Marshall-sponsored housecleaning. If it comes, he'll stay on.

Controversy Over Military Merger Hurts Prestige All Armed Services

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 — The most difficult problem to come before the new congress is the "merger" of the armed services.

Members of congress would prefer that the army, navy and air corps get together on a plan and save the legislators much perplexity.

Some efforts to obtain an agreement have been made informally between the War and Navy Departments. Progress has been made but ill-feeling has been fostered by the unwillingness of Army and Army Air Force officers to obey the request of President Truman that the subject be not aired in public. Navy officers are represented as feeling that they are "gagged" while the spokesmen of the other services are not restricted. Only last week a prominent air officer made a speech criticising by innuendo another branch of the service and arguing in favor of the "merger" plan from the War Department viewpoint.

No "merger" plan adopted by congress is going to be effective and the national defense of the United States is going to suffer if representatives of one armed service seek to take advantage of another. The spirit will not be one of cooperation but constant friction. With the public demand for tax reduction and the cutting of government expenses, it is natural that men in the armed services should be apprehensive about what will be done to the national defense budget. But it is more than ever necessary that interservice conflicts should not govern the settling of the budget.

All Services Favor Merger

The present situation about the whole problem is that the Navy, Army and Air Forces all favor a merger. The Navy has been reluctant to agree to any plan that did not delineate functions clearly, but the Navy does favor a merger plan and has offered several.

While the Navy favors the merger idea in principle, it has wanted to know how the principle would be applied in a concrete way. Last June President Truman made about the best outline of a merger plan that has been suggested but with two major mistakes in it.

One related to the consolidating of all services in a single department. This has been more or less superseded by a trend toward three separate departments or army, air forces and navy, respectively, but with an "office" of secretary of defense which it is hoped would never reach the proportions of a big department.

There is a vast difference between an "office" or "bureau" and an over-all "department." The President didn't go into detail, but if he meant that the secretary of defense would be in the cabinet and would coordinate the three departments the idea would fall on receptive ground generally.

Another mistake related to the question of airplanes for use of the Navy in connection with anti-submarine warfare and reconnaissance generally. The President's letter was not clear. The Army Air Forces have been seeking to get control of all airplanes but the Navy folks feel that the lessons of the last war taught conclusively that air pilots trained to work with and under the jurisdiction of ship commanders in a fleet operation are better than those who work independently from land bases under army auspices.

The point is vital to the future defense of a nation like the United States which has to depend on seapower, and it is surprising that the Army Air Forces haven't conceded this.

Under most of the merger plans proposed, the Army Air Forces would have a coordinate part with the other services and would, of course, be preponderantly concerned with air operations. Ground armies and amphibious operations would have their own tactical air forces, as was so effectively demonstrated in the Pacific War.

Air Forces Earn Position

The Army Air Forces made a wonderful record in strategic bombing and in air operations generally and have earned their right to be considered a coordinate department. But to demolish the Navy's own trained air force or to try to abolish the Marine Corps by merging it with the Army would weaken the defense of the United States by depriving this country of certain specialized operations that should remain under the Navy because the operations are primarily connected with ship tactics.

It would seem that the controversy over the merger has hurt the prestige of all the armed services somewhat because the truth is the Army, Navy and Air Forces did a better job of coordinating and "unification" in the war than would be suspected from the many extreme comments to the contrary being made in an effort to get approval for particular plans of consolidation.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

There's a tough guy in this town who crosses the street whenever he sees me coming. He could gobble been very careful not to take a mind to. But for the past eight years he's been very careful not to take mind to.

Here's why.

I met him back in 1939 when I was pasting together the Aquacade for the New York World's Fair. Out at Flushing Meadows I discovered some of the contracting work was being done by fellows who packed a pistol in the toolbox. These were the former booze- and bullet salesmen who had muscled into legitimate businesses after Repeal. Showmen had two choices. They could use these contractors, or spend the summer in Coney Island. Like everyody else on the Fairground, I kept my trap shut and did business with them.

Billy Rose

One of these contractors was a gent named Nicky Tullio. Nicky had a permanent case of five o'clock shadow. He was as nice to have around as black widow spider.

His workmen did some odd jobs for me. They hammered every nail as deliberately as if it were the last golden spike in the Union Pacific Railroad.

The day before the Fair opened, Nicky handed me a bill for $22,000. The job rated one zero less, but I wanted to open in one piece, so I handed him the dough and got the bill stamped "Paid."

The Aquacade that season played to five million customers. Maybe it was because I was selling most of my seats for forty cents—about what they got for a pat of butter over at the French Pavillion.

A week after we opened, Tullio got unhappy about receiving only ten times what he rated. He walked into the little office I had set up under the grandstand and handed me another bill for fifteen thousand dollars.

"What's that for?" I asked.

"Overtime and busted tools," he smiled. "You know, incidentals."

Well, those were the days when I thought I had the world by the tail on a downhill pull.

"You see that big swimming pool down there?" I cracked. "Why don't you jump in and hand the crowd a laugh?"

"Very funny joke," said Nicky. "Let's forget about the bill for now. I'll drop around in a month or so. I think your show's going to make a lot of money. Maybe you'll feel different."

I knew he wasn't kidding and would be around again. But I didn't lose any sleep over it. Not because I wasn't scared, but because I wasn't sleeping anyway. When you're running a stadium-size side show at a Fair, it takes about 28 out of every 24 hours to keep it tickng.

One Saturday nght, about a month later, I was hanging around the main entrance with a friend of mine from Washington. He had come up to take a look at my show. We were standing there watching a solid mile of forty-centses walking through the turnstiles, when I felt a tap on the elbow. It was Tullio. I asked my friend from Washington to pardon me for a minute and turned to talk to Nicky.

"Looks like you hit the jackpot," he said. "How about the fifteen grand you owe me?"

"I don't owe you a thing," I said.

"I say you do," said Nicky quietly, "and if you're a smart guy you'll pay up and save yourself an accident. Don't forget I know where to find you."

My friend from Washington stepped up behind Nicky, turned him around and said, "Don't forget I know where to find you, Mr. Tullio."

As I was saying, Nicky hasn't bothered me in the past eight years. You see, the friend from Washington who had come up to see the show was a gentleman named John Edgar Hoover.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Our Friends to South

It seems strange that this Northern continent of curs has remained for so long ignorant and unconcerned about the great nations below us—Mexico, Central and South America. Theirs, too, has been a long strife and struggle toward liberty and freedom.

The dominant figure in all South America is that of Simon Bolivar, known as the George Washington of South America. He was an admirer of Washington and of the United States, more than a hundred and fifty years ago, and like Washington, he was an aristocrat, who as a young man determined to free his country, Venezuela, from the cruel rule of the Spaniards. He sacrificed everything that he had to bring about this purpose. He suffered defeat after defeat, but kept coming back. He even led his ragged army across the Andes, awakening the spirit of freedom in all the countries south of his own.

It was Bolivar who undoubtedly inspired Martin to break the bonds of slavery that bound all Eastern South America to the Spanish. It was a long thankless struggle to many of these patroits—but victory finally was theirs. In the end, however, there were quarreling groups who sought to take advantage of Boliver's triumphs, as he died neglected, discouraged, and almost alone. In his last moments he was attended by an American doctor, who even gave him a clean shirt for his burial! But today he is the hero of millions. In Caracas, his former home, is a memorial to his memory that inspires all visitors. New York honored him with a great statue in Central Park, and his name today is full of lustre.

These friends of ours to the South are cultured, sensitive people, who want to be our friends. They feel our long neglect of them. We need them and they need us. We can co-operate. We can, and must, be friends. We have much that they lack, and they have much that we lack. There is no area of this earth so steeped in tradition, historic lore, and friendliness. No continent so romantic and rich in natural beauty. Let's learn to know these neighbors of ours!

Republicans Planning To Liberalize Social Security

Liberalization of Social Security appears to be one matter that will get considerable attention in the new Congress. When this brain-child of the New Deal was born, it was widely deplored by Republicans, but its sponsors and administrators see no likelihood of repeal or emasculating amendments. Instead Republicans are already talking of doing something very generous.

Most widespread is talk of increasing the benefits paid retired workers, and reducing the age at which benefits are payable from 65 to 60 years. Those proposals will be popular, not only with older persons, but with younger workers, many of whom are supporting their parents. If they come up for debate, Congress will be under considerable pressure to enact them. Any such proposals, however, should be given the most serious thought by both Congress and the people. In this matter, the nation is at an important crossroads.

Something, certainly, is going to have to be done about America's older people. They are increasing rapidly. By 1950 there will be 18,000,000 persons over 60. By 1980 they are expected to number more than 31,000,000, or more than a fifth of the population.

While they are increasing, their opportunities for self-support apparently are diminishing. They were employed in large numbers during the war, but now that the need for manpower is waning, employers again are showing a marked preference for younger workers. Two schools of thought on this question are before the nation—whether to go all-out on a Social Security program that will retire the older workers on fairly adequate incomes, or first make some serious attempt to provide employment for those who are able to work, and want to.

Observers during wartime found that many of the older workers are as efficient as younger persons. And George Lawton, specialist on problems of aging, declares in a new book that others, who may not be as efficient as they were in their 20's and 30's, still can do a satisfactory day's work if placed in the right positions. Of course, there are those who will argue that persons beyond 65 should be retired on an income that would provide adequate subsistence, and thereby release more jobs to the younger generation. One of the plans Republicans are considering is to increase the amount paid such persons, because they realize that, although living costs have advanced more than 50 percent in the past seven years the amount paid to beneficiaries of old-age insurance is what it was when the Social Security Act become operative in 1939.

It is agreed that any liberalization of benefits certainly should be accompanied by an increase in payroll deductions, so that the workers, and their employers, can pay for the benefits as they go along. Even with present benefits, such an increase is, some will argue, long overdue. Under the original provisions of the Social Security Act, the deductions would have amounted to 5 percent by now, but every Congress has frozen the rates, and they are still at the original 2 percent, shared by employer and employe. Senator Vandenberg has been the sponsor of this freeze, because he always felt the Social Security fund was large enough, measured by the amount of benefits paid.

Others have hesitated to increase the levy on workers so long as income tax payments have been so great, but with a reduction on the latter, now probable the lowering of that levy could be followed by an increase in Social Security Tax without lowering the take-home pay of the workers, and thereby making possible a liberalization of Social Security payments. It certainly would be the time to allow the increase in deductions to go through.

Republicans in Congress say they will get along nicely with the President if he doesn't adopt the Russian technique in using the veto.

Government Holds Its Own In Sale Of Bonds

In comparison with the huge volume of government saving bonds sold during the war years, the record for 1946 seems a trifle on the sickly side. For the year as a whole, the government did a little better than hold its own. Americans invested approximately $7,400,000,000 in government savings bonds, but they also cashed in bonds worth approximately $6,400,000,000.

In the Series E bond category, which is where most small investors put their funds, cash-ins exceeded new purchases for the year.

But, all things considered, this is a good record, and one which the Treasury is entitled to view with some satisfaction. No one expected war bond purchases to remain at war levels when the fighting was over. Sale of more than seven billion dollars worth of these bonds in a peacetime year is a remarkable record and one which shows that a great many Americans still appreciate the importance of thrift and realize that United States government bonds are the safest and best of all investments.

There are several factors which swelled the volume of bonds redeemed for cash during the past year. Great numbers of workers used up their reserves and had to cash in their bonds to feed their families during the long and costly strikes of 1946. Many individuals, living on fixed incomes, were severely pinched by rising living costs and felt compelled to turn in their bonds.

It is apparent also that a great deal of the heavy buying this past Christmas season was financed by war bond redemptions. But as long as new investments are greater than cash-ins and a balanced budget is in prospect, there is not too much for the Treasury to worry about.

America's egg surplus has reached 150,000,000 dozen, and a presidential election is still two years in the offing.

EARACHE is a common complaint particularly during the season when colds and contagious diseases are prevalent. The symptoms should not be disregarded, especially in children, as they may indicate something amiss in a vital area. Neglect often results in deafness which could have been prevented had the right steps been taken.

Thru examination, the exact source of trouble generally can be determined. The usual type of inflammation attacks the chamber on the inner side of the tympanum [drum] and the disorder is known as "otitis media:" Pus is present and as the secretion accumulates it presses not only on the membrane but other tissues. Until tension is relieved, throbbing is almost unbearable. Infections of this type usually occur in conjunction with a head cold, tonsilitis, sore throat, or during the course of influenza, scarlet fever, or measles. The bacteria on the infected throat find their way into the Eustachian tubes. Once the germs reach the acoustic apparatus they multiply and before long pus gathers.

Deafness may signify that invasion has taken place. In the majority, however, aching and a rise in temperature are noted. Physicians are aware of such a complication and, whenever fever returns in a person who has had a cold, a peek at the ear may reveal the origin hours before symptoms appear.

Since the advent of the sulfonamides and pencillin it is not always necessary to open the drum. The decision, however, is an individual problem which only the attending physician can make after inspecting the organ. Should the procedure be required, it is always advisable, for healing will follow within a few days and restoration of hearing in two weeks.

On the other hand, if the purulent material continues to collect, spontaneous rupture ensues. Repair is thus delayed and, in some instances, the opening may never close. Besides, if pressure from the secretion is sufficient to perforate the drum, there is danger that the hearing parts may be damaged permanently. Therefore incision should never be neglected if the wonder drugs fail to check infection.

Pain in this region is not necessarily a sign of ear disease. Because of the peculiar arrangement of the nerves in this locality, distress may be referred from infected tonsils of a swollen pharynx. For the same reason, soreness in the ears appears now and then subsequent to tonsillectomy. Dental caries is another possibility and sometimes an impacted wisdom tooth is to blame. Swollen neck glands or a stone in the parotid gland may likewise lead to ear discomfort.

Before daubing various preparation into the orifice to soothe aching, it is always best to have the cause ascertained. Any motorist knows that when the car knocks, adding oil may not solve the problem and a more expert opinion is often necessary. But let us not compare our bodies to articles which money can buy. Early diagnosis may preserve a priceless structure for which no duplicate is available.

CHILD WON'T EAT

Mrs. D. writes: How can a five-year-old child be induced to eat more.

REPLY

This is a long story, as it involves the attitude of the entire family. This is the finicky age and appetite is influenced by distractions, punishment, type of food, exercise, and a host of other conditions. If the lad is healthy and not losing weight, don't let it get you down.

HYDROTHERAPY

E. H. writes: What is a sitz bath?

REPLY

A hot bath where you sitz down in the tub with enough water to cover the hips. The procedure is helpful in pelvic infections and circulatory disturbances.

FIBROIDS

Mrs. M. writes: What are the symptoms of a fibroid tumor?

REPLY

These growths sometimes lead to menstrual difficulties or cause distress in the lower abdomen. When enlarged they sometimes cause pressure on nearby structures, such as the bladder, resulting in urinary disturbances.

GOHPER SUBWAY

To clear up the traffic problem and keep pedestrians from becoming extinct in Los Angeles the city is considering installing subways.

Of course there's nothing definite on it, but yesterday the mayor and 12 architects stood for seven hours watching a gopher hole and mumbling over the price of building material.

I hear they actually wanted to get gopher labor but the gophers said they were too busy working out their own housing shortage.

Of course the celebrities will find it inconvenient to sign autographs in them. The passengers will be packed so tight the stars won't be able to reach for their fountain pens.

And those people who are complaining about taxes now will have a real kick coming after the inception of subways. Then they will truly be in the hole.

Incidentally, they're also planning a complicated instrument for the people accustomed to California drivers. The subway stations will be equipped with special devices to dribble the passengers into the cars.

However, if they do install the subways, it will have one disastrous result. With no traffic problems about 200 gag writers will have to go back to their unemployment insurance.

NOT CHANGING HORSES

Two-Party System High In Strength Despite Wallace

By MARK SULLIVAN

Mr. Henry A. Wallace last Saturday night, on that excellent radio program "Meet the Press," said that this country does not now have a two-party political system, that what we have is one party. He meant, as listeners later gathered, that in his judgment both the old parties are alike, and that neither is the kind of party he wants, what he would call liberal.

Until one of the old parties is liberal, Mr. Wallace went on, there is not a real two-party system. Upon questioning by newsmen he said that unless one of the old parties adapts itself to Mr. Wallace's design, becomes liberal, it might be necessary to have a new party. Mr. Wallace said however that he personally does not favor or contemplate a new party at this time. From that, on infers, it must be that Mr. Wallace continues in his hope and effort to re-shape the Democratic Party to what he wants. That would be an extraordinary example of hope triumphing over experience. Domination of the Democratic Party by Mr. Wallace or his ideas is about the least foreseeable thing in politics.

Two-Party System Effective

In fact, dismissing Mr. Wallace's stipulation that one party must be liberal, that the two parties must have opposing ideologies and must contend with each other—dismissing all that, the American two-party system, is today exceptionally definite. It functions in an exceptionally striking and effective way. An example was seen last Saturday night, when a Democrat of the highest rank, Secretary of State Byrnes, spoke on the same stage with a Republican of corresponding rank, Senator Vandenberg; and the Democrat said of the Republican that the country's unity on foreign policy was made possible by Mr. Vandenberg's "whole-hearted and intelligent cooperation." Our foreign policy, Mr. Byrnes said, has not been that of a "political party" but "has been the policy of the United States."

A unity on foreign policy, more complete and definite and lasting longer than at any time in our history under similar circumstances, is but one example of the extra-ordinary picture Washington now presents. It is so novel and stiking that, when realized, it composes news of high importance.

There are two parties, almost exclusively two, for among the 531 members of the two branches of Congress only one bears a third party label, New York Representative Vito Marcantonio of the American Labor Party. In every preceding Congress during several decades there have been sizable representations of third parties. The two parties, contrary to a common impression, are very evenly balanced—in the Senate, the Republicans have 51, the Democrats 45. Ten years ago one party, the Republicans, had 17, the Democrats 75. That was when a one-party system seemed possible, and actually was expected by many. Emphasizing the present evenness of the parties, Congress is controlled by one party, the Presidency held by the other.

Spirit of Amity, Cooperation

Yet, with this evenness of party balance, the spirit in Washington, so definite that one can almost touch it, is amity and cooperation. There is amity between the President and Congress; to find any important differences between the two one needs to comb carefully, paragraph by paragraph, through the Democratic President's message to Congress and the utterances of Republican Party leaders, such as the comprehensive statement of policy given out by Senator Taft. Emphasizing non-partisanship, President Truman has appointed as the new Secretary of State one whose career has been remote from politics, a soldier, General George C. Mashall. With amity between the President and Congress, goes amity between the parties in Congress. Republican leaders such as Senators Taft and Vandenberg are esteemed by Democrats, just as Democratic leaders like Senators Byrd and George are esteemed by Republicans.

For the pervading good feeling, a reason is one immense common denominator. This is, defeat in the November election of a school of thought which was disliked by both parties, and, it is safe to say, was not cherished by President Truman, even though, preceding the election, he felt obliged to go along with it. Mr. Truman's actions and attitude since the election have been those of a man from whose shoulders an incubus has been lifted.

The defeat of the school of thought associated with Mr. Henry A. Wallace and left wing groups including the CIO Political Action Committee, has been followed by a split among them. At the organizing of one faction Mr. Wallace made a speech; to the organizing of the other Mrs. Roosevelt lent her presence. The left wing movement seems destined to fall into dissident splinter parties. At the same moment the two old parties, and the two-party system, are high in strength and confidence.

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Gen. Marshall Found Cheapest Thing In China Was Human Life; New Secretary Of State Says Worst Civilian Rule Is Better Than Best Military Rule

Says DREW PEARSON

(Editor's note—This is the third and last of Drew Pearson's penetrating personality sketches of the new Secretary of State.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—To get a full insight into the character of the new Secretary of State, it is necessary to know something of General Marshall's latest experiences in China.

Not many of his friends realize it, but Marshall for the most part enjoyed his tour of duty in China. He told visitors that it gave him time to think.

On the porch of his house in Nanking overlooking a flowery, walled-in garden, Marshall sat and philosophized about the Orient. In the distance he could see teeming, centuries-old Nanking and the tomb of China's great modern reformer, Sun Yat-sen.

Last summer, Marshall spent an evening talking with Postmaster General Bob Hannegan and Assistant Secretary of War Stuart Symington, who had carried a highly confidential message to Marshall from President Truman telling him to prepare to succeed Jimmie Byrnes as Secretary of State. What Marshall said that night was significant.

Going back over his life, he described his first tour of duty in the Philippines, even before World War I.

"I learned a lot from serving in the Philippines," Marshall said. "I learned that the worst civilian rule is preferable to the best military rule.

"The tragedy of China," he continued, "is that its cheapest commodity is human life. Everything else, clothes, food, land, raw materials—all are worth more than human life."

Moral Man Lags

Marshall expressed his unreserved contempt for the Kuomintang, the oligarchy which kept Chiang Kai-shek in power. A loose confederation of warlords, honest scholars, and large-scale financial manipulators—money lenders—who traded in human misery, was the way he described it. He was particularly bitter about the custom of "cumshaw" or "shakedown" prevalent all over China. Hannegan had already seen how five bribes were necessary to permit a peasant to visit a relative in a Nanking jail.

Marshall outlined his own views on what China needed as, first, a complete restoration of civilian rule; second, a broad educational program so that more of the people of China could choose their path to a better world; third, a national health and welfare program combined with national sports.

"In the Philippines," he declared, "I saw how competitive sports developed fair-minded cooperation and team play. We taught the Filipinos tennis. They mastered it easily and proved that all races have great capabilities in physical development if given the opportunity. Health is the great wealth of a nation."

Finally, Marshall said, China needs moral emancipation. It is a tragedy, he said, that scientific man is 100 years ahead of moral man, and that science is 150 years ahead of industrial man in many parts of the world—particularly China.

"Perhaps," said Marshall, "even I who have been round the world haven't realized how completely the world has shriveled. We've got to help all the peoples of the world or suffer ourselves. It's not a question of producing for their consumption. It's a question of letting them have a portion of our own civilization."

Marshall And WAC

It is easy to understand why General Marshall was shocked at the Chinese disregard for life, because, as Chief of Staff, he had great regard for the dignity of man. He was always thoughful for those who served under him.

One evening he invited Brig. Gen. Claude Adams to dinner at his home at Fort Myer, and afterward Marshall suggested they go to the movies at the Fort Myer theatre. The Chief of Staff was about to set out on foot when Gen. Adams said, "I've got a car here, with a WAC driver, and we might as well use it."

When they reached the theatre, Gen. Marshall said to the driver, Private Marcella Schaetz:

"After you park the car, come to the box office and there'll be a ticket for you."

WAC Marcella did as she was told. When she got to the box office, an usher said, "come this way, please," and led her to Gen. Marshall's box. She was only a private, but she saw the show from a place of honor between two generals, one being the Chief of Staff. She confesses she can't remember what the picture was about.

Pershing's Boy

Despite age and the busy whirl of life, Marshall has always kept up his friendship with General Pershing, his old commander and the man who started him up the ladder to fame. Every Sunday before the war got too tense, Marshall went out to Walter Reed Hospital to chat with his former chief. Pershing still believed he could win wars, and gave Marshall his opinion on various strategic problems. After each interview, Marshall rose and saluted.

"Thank you, General," he said.

"Thank you, General," was the reply.

Marshall Merry-Go-Round

Marshall has a "steel-trap mind," can ask 20 newsmen what their questions are, then, without taking notes, remember each question and answer it . . . . Marshall told visitors biggest change he would make in the State Department is in the foreign service. He left no doubt that he is down on wealthy bureaucrats . . . . Two groups which feared Marshall's appointment most were the British Foreign Office and the reactionary wing of the American foreign service. The State Department now has some streamlined, up-to-date diplomats, but the reactionary clique already has set wheels in motion to snarl up Marshall. They plan to keep him so busy with details of the forthcoming Moscow conference that he won't get a chance to take a real look at his department before going abroad. Once Marshall leaves for Moscow, he'll be embroiled for months, and the old guard won't have to worry . . . . One State Department hand pleased with Marshall's appointment is Undersecretary Dean Acheson, who wanted to resign but will stay on for six months or more if Marshall gives him a free hand at cleaning out deadwood. Truman sent a special emissary on the day he appointed Marshall to plead with Acheson to remain . . . . Acheson is looking forward to a Marshall-sponsored housecleaning. If it comes, he'll stay on.

Controversy Over Military Merger Hurts Prestige All Armed Services

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 — The most difficult problem to come before the new congress is the "merger" of the armed services.

Members of congress would prefer that the army, navy and air corps get together on a plan and save the legislators much perplexity.

Some efforts to obtain an agreement have been made informally between the War and Navy Departments. Progress has been made but ill-feeling has been fostered by the unwillingness of Army and Army Air Force officers to obey the request of President Truman that the subject be not aired in public. Navy officers are represented as feeling that they are "gagged" while the spokesmen of the other services are not restricted. Only last week a prominent air officer made a speech criticising by innuendo another branch of the service and arguing in favor of the "merger" plan from the War Department viewpoint.

No "merger" plan adopted by congress is going to be effective and the national defense of the United States is going to suffer if representatives of one armed service seek to take advantage of another. The spirit will not be one of cooperation but constant friction. With the public demand for tax reduction and the cutting of government expenses, it is natural that men in the armed services should be apprehensive about what will be done to the national defense budget. But it is more than ever necessary that interservice conflicts should not govern the settling of the budget.

All Services Favor Merger

The present situation about the whole problem is that the Navy, Army and Air Forces all favor a merger. The Navy has been reluctant to agree to any plan that did not delineate functions clearly, but the Navy does favor a merger plan and has offered several.

While the Navy favors the merger idea in principle, it has wanted to know how the principle would be applied in a concrete way. Last June President Truman made about the best outline of a merger plan that has been suggested but with two major mistakes in it.

One related to the consolidating of all services in a single department. This has been more or less superseded by a trend toward three separate departments or army, air forces and navy, respectively, but with an "office" of secretary of defense which it is hoped would never reach the proportions of a big department.

There is a vast difference between an "office" or "bureau" and an over-all "department." The President didn't go into detail, but if he meant that the secretary of defense would be in the cabinet and would coordinate the three departments the idea would fall on receptive ground generally.

Another mistake related to the question of airplanes for use of the Navy in connection with anti-submarine warfare and reconnaissance generally. The President's letter was not clear. The Army Air Forces have been seeking to get control of all airplanes but the Navy folks feel that the lessons of the last war taught conclusively that air pilots trained to work with and under the jurisdiction of ship commanders in a fleet operation are better than those who work independently from land bases under army auspices.

The point is vital to the future defense of a nation like the United States which has to depend on seapower, and it is surprising that the Army Air Forces haven't conceded this.

Under most of the merger plans proposed, the Army Air Forces would have a coordinate part with the other services and would, of course, be preponderantly concerned with air operations. Ground armies and amphibious operations would have their own tactical air forces, as was so effectively demonstrated in the Pacific War.

Air Forces Earn Position

The Army Air Forces made a wonderful record in strategic bombing and in air operations generally and have earned their right to be considered a coordinate department. But to demolish the Navy's own trained air force or to try to abolish the Marine Corps by merging it with the Army would weaken the defense of the United States by depriving this country of certain specialized operations that should remain under the Navy because the operations are primarily connected with ship tactics.

It would seem that the controversy over the merger has hurt the prestige of all the armed services somewhat because the truth is the Army, Navy and Air Forces did a better job of coordinating and "unification" in the war than would be suspected from the many extreme comments to the contrary being made in an effort to get approval for particular plans of consolidation.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

There's a tough guy in this town who crosses the street whenever he sees me coming. He could gobble been very careful not to take a mind to. But for the past eight years he's been very careful not to take mind to.

Here's why.

I met him back in 1939 when I was pasting together the Aquacade for the New York World's Fair. Out at Flushing Meadows I discovered some of the contracting work was being done by fellows who packed a pistol in the toolbox. These were the former booze- and bullet salesmen who had muscled into legitimate businesses after Repeal. Showmen had two choices. They could use these contractors, or spend the summer in Coney Island. Like everyody else on the Fairground, I kept my trap shut and did business with them.

Billy Rose

One of these contractors was a gent named Nicky Tullio. Nicky had a permanent case of five o'clock shadow. He was as nice to have around as black widow spider.

His workmen did some odd jobs for me. They hammered every nail as deliberately as if it were the last golden spike in the Union Pacific Railroad.

The day before the Fair opened, Nicky handed me a bill for $22,000. The job rated one zero less, but I wanted to open in one piece, so I handed him the dough and got the bill stamped "Paid."

The Aquacade that season played to five million customers. Maybe it was because I was selling most of my seats for forty cents—about what they got for a pat of butter over at the French Pavillion.

A week after we opened, Tullio got unhappy about receiving only ten times what he rated. He walked into the little office I had set up under the grandstand and handed me another bill for fifteen thousand dollars.

"What's that for?" I asked.

"Overtime and busted tools," he smiled. "You know, incidentals."

Well, those were the days when I thought I had the world by the tail on a downhill pull.

"You see that big swimming pool down there?" I cracked. "Why don't you jump in and hand the crowd a laugh?"

"Very funny joke," said Nicky. "Let's forget about the bill for now. I'll drop around in a month or so. I think your show's going to make a lot of money. Maybe you'll feel different."

I knew he wasn't kidding and would be around again. But I didn't lose any sleep over it. Not because I wasn't scared, but because I wasn't sleeping anyway. When you're running a stadium-size side show at a Fair, it takes about 28 out of every 24 hours to keep it tickng.

One Saturday nght, about a month later, I was hanging around the main entrance with a friend of mine from Washington. He had come up to take a look at my show. We were standing there watching a solid mile of forty-centses walking through the turnstiles, when I felt a tap on the elbow. It was Tullio. I asked my friend from Washington to pardon me for a minute and turned to talk to Nicky.

"Looks like you hit the jackpot," he said. "How about the fifteen grand you owe me?"

"I don't owe you a thing," I said.

"I say you do," said Nicky quietly, "and if you're a smart guy you'll pay up and save yourself an accident. Don't forget I know where to find you."

My friend from Washington stepped up behind Nicky, turned him around and said, "Don't forget I know where to find you, Mr. Tullio."

As I was saying, Nicky hasn't bothered me in the past eight years. You see, the friend from Washington who had come up to see the show was a gentleman named John Edgar Hoover.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Our Friends to South

It seems strange that this Northern continent of curs has remained for so long ignorant and unconcerned about the great nations below us—Mexico, Central and South America. Theirs, too, has been a long strife and struggle toward liberty and freedom.

The dominant figure in all South America is that of Simon Bolivar, known as the George Washington of South America. He was an admirer of Washington and of the United States, more than a hundred and fifty years ago, and like Washington, he was an aristocrat, who as a young man determined to free his country, Venezuela, from the cruel rule of the Spaniards. He sacrificed everything that he had to bring about this purpose. He suffered defeat after defeat, but kept coming back. He even led his ragged army across the Andes, awakening the spirit of freedom in all the countries south of his own.

It was Bolivar who undoubtedly inspired Martin to break the bonds of slavery that bound all Eastern South America to the Spanish. It was a long thankless struggle to many of these patroits—but victory finally was theirs. In the end, however, there were quarreling groups who sought to take advantage of Boliver's triumphs, as he died neglected, discouraged, and almost alone. In his last moments he was attended by an American doctor, who even gave him a clean shirt for his burial! But today he is the hero of millions. In Caracas, his former home, is a memorial to his memory that inspires all visitors. New York honored him with a great statue in Central Park, and his name today is full of lustre.

These friends of ours to the South are cultured, sensitive people, who want to be our friends. They feel our long neglect of them. We need them and they need us. We can co-operate. We can, and must, be friends. We have much that they lack, and they have much that we lack. There is no area of this earth so steeped in tradition, historic lore, and friendliness. No continent so romantic and rich in natural beauty. Let's learn to know these neighbors of ours!

Stocks Experience One Of Their Sharpest Drops Since November

NEW YORK, Jan. 13 (AP) — Stocks experienced one of their sharpest drops since early November today although late market support trimmed extreme setbacks in most cases.

The direction was downward from the start in lively dealings. There was a smattering of gainers at the close, but declines of one to four or more were widespread. Transfers of 1,500,000 shares compared with 1,060,000 Griday and were the largest since December 31.

Touching 1946-47 lows were Park and Tilford, off 2¼ at 47½, Twentieth Century-Fox 1½ at 31⅜, American Distilling one at 38½, International Telephone 1½ at 14¼ and Paramount Pictures five-eighths at 27.

On a few shares, Eastman Kodak yielded 7½ points at 215 and Dow Chemical seven at 166. Norfolk and Western was off 3½ at 277, Douglas Aircraft four at 70, Sante Fe 2¾ at 88¼, Goodrich two at 63, American Telephone 1⅝ at 171, Chrysler 1⅜ at 87⅝ and United States Steel 1⅛ at 69⅜.

Other casualties were Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Kennecott, American Can, du Pont, Union Carbide, United States Gypsum and Texas Company.

Schenley retrieved 1¾ points at 43½. Modest plus signs were retained by Southern Railway, Transcontinental and Western Air and Standard Oil (NJ).

Among Curb stumblers were Atlas Plywood, American Cyanamid, Catalin, Cities Service, Pantepec and Electric Bond and Share. Turnover here was 390,000 shares versus 360,000 in the preceding full session.

Bond were under moderate pressure most of the session in the market although some late bidding took the edge off the decline. Total sales of $5,510,000 were the best in nearly a week and compared with $4,220,000 Friday.

United States governments were narrowly lower in over-the-counter dealings with the Victory 2½s of '72-'67 off 2-32s at 102 26-32 bid.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

Red Blood Cells Must Be Kept Up If You Want To Feel Alive

Thousands Now Regaining Old Time Pep, Vigor and Drive By Releasing Vibrant Energy To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Overwork, undue worry, and lack of certain foods often reduces the red-blood strength—and starved, weak, puny blood just hasn't the power to keep up your energy and drive.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Stocks Experience One Of Their Sharpest Drops Since November

NEW YORK, Jan. 13 (AP) — Stocks experienced one of their sharpest drops since early November today although late market support trimmed extreme setbacks in most cases.

The direction was downward from the start in lively dealings. There was a smattering of gainers at the close, but declines of one to four or more were widespread. Transfers of 1,500,000 shares compared with 1,060,000 Griday and were the largest since December 31.

Touching 1946-47 lows were Park and Tilford, off 2¼ at 47½, Twentieth Century-Fox 1½ at 31¾, American Distilling one at 38½, International Telephone 1½ at 14¼ and Paramount Pictures five-eighths at 27.

On a few shares, Eastman Kodak yielded 7½ points at 215 and Dow Chemical seven at 166. Norfolk and Western was off 3½ at 277, Douglas Aircraft four at 70, Sante Fe 2¾ at 88¼, Goodrich two at 63, American Telephone 1⅝ at 171, Chrysler 1⅜ at 87¾ and United States Steel 1⅛ at 69⅝.

Other casualties were Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Kennecott, American Can, du Pont, Union Carbide, United States Gypsum and Texas Company.

Schenley retrieved 1¾ points at 43½. Modest plus signs were retained by Southern Railway, Transcontinental and Western Air and Standard Oil (NJ).

Among Curb stumblers were Atlas Plywood, American Cyanamid, Catalin, Cities Service, Pantepec and Electric Bond and Share. Turnover here was 390,000 shares versus 360,000 in the preceding full session.

Bond were under moderate pressure most of the session in the market although some late bidding took the edge off the decline. Total sales of $5,510,000 were the best in nearly a week and compared with $4,220,000 Friday.

United States governments were narrowly lower in over-the-counter dealings with the Victory 2½s of '72-'67 off 2-32s at 102 26-32 bid.

LaVale Club Plans 16th Anniversary, Sewing Meetings

The LaVale Homemakers Club formulated plans for its 16th birthday party, and discussed tentative plans for having two sewing meetings a month, at the meeting yesterday at the firemen's hall.

The party will be held February 10, in the forms of a covered dish luncheon, with Mrs. Florence Chandler, Nutrition chairman, in charge. Mrs. George Johnson, who has provided the cake each year, again volunteered to bake one. Each member is expected to bring a guest and a dish. There will be the meeting of the sewing group in the morning.

If the response to the newly organized sewing group continues to be so good, it was decided to hold two meetings a month. Seventeen members attended yesterday's session which was under the direction of Mrs. Donald Chenowith. Miss Maude A. Bean gave a demonstration on cutting out patterns and various ways of placing the pattern on the materials.

Six visitors were present, Mrs. William Dyche, Mrs. Louis W. Lippold, Mrs. S. T. Bell, Mrs. Mary Gates, Mrs. Shirley Short and Mrs. L. H. Shafferman, from Valley Road Club. The first three joined the club. Roll call on "Hints on new things for 1947," was answered by 33 members.

Following the flag salute, Mrs. Joseph Wheeler gave a short sketch of the life of Stephen Foster, and the group sang, "Old Folks At Home," accompanied by Mrs. Dudley Brown. Mrs. Wheeler spoke of the County Chorus and invited the club members to join and attend rehearsals the first Monday of each month. Routine reports were given and Mrs. John Spross was assisted by Mrs. Claude Jett in collecting Blue Cross and club dues. Miss Bean also spoke on the Homemakers 1947 theme, "Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World."

If You Plan To Buy A New Car

Here are two practical suggestions:

1. It will pay you to see your automobile dealer now

He can tell you more than anybody else about deliveries, models and prices. If you list your name with the dealer he will be glad to send you descriptive literature and other useful information as it is available. And when the cars are rolling off the assembly lines, your dealer will be in a position to get your car faster, if you cooperate with him now.

2. It will pay you to finance your new car purchase through The First National Bank

The First National Bank will finance your car at the low rate of $5 per hundred per year on the amount borrowed. Here's the way this plan works:

Suppose your car, including insurance, amounts to	$1200
Down payment of 1/3	400
Your loan amounts to	800
Your interest cost	40
Total amount borrowed	840
Payable in 12 monthly payments	70

The loan can be extended to a period of 15 months, if you desire. If you wish, you can include the cost of insurance in your loan. The only charge is $5 per hundred per year on the amount borrowed. We make no other charges. You can request of your dealer that your purchase be financed through this bank. You do not have to be a depositor in the First National Bank to take advantage of this plan.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 13—We're right back where we started from. Jean Arthur is expected to sign for "The Voice of the Turtle" at Warners tomorrow—that's how hot the deal is. The contracts are ready for her signature and unless the lady has another "I-don't-want-to-make-a-movie" spell, she's in, and she's perfect.

You should hear the raves from everyone who has seen Jean since she returned from Monterey over now wonderful she looks. In all fairness, her absence from the screen hasn't been all temperament—she's been quite a sick girl for almost two years. Now that's she's well, she must realize that even the most popular stars cannot remain off the screen too long and get away with it.

Barbara Britton

She certainly has two strong rooters in Alfred De Liagre, the producer, and John Van Cruten, the author, who thinks her little girl voice and marvelous sense of comedy perfectly fit the bill for their heroine.

Robert Donat wants to come back to this country to make some pictures come fireworks or high water.

The fireworks, of course, are those lawsuits in the form of conflicting contracts that have been hanging over his head ever since he left America. Donat is supposed to have agreements with both Eddie Small and Warners, either (or both) being able to clamp resrictions on him if he tried to work elsewhere.

But much water and a war have gone by since Donat made his American movies and bitterness has a way of dying out with time. Anyway, he has told Phil Berg he would like to come here and there's no reason why the contract tangles could not be worked out.

This little story brought me up sharply:

Several weeks went by and then came the reply: "Those notices were all very nice. But it would have been wonderful if you had sent a few loaves of bread instead."

Far too true to be amusing. Hunger and want are still stalking the world and we, in this country, should give thanks every day that we have so much.

Roy Rogers, who is really very shy and diffident, wanted very much to go to the Atwater Kent party, to which all the radio artists were invited to meet Florence Somers, radio editor.

So he asked if he could go with me. When he called for me, I scarcely recognized Roy in his tuxedo, I had become so accustomed to his cowboy regalia.

He looked very nice, and I was very proud of my escort. We went on to Cobina Wright Sr.'s party, which was quite an evening for Roy, who doesn't go in for the Hollywood social whirl.

Chatter in Hollywood: The so beautiful Barbara Britton expects a baby in June. She has just revealed that interesting fact to her bosses Bill Thomas and Bill Pine. But she will finish her current picture, "Albuquerque", in which she is starred, and which will be completed by the first of April.

In private life Barbara is married to Dr. Gene Czukor, and she's very happy over the expected arrival.

Marlene Dietrich is in for a disappointment when she gets back to Paris.

Jean Gabin, with whom she made her last picture and who was her best friend for so long, is getting married. Jean has picked himself out a French actress. Gabin wrote several friends, telling them of his plans.

Marlene told me that she and Gabin had buried the hatchet and that they were going to do another picture together.

She's now on the Queen Elizabeth and when she gets to Paris she'll hear that lines have been forming a block long for her latest picture with Gabin, "Martin Roumagnac". It also received wonderful notices from the French critics

Ilona Massey is in line to become one of California's big business women. She and her fiance, Ray B. Kurtz have patents pending in Washington on a vitamin vending machine—getting your pills out of a slot machine in other words—which will be manufactured under the name of K. M. Products Products Corporation.

The machines will be placed in factories, schools, soda fountains and other public places and at the price of two pills for five cents and considering how vitamin-conscious America is, this should run into big chips for Ilona and her beau.

Mr. and Mrs. William Perlberg, who own the beautiful painting, were asked to loan it, and they very gladly did so. It is called "A Portrait of Bernadette", and is, so far as any of us know, the only portrait of a motion picture actress ever to be exhibited there.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Mrs. Walter Lang, "Fieldsy" to most of us in Hollywood, is still a very sick girl. She's in the Good Samaritan Hospital, but with her great courage and stamina, we all feel that she'll be home again with Walter and Little Richard soon. . . . The Skinny Ennis' have filed a petition with a Texas orphanage for the adoption of a baby boy. They have been married six years. . . . Joe E. Brown's little girl, Mary, who was ill for so long, was well enough to go stepping at the Biltmore Bowl with Roddy McDowell. . . . Sympathy goes to David Lewis in the sudden death of his father. David was devoted to his parents. . . . That was really an English accent Faye Roosevelt had in the newsreel showing her and Elliott stepping off the plane. Not a bit like the one she had in Hollywood, I might add. . . . Maureen O'Hara is opening a store in West Los Angeles to sell imported linens and antiques. Her mother and brother will do the buying for her in Dublin. . . Leo McCarey won't say who it is, but a friend of his wife's called the other day and said she wanted to nominate her chiseling husband for the role of the snake in "Adam and Eve." . . . Norma Hall Netcher — and we haven't heard from her in a long time—with her husband, Robert Livingstone, dining at the Seacombers. Sitting not far away was Brian Donlevy, all by his lonesome. He's really carrying the torch for his blonde Margie. I wish these two would reconcile. . . .Michael Redgrave arrives in a day or two for his appointment with Fritz Lang. . . Ivor Novelli has rented Glady Cooper's house in Beverly Hills for his vacation here. . . . Ruth Warwick has just been gifted with a diamond and ruby studded wristwatch by Merrill Pye. Looks very much as if it may be an engagement. . . . Ed Gardner is the guest of honor at the Poor Richard Club in Philadelphia next Friday night. This is an invitation much coveted. Last year Bob Hope was given the honor. . . .Beatrice Lillie, who has arrived on the coast, was accompanied by an admirer, Eddie Duryea Dowling, the stage director—not the Eddie Dowling of "Glass Menagerie" fame. . .The first friars dinner in Hollywood will be given at the Savoy Wednesday night. There will be 400 there, including Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, Robert Taylor, and the rest of the cream of the gents.

That's all today.

If You Plan To Buy A New Car

Here are two practical suggestions:

1. It will pay you to see your automobile dealer now

He can tell you more than anybody else about deliveries, models and prices. If you list your name with the dealer he will be glad to send you descriptive literature and other useful information as it is available. And when the cars are rolling off the assembly lines, your dealer will be in a position to get your car faster, if you cooperate with him now.

2. It will pay you to finance your new car purchase through The First National Bank

The First National Bank will finance your car at the low rate of $5 per hundred per year on the amount borrowed. Here's the way this plan works:

Suppose your car, including insurance, amounts to $1200
Down payment of 1/3 400
Your loan amounts to 800
Your interest cost 40
Total amount borrowed 840
Payable in 12 monthly payments 70

The loan can be extended to a period of 15 months, if you desire. If you wish, you can include the cost of insurance in your loan. The only charge is $5 per hundred per year on the amount borrowed. We make no other charges. You can request of your dealer that your purchase be financed through this bank. You do not have to be a depositor in the First National Bank to take advantage of this plan.

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 13—We're right back where we started from. Jean Arthur is expected to sign for "The Voice of the Turtle" at Warners tomorrow—that's how hot the deal is. The contracts are ready for her signature and unless the lady has another "I-don't-want-to-make-a-movie" spell, she's in, and she's perfect.

You should hear the raves from everyone who has seen Jean since she returned from Monterey over how wonderful she looks. In all fairness, her absence from the screen hasn't been all temperament—she's been quite a sick girl for almost two years. Now that's she's well, she must realize that even the most popular stars cannot remain off the screen too long and get away with it.

Barbara Britton

She certainly has two strong rooters in Alfred De Liagre, the producer, and John Van Cruten, the author, who thinks her little girl voice and marvelous sense of comedy perfectly fit the bill for their heroine.

Robert Donat wants to come back to this country to make some pictures come fireworks or high water.

The fireworks, of course, are those lawsuits in the form of conflicting contracts that have been hanging over his head ever since he left America. Donat is supposed to have agreements with both Eddie Small and Warners, either (or both) being able to clamp resrictions on him if he tried to work elsewhere.

But much water and a war have gone by since Donat made his American movies and bitterness has a way of dying out with time. Anyway, he has told Phil Berg he would like to come here and there's no reason why the contract tangles could not be worked out.

Several weeks went by and then came the reply: "Those notices were all very nice. But it would have been wonderful if you had sent a few loaves of bread instead."

Far too true to be amusing. Hunger and want are still stalking the world and we, in this country, should give thanks every day that we have so much.

Roy Rogers, who is really very shy and diffident, wanted very much to go to the Atwater Kent party, to which all the radio artists were invited to meet Florence Somers, radio editor.

So he asked if he could go with me. When he called for me, I scarcely recognized Roy in his tuxedo, I had become so accustomed to his cowboy regalia.

He looked very nice, and I was very proud of my escort. We went on to Cobina Wright Sr.'s party, which was quite an evening for Roy, who doesn't go in for the Hollywood social whirl.

Chatter in Hollywood: The so beautiful Barbara Britton expects a baby in June. She has just revealed that interesting fact to her bosses Bill Thomas and Bill Pine. But she will finish her current picture, "Albuquerque", in which she is starred, and which will be completed by the first of April.

Jean Gabin, with whom she made her last picture and who was her best friend for so long, is getting married. Jean has picked himself out a French actress. Gabin wrote several friends, telling them of his plans.

Marlene told me that she and Gabin had buried the hatchet and that they were going to do another picture together.

She's now on the Queen Elizabeth and when she gets to Paris she'll hear that lines have been forming a block long for her latest picture with Gabin, "Martin Roumagnac". It also received wonderful notices from the French critics

Ilona Massey is in line to become one of California's big business women. She and her fiance, Ray B. Kurtz have patents pending in Washington on a vitamin vending machine—getting your pills out of a slot machine in other words—which will be manufactured under the name of K. M. Products Products Corporation.

The machines will be placed in factories, schools, soda fountains and other public places and at the price of two pills for five cents and considering how vitamin-conscious America is, this should run into big chips for Ilona and her beau.

Mr. and Mrs. William Perlberg, who own the beautiful painting, were asked to loan it, and they very gladly did so. It is called "A Portrait of Bernadette", and is, so far as any of us know, the only portrait of a motion picture actress ever to be exhibited there.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Mrs. Walter Lang, "Fieldsy" to most of us in Hollywood, is still a very sick girl. She's in the Good Samaritan Hospital, but with her great courage and stamina, we all feel that she'll be home again with Walter and Little Richard soon. . . . The Skinny Ennis' have filed a petition with a Texas orphanage for the adoption of a baby boy. They have been married six years. . . . Joe E. Brown's little girl, Mary, who was ill for so long, was well enough to go stepping at the Biltmore Bowl with Roddy McDowell. . . . Sympathy goes to David Lewis in the sudden death of his father. David was devoted to his parents. . . . That was really an English accent Faye Roosevelt had in the newsreel showing her and Elliott stepping off the plane. Not a bit like the one she had in Hollywood, I might add. . . . Maureen O'Hara is opening a store in West Los Angeles to sell imported linens and antiques. Her mother and brother will do the buying for her in Dublin. . . .Leo McCarey won't say who it is, but a friend of his wife's called the other day and said she wanted to nominate her chiseling husband for the role of the snake in "Adam and Eve." . . . Norma Hall Netcher — and we haven't heard from her in a long time—with her husband, Robert Livingstone, dining at the Seacombers. Sitting not far away was Brian Donlevy, all by his lonesome. He's really carrying the torch for his blonde Margie. I wish these two would reconcile. . . .Michael Redgrave arrives in a day or two for his appointment with Fritz Lang. . . Ivor Novelli has rented Glady Cooper's house in Beverly Hills for his vacation here. . . . Ruth Warwick has just been gifted with a diamond and ruby studded wristwatch by Merrill Pye. Looks very much as if it may be an engagement. . . . Ed Gardner is the guest of honor at the Poor Richard Club in Philadelphia next Friday night. This is an invitation much coveted. Last year Bob Hope was given the honor. . . .Beatrice Lillie, who has arrived on the coast, was accompanied by an admirer, Eddie Duryea Dowling, the stage director—not the Eddie Dowling of "Glass Menagerie" fame. . .The first friars dinner in Hollywood will be given at the Savoy Wednesday night. There will be 400 there, including Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, Robert Taylor, and the rest of the cream of the gents.

Buddy Walker Stops Riley In Seventh Round

BALTIMORE, Jan. 13 (AP) — Buddy Walker, negro heavyweight from Columbus, O., scored a technical knockout over Odell Riley, Detroit, in the seventh round of a scheduled 10-round fight feature at the Coliseum tonight.

Riley, who weighed 194 to Walker's 201½, won the first round, but was dumped on the floor for an eight-count in the second. The next round was fought on even terms, but Riley opened a cut over Walker's eye in the fourth session and it looked for a time as if the fight would have to be stopped at that point.

However, Walker kept going, although he was bleeding profusely and gave Riley such a working over in the fifth and sixth that Odell was ripe for the kill by the seventh.

Woodruff Will Essay Comeback January 24

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13 (AP)—Long Johnny Woodruff, the University of Pittsburgh's 1936 Olympic half-mile champion, will try a comeback in the Philadelphia Inquirer mile run Jan. 24—and he hopes it may lead to a shot at another Olympic crown in 1948.

The elongated negro with the space eating stride has not run an important race since 1940, although in 1941 and 1942 he led Coast Artillery outfits to service victories in the Penn Relays. He has been conditioning himself in New York, where he is a social investigator for the New York Welfare Bureau.

Glenn Davis' Mother Leans Toward Baseball

During his recent holiday visit, Glenn and his family discussed at length—without making any commitments—the various professional grid and baseball offers which the Army star already has received.

His mother leaned in favor of baseball.

"In pro football," observed Mrs. Davis, "just look at all those great big men who will be playing against you."

"Yes, Mom," Glenn is said to have replied, "but look at all the great big men who'll be protecting me."

Joe Tinker Will Have Left Leg Amputated

ORLANDO, Fla., Jan. 13. (AP)—Joe Tinker, former Chicago Cub shortstop who helped make the Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance infield combination one of the most famous in baseball, entered Orange Memorial Hospital tonight to await a leg amputation.

Tinker, now 66, is scheduled to have his left leg removed at mid-thigh Thursday. The pending operation became necessary when a foot infection and poor circulation in the leg resulted in a gangnerous condition.

Bi-State Baseball Loop Will Meet On January 19

The Bi-State Baseball League will discuss reorganization plans and elect officers at a meeting to be held at 2 p. m. Sunday, January 19, at the Frostburg American Legion Home, it was announced last night by Carl "Pete" Dicken, secretary-treasurer.

Dicken said that all teams now holding franchises—Queen City Brewers, Centerville, Lonaconing, Westvaco, Midland, Frostburg, Barton, and Romney — must have representatives at the session in order to retain membership.

Nierman's vs. B. & O. (9:15)

First Methodist passers outlasted Henry Hart Post, VFW, in an extra-period tussle last night to take over undisputed possession of third place in the Central YMCA Senior Basketball League. The score was 33-28.

The figures were deadlocked 28-28 at the end of the regulation contest and in the overtime stanza, Don Crabtree scored a basket with two minutes remaining, Phil Lucas converted a free throw and Linn Robinette made a long one with seconds to go.

With ten seconds of the fourth period remaining, Phil Lucas, First Methodist forward, tallied a fielder to send the battle into the extra frame. He was the game's high scorer with 11 points. Hixon and Barnes each had eight markers for the VFW.

First Methodist was in front 8-7 at the quarter but trailed 19-11 at the half. At the end of the third round, VFW held a 24-15 margin but in the final stanza, First Methodist outscored the Vets 13 to four to tie the figures. The VFW failed to make a point in the extra period.

East-West Football Associate Dies

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 13 (AP)—Quay Jones of Johnstown, Pa., for years closely associated with the annual Shrine East-West football game at San Francisco, died last night at a Hollywood hotel, apparently from a heart attack. He was about 58.

Coach Andy Kerr of Colgate, for many years mentor of the East team, was with Jones when he died. The two, with Mrs. Kerr, were en route east following the New Year's Day game at San Francisco.

"My husband went with him to his room at the hotel and was with him when he died a short time later," Mrs. Kerr said.

Committee May Run Southern Association

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 13 (AP) — If Southern Baseball Association directors fail to agree on a new president at their meeting in Birmingham Wednesday, a three-man committee probably will be set up to run the league until a top executive can be chosen.

This plan appeared in high favor as most club executives said they'd like to "explore the field thoroughly" before selecting a successor to Billy Evans.

Since the resignation last month, not one candidate for the presidency of the class AA circuit has come to the front.

"It looks as if every club in the league has a different man for the job," one director commented.

Athletics Will Play 30 Exhibition Games

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13 (AP) — The Philadelphia Athletics will play a 30-game spring exhibition schedule, opening March 11 against the Pittsburgh Pirates and closing April 13 against the Philadelphia Phillies.

Seven games will be played with both the Pirates and the St. Louis Browns, five with the Boston Braves, two with the Washington Senators, four with the Phillies, one with the Baltimore Orioles and four with Savannah, Ga.

TIGER A. C. MEETING

The Tiger Athletic Club boxing team will hold a meeting Wednesday evening, at 7:30 o'clock at the club. All members are urged be at the barber shop.

Gus Dorazio Sentenced To Year And Day In Prison

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13 (AP)—Former Heavyweight Boxer Gus Dorazio today was given a year and a day in prison for falsely representing himself as a war worker to evade the draft.

Because the fighter has been "a good father and a good provider for his family," Federal Judge Guy K. Bard said he reduced the sentence. He originally had a two-year sentence "in mind," he said.

J. Edgar Hoover, FBI Chief, Calls For Clean Sports

By BRACK CURRY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said today that promoters and athletes have a "sacred duty" to keep sports clean and Rep. Hebert (D-La.) introduced a measure to make bribery of players or officials a federal offense.

Hoover expressed the view it is up to the promoters and performers to "clean house and keep it clean themselves. He told an interviewer that legislation "should be a matter of last resort and should be enacted only if absolutely necessary."

Measure Provides Jail, Fine

Hebert said in a statement that "sports is big business and the public must be protected from the fixers, the chiselers and the grafters." His measure would provide a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and $10,000 fine for bribery or attempted bribery.

It was introduced, he said, as a result of the scandal involving the conviction of Alvin Paris, of New York, for attempting to rig the National Football League's championship playoff. League Commissioner Bert Bell announced last weekend the professional group would seek federal, state and local legislation.

Promoters' Responsibility

The FBI Director said a "definite and determined effort" should be made by "those directly responsible for the development of sporting events, and the participants of athletic contests, to keep sports above reproach." And he added:

"They will be the first to suffer once the gamblers are able to fix athletic contests. It is their responsibility to clean house and keep it clean. And it is just as important that it appear honest as well as actually be honest and unsullied."

Nucleus Of Athletics Sign New Contracts

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13 — Three veteran players around whom Connie Mack hopes to rebuild his Philadelphia Athletics—Outfielder Sam Chapman, Catcher Warren (Buddy) Rosar and Pitcher Phil Marchildon—were reported in the 1947 fold today by Assistant Manager Earle Mack.

Mack said the three players — considered the backbone of the club—had agreed to terms and that their singned documents are on the way to Shibe Park. Mack added that he anticipated no difficulty with any of the players this year because of generous increases granted.

1952 Olympic Games Are Sought For U. S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP) — An effort to bring the 1952 Olympic games to the United States was started in Congress today.

Rep. Youngblood (R-Mich) introduced a resolution to extend a formal invitation to the international Olympic Committee which will meet in Stockholm in mid-June.

The United States Olympic Committee already has decided to bid for the 1952 meet, Youngblood said, and he wants Congress to join in the invitation.

Youngblood said Detroit civic leaders hope the games will be held there and will send representatives to Stockholm "to make a strong bid." Los Angeles and Minneapolis also are contenders.

Wrestling Returns To WVU Program

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 13 (AP)—Wrestling will return to the West Virginia University sports program tomorrow when practice begins at the field house for the first Mountaineer mat team since 1942, Athletic Director Roy M. Hawley said.

Hawley added that the wrestlers probably will have a schedule of about four matches, with the first probably on January 29 when West Virginia and Waynesburg meet here in basketball.

Mrs. A. J. Bruno's Can Double was unbeaten in his five 1946 starts.

Notre Dame President Defends Irish Eleven

By JERRY LISKA

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 13. (AP) —Notre Dame's Fighting Irish "make no apologies for wanting winners," Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C. S. C. university president, declared tonight in a challenge of "so-called reformers" of collegiate football.

Father Cavanaugh, in an address prepared for a testimonial banquet for Notre Dame's mythical national championship grid squad, made no mention of the "purity code" adopted last week by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, but "frankly" asserted:

"True reform in athletics will not be accomplished by the mere publishing of noble, high-sounding codes which are often hypocritically evaded in actual practice."

Notre Dame Is Defended

He added, however, that "to all honest men who are seriously interested in the betterment of athletics I say, count on Notre Dame's support."

Regarding schedule boycotts, the nub of the NCAA's proposed housecleaning, Father Cavanaugh said Notre Dame would adhere to any agreement on "practical" athletic standards, provided it has a "decent corollary—that no institution observing these standards will be excluded from competition."

Obviously defending Notre Dame, Father Cavanaugh added that reform could not be achieved, either, "by innuendo and insinuation, by sly and indirect criticism directed at this or that institution, nor by the constant juxtaposition of two words, 'winning' and 'de-emphasis,' as if winning had to be de-emphasized rather than the dishonesty and real abuses that are supposed to exist in some quarters connected with football."

He described as wearisome "the familiar voices raised again of the so-called reformers.

Refers To "Break" With Army

"The type I refer to are those who play with the question of football for public consumption, who seem to say that an indefinable something has to be done in athletics in a way nobody knows how, at a time nobody knows when, in places nobody knows where, to accomplish nobody knows what."

Saying "the air is still filled with speculation about the interruption in the Army-Notre Dame series," Father Cavanaugh added that he wanted it known "that the danger of gamblers getting to Notre Dame or Army players had nothing to do with the rupture of the relationship."

Father Cavanaugh said no further elaboration on the reasons originally given by both schools for the break was necessary, but that Notre Dame's faculty wanted "to express publicly that no squad of Notre Dame men has ever better deserved our respect and confidence" than the 1946 team.

Warming up to Notre Dame's 1946 record of eight victories and a scoreless tie with Army, Father Cavanaugh asserted that "teams which show strength are not, ipso facto, to be suspected of malpractices."

COLLEGE GRID STARS TO PLAY ON COAST

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 13 (AP) — Plans for a football game Jan. 26 between College All-Stars and Pacific Coast League professionals at Gilmore Stadium were announced yesterday by a group of sportsmen including heavyweight Champion Joe Louis.

Among the college players the group said it had lined up were Charley Trippi of Georgia, Alex Agase of Illinois; Vaughn Mancha, Alabama; Ernie Case and Burr Baldwin, UCLA; and John Ferraro, Southern California.

Buddy Young, of Illinois, also was named as a possibility, but close observers discounted this because of Young's interest in competing in the 1948 Olympics.

"Ced" Drew Says He Will Coach Alabama Eleven

OXFORD, Miss., Jan. 13 (AP) — Harold "Ced" Drew says he is resigning after one season as head football coach at Mississippi to take over Alabama's grid machine from the ailing Frank Thomas.

The 52-year-old Drew, who was an assistant to Thomas at Alabama for 12 campaigns, announced today he had been "approached" by Alabama officials but added that nothing definite had been agreed. He said, however, that he would ask the University of Mississippi Athletic Committee to release him from his contract which has two more years to run.

Chairman Martin Miller, of the Board of Trustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning, denied a report the board is planning to meet next Monday to act on Drew's resignation.

"The next meeting of the trustees will be on January 24," Miller said at the University of Mississippi where he went as soon as he learned of Drew's resignation.

"There won't be any special meeting before that and that meeting isn't called to act on Red Drew's resignation. Red Drew isn't that important to the board."

At Tuscaloosa, Ala., Thomas said he had "talked informally" with Drew about the possibility of taking over the job there. Thomas, head coach of the Crimson Tide for 15 seasons, has been in bad health for several months.

There have been repeated rumors that he would become athletic director while another man assumed the more active duties of head football coach.

On the surface, Drew's record of two victories and seven defeats with Ole Miss last season would seem like the kind to arouse the alumni against him, rather than to gain him a job handling the usually Mighty Tide.

But one of the victories was over Arkansas Southwest Conference champions.

Ced fielded a scrappy, interesting team—and he had not been expected to accomplish much with the material on hand.

WVU, Penn State Gridders To Clash

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 13 (AP)—West Virginia University will resume gridiron relations with Penn State on October 25 at State College, Pa., Roy M. Hawley, Mountaineer athletic director, announced today.

The announcement of the contest, the first between the two schools since West Virginia copped an exciting 28-27 victory in 1944, was made simultaneously by Penn State officials.

The October 25 date is the third officially announced for the Mountaineers next fall. They meet Washington and Lee in Charleston October 4 and Pittsburgh at Pittsburgh in their final game November 29.

Although there have been no definite commitments as yet, it is understood here that home-and-home game arrangements also will bring Kentucky, Virginia and Temple to Morgantown this year.

Hawley has indicated that he hopes to set up a 10-game schedule, with Maryland, Syracuse, Colgate, West Virginia Wesleyan, Waynesburg and New York University being considered for the four remaining spots.

Penn State announced today a nine-game grid slate, opening against Washington State in the first contest between the Nittany Lions and a Pacific Coast team since the 1923 Rose Bowl game.

The Penn State schedule: Sept. 20, Washington State at Hershey; Oct. 4, Bucknell at home; Oct. 11, Fordham at New York; Oct. 18, Syracuse at home; Oct. 25, West Virginia at home; Nov. 1, Colgate at home; Nov. 8, Temple at Philadelphia; Nov. 15, Navy at Baltimore; Nov. 22, Pitt at Pittsburgh.

Buddy Walker Stops Riley In Seventh Round

Riley, who weighed 194 to Walker's 201½, won the first round, but was dumped on the floor for an eight-count in the second. The next round was fought on even terms, but Riley opened a cut over Walker's eye in the fourth session and it looked for a time as if the fight would have to be stopped at that point.

However, Walker kept going, although he was bleeding profusely and gave Riley such a working over in the fifth and sixth that Odell was ripe for the kill by the seventh.

Woodruff Will Essay Comeback January 24

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13 (AP)—Long Johnny Woodruff, the University of Pittsburgh's 1936 Olympic half-mile champion, will try a comeback in the Philadelphia Inquirer mile run Jan. 24—and he hopes it may lead to a shot at another Olympic crown in 1948.

The elongated negro with the space eating stride has not run an important race since 1940, although in 1941 and 1942 he led Coast Artillery outfits to service victories in the Penn Relays. He has been conditioning himself in New York, where he is a social investigator for the New York Welfare Bureau.

Glenn Davis' Mother Leans Toward Baseball

During his recent holiday visit, Glenn and his family discussed at length—without making any commitments—the various professional grid and baseball offers which the Army star already has received.

His mother leaned in favor of baseball.

"In pro football," observed Mrs. Davis, "just look at all those great big men who will be playing against you."

"Yes, Mom," Glenn is said to have replied, "but look at all the great big men who'll be protecting me."

Joe Tinker Will Have Left Leg Amputated

ORLANDO, Fla., Jan. 13. (AP)—Joe Tinker, former Chicago Cub shortstop who helped make the Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance infield combination one of the most famous in baseball, entered Orange Memorial Hospital tonight to await a leg amputation.

Tinker, now 66, is scheduled to have his left leg removed at mid-thigh Thursday. The pending operation became necessary when a foot infection and poor circulation in the leg resulted in a gangnerous condition.

Bi-State Baseball Loop Will Meet On January 19

The Bi-State Baseball League will discuss reorganization plans and elect officers at a meeting to be held at 2 p. m. Sunday, January 19, at the Frostburg American Legion Home, it was announced last night by Carl "Pete" Dicken, secretary-treasurer.

Dicken said that all teams now holding franchises—Queen City Brewers, Centerville, Lonaconing, Westvaco, Midland, Frostburg, Barton, and Romney — must have representatives at the session in order to retain membership.

East-West Football Associate Dies

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 13 (AP)—Quay Jones of Johnstown, Pa., for years closely associated with the annual Shrine East-West football game at San Francisco, died last night at a Hollywood hotel, apparently from a heart attack. He was about 58.

Coach Andy Kerr of Colgate, for many years mentor of the East team, was with Jones when he died. The two, with Mrs. Kerr, were en route east following the New Year's Day game at San Francisco.

"My husband went with him to his room at the hotel and was with him when he died a short time later," Mrs. Kerr said.

Committee May Run Southern Association

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 13 (AP) — If Southern Baseball Association directors fail to agree on a new president at their meeting in Birmingham Wednesday, a three-man committee probably will be set up to run the league until a top executive can be chosen.

This plan appeared in high favor as most club executives said they'd like to "explore the field thoroughly" before selecting a successor to Billy Evans.

Since the resignation last month, not one candidate for the presidency of the class AA circuit has come to the front.

"It looks as if every club in the league has a different man for the job," one director commented.

Athletics Will Play 30 Exhibition Games

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13 (AP) — The Philadelphia Athletics will play a 30-game spring exhibition schedule, opening March 11 against the Pittsburgh Pirates and closing April 13 against the Philadelphia Phillies.

Seven games will be played with both the Pirates and the St. Louis Browns, five with the Boston Braves, two with the Washington Senators, four with the Phillies, one with the Baltimore Orioles and four with Savannah, Ga.

TIGER A. C. MEETING

The Tiger Athletic Club boxing team will hold a meeting Wednesday evening, at 7:30 o'clock at the club. All members are urged be at the barber shop.

Gus Dorazio Sentenced To Year And Day In Prison

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13 (AP)—Former Heavyweight Boxer Gus Dorazio today was given a year and a day in prison for falsely representing himself as a war worker to evade the draft.

Because the fighter has been "a good father and a good provider for his family," Federal Judge Guy K. Bard said he reduced the sentence. He originally had a two-year sentence "in mind," he said.

J. Edgar Hoover, FBI Chief, Calls For Clean Sports

By BRACK CURRY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said today that promoters and athletes have a "sacred duty" to keep sports clean and Rep. Hebert (D-La.) introduced a measure to make bribery of players or officials a federal offense.

Hoover expressed the view it is up to the promoters and performers to "clean house and keep it clean themselves. He told an interviewer that legislation "should be a matter of last resort and should be enacted only if absolutely necessary."

Measure Provides Jail, Fine

Hebert said in a statement that "sports is big business and the public must be protected from the fixers, the chiselers and the grafters." His measure would provide a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and $10,000 fine for bribery or attempted bribery.

It was introduced, he said, as a result of the scandal involving the conviction of Alvin Paris, of New York, for attempting to rig the National Football League's championship playoff. League Commissioner Bert Bell announced last weekend the professional group would seek federal, state and local legislation.

Promoters' Responsibility

The FBI Director said a "definite and determined effort" should be made by "those directly responsible for the development of sporting events, and the participants of athletic contests, to keep sports above reproach." And he added:

"They will be the first to suffer once the gamblers are able to fix athletic contests. It is their responsibility to clean house and keep it clean. And it is just as important that it appear honest as well as actually be honest and unsullied."

Nucleus Of Athletics Sign New Contracts

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13 — Three veteran players around whom Connie Mack hopes to rebuild his Philadelphia Athletics—Outfielder Sam Chapman, Catcher Warren (Buddy) Rosar and Pitcher Phil Marchildon—were reported in the 1947 fold today by Assistant Manager Earle Mack.

Mack said the three players — considered the backbone of the club—had agreed to terms and that their singned documents are on the way to Shibe Park. Mack added that he anticipated no difficulty with any of the players this year because of generous increases granted.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP) — An effort to bring the 1952 Olympic games to the United States was started in Congress today.

Rep. Youngblood (R-Mich) introduced a resolution to extend a formal invitation to the international Olympic Committee which will meet in Stockholm in mid-June.

The United States Olympic Committee already has decided to bid for the 1952 meet, Youngblood said, and he wants Congress to join in the invitation.

Youngblood said Detroit civic leaders hope the games will be held there and will send representatives to Stockholm "to make a strong bid." Los Angeles and Minneapolis also are contenders.

Wrestling Returns To WVU Program

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 13 (AP)—Wrestling will return to the West Virginia University sports program tomorrow when practice begins at the field house for the first Mountaineer mat team since 1942, Athletic Director Roy M. Hawley said.

Hawley added that the wrestlers probably will have a schedule of about four matches, with the first probably on January 29 when West Virginia and Waynesburg meet here in basketball.

Mrs. A. J. Bruno's Can Double was unbeaten in his five 1946 starts.

Notre Dame President Defends Irish Eleven

By JERRY LISKA

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 13. (AP) —Notre Dame's Fighting Irish "make no apologies for wanting winners," Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C. S. C. university president, declared tonight in a challenge of "so-called reformers" of collegiate football.

Father Cavanaugh, in an address prepared for a testimonial banquet for Notre Dame's mythical national championship grid squad, made no mention of the "purity code" adopted last week by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, but "frankly" asserted:

Notre Dame Is Defended

Regarding schedule boycotts, the nub of the NCAA's proposed housecleaning, Father Cavanaugh said Notre Dame would adhere to any agreement on "practical" athletic standards, provided it has a "decent corollary—that no institution observing these standards will be excluded from competition."

Obviously defending Notre Dame, Father Cavanaugh added that reform could not be achieved, either, "by innuendo and insinuation, by sly and indirect criticism directed at this or that institution, nor by the constant juxtaposition of two words, 'winning' and 'de-emphasis,' as if winning had to be de-emphasized rather than the dishonesty and real abuses that are supposed to exist in some quarters connected with football."

Refers To "Break" With Army

"The type I refer to are those who play with the question of football for public consumption, who seem to say that an indefinable something has to be done in athletics in a way nobody knows how, at a time nobody knows when, in places nobody knows where, to accomplish nobody knows what."

Saying "the air is still filled with speculation about the interruption in the Army-Notre Dame series," Father Cavanaugh added that he wanted it known "that the danger of gamblers getting to Notre Dame or Army players had nothing to do with the rupture of the relationship."

Father Cavanaugh said no further elaboration on the reasons originally given by both schools for the break was necessary, but that Notre Dame's faculty wanted "to express publicly that no squad of Notre Dame men has ever better deserved our respect and confidence" than the 1946 team.

Warming up to Notre Dame's 1946 record of eight victories and a scoreless tie with Army, Father Cavanaugh asserted that "teams which show strength are not, ipso facto, to be suspected of malpractices."

COLLEGE GRID STARS TO PLAY ON COAST

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 13 (AP) — Plans for a football game Jan. 26 between College All-Stars and Pacific Coast League professionals at Gilmore Stadium were announced yesterday by a group of sportsmen including heavyweight Champion Joe Louis.

Among the college players the group said it had lined up were Charley Trippi of Georgia, Alex Agase of Illinois; Vaughn Mancha, Alabama; Ernie Case and Burr Baldwin, UCLA; and John Ferraro, Southern California.

Buddy Young, of Illinois, also was named as a possibility, but close observers discounted this because of Young's interest in competing in the 1948 Olympics.

"Ced" Drew Says He Will Coach Alabama Eleven

OXFORD, Miss., Jan. 13 (AP) — Harold "Ced" Drew says he is resigning after one season as head football coach at Mississippi to take over Alabama's grid machine from the ailing Frank Thomas.

The 52-year-old Drew, who was an assistant to Thomas at Alabama for 12 campaigns, announced today he had been "approached" by Alabama officials but added that nothing definite had been agreed. He said, however, that he would ask the University of Mississippi Athletic Committee to release him from his contract which has two more years to run.

Chairman Martin Miller, of the Board of Trustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning, denied a report the board is planning to meet next Monday to act on Drew's resignation.

"The next meeting of the trustees will be on January 24," Miller said at the University of Mississippi where he went as soon as he learned of Drew's resignation.

"There won't be any special meeting before that and that meeting isn't called to act on Red Drew's resignation. Red Drew isn't that important to the board."

At Tuscaloosa, Ala., Thomas said he had "talked informally" with Drew about the possibility of taking over the job there. Thomas, head coach of the Crimson Tide for 15 seasons, has been in bad health for several months.

There have been repeated rumors that he would become athletic director while another man assumed the more active duties of head football coach.

On the surface, Drew's record of two victories and seven defeats with Ole Miss last season would seem like the kind to arouse the alumni against him, rather than to gain him a job handling the usually Mighty Tide.

WVU, Penn State Gridders To Clash

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 13 (AP)—West Virginia University will resume gridiron relations with Penn State on October 25 at State College, Pa., Roy M. Hawley, Mountaineer athletic director, announced today.

The announcement of the contest, the first between the two schools since West Virginia copped an exciting 28-27 victory in 1944, was made simultaneously by Penn State officials.

The October 25 date is the third officially announced for the Mountaineers next fall. They meet Washington and Lee in Charleston October 4 and Pittsburgh at Pittsburgh in their final game November 29.

Although there have been no definite commitments as yet, it is understood here that home-and-home game arrangements also will bring Kentucky, Virginia and Temple to Morgantown this year.

Hawley has indicated that he hopes to set up a 10-game schedule, with Maryland, Syracuse, Colgate, West Virginia Wesleyan, Waynesburg and New York University being considered for the four remaining spots.

The Penn State schedule: Sept. 20, Washington State at Hershey; Oct. 4, Bucknell at home; Oct. 11, Fordham at New York; Oct. 18, Syracuse at home; Oct. 25, West Virginia at home; Nov. 1, Colgate at home; Nov. 8, Temple at Philadelphia; Nov. 15, Navy at Baltimore; Nov. 22, Pitt at Pittsburgh.

KESSLER AND GRAHAM TO FIGHT AT GARDEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 13 (AP)—Ruby Kessler of Brooklyn and Billy Graham, New York, high up among the outstanding youngsters developed during 1946, will clash in the feature 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden next Friday night. Both are welterweights and are prospective contenders for 147-pound-Champion Ray Robinson.

Two other ranking fighters, Heavyweight Lee Oma of Detroit, and Lightweight Willie Joyce of Gary, Ind., appear in contests on the national schedule this week. Oma meets Phil Muscato in Buffalo Tuesday, and Joyce faces Ernie Petrone of Philadelphia in New Haven, Conn. Monday.

Friday—At Philadelphia, Jimmy Richards, Philadelphia, vs. Cleve Bailey, Vineland, N. J., light heavyweights, 8.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear son and brother Sgt. Carl E. Royce who was killed in action in Belgium, January 13, 1945.

To a land of peace and rest
God has taken you, dear son and brother,
Where you have found Eternal Rest.

PARENTS, SISTER AND NIECE.

Card of Thanks

We desire to extend our heartfelt thanks to all who aided and comforted us in our recent sad bereavement, the death of our beloved son and brother. Especially do we thank the pallbearers, those who donated the use of their cars, those who sent floral offerings, and the minsters, Rev. Louis H. Ewald and Rev. Arthur L. Hunter for their comforting words.

MR. & MRS. WARD N. HAUGER, AND FAMILY. 1-14-1t

We hereby extend our sincere thanks to our neighbors and friends for their kindness and expressions of sympathy in our bereavement, the death of our father and father-in-law, Joseph A. Donovan. To those who sent floral tributes and to those who donated the use of their cars for the funeral we are especially grateful.

MR. & MRS. BERYL DONOVAN. 1-14-1t

We wish to express our sincere thanks to our relatives, friends and neighbors who were so kind to us in our recent bereavement, the death of our beloved Wife and Mother, Anna J. Bridges. We also wish to thank those who sent floral tributes, mass cards and donated cars for the funeral.

JOHN L. BRIDGES AND FAMILY. 1-14-1t

We wish to thank our friends and relatives for their kindness during our recent bereavement, the death of Sheila Kay. We also wish to thank those who sent floral tributes and loaned cars for the funeral.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear son and brother Sgt. Carl E. Royce who was killed in action in Belgium, January 13, 1945.

Today is a day of remembrance
Of a loved one gone to rest,
A day we will always remember
When the rest of the world forgets.

Gone from this life of care and sorrow,
To a land of peace and rest
God has taken you, dear son and brother,
Where you have found Eternal Rest.

PARENTS, SISTER AND NIECE. 1-14-1t

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Year's End

The broadcasting industry had a good year in 1946, according to the year-end reports of the four networks, and faces 1947 with optimism tempered with the same amount of uncertainty that faces most businesses this year. Two of the top executives in the industry, Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, and Edgar Kobak, president of the Mutual Broadcasting System, warned that the new year would bring increased costs and increased competition for the advertisers' dollar.

John Crosby

"Costs of operation mounted considerably (in 1946) and have adversely affected our margin of profits," Mr. Stanton said. Costs may well continue to rise throughout 1947—at least the first part of it. We can expect increased competition not only from the considerable number of new a. m. stations that are almost daily being licensed by the FCC but from the growing number of FM stations and from television. While I am convinced that this enlarged competition will ultimately prove healthier for the public and broadcasting as a whole, it will certainly call for increased imaginative operation by these who strive for leadership in the industry."

Mr. Kobak delivered much the same warning. He pointed out that rising costs, material shortages and labor difficulties would cause many sponsors to think twice about the advertising dollar. With competition gradually reasserting itself in the economic life of the nation, he warned sponsors were going to shop for advertising bargains and the radio industry would have to work harder to deliver.

It's difficult to tell just what this will mean to the listener. Increased imagination and the spur of competition could produce better jokes, better scripts and better music on the air. They could also produce more singing commercials, even more irritating hard-selling devices and a competitive relaxation of network standards on commercials. We'll be lucky if they produce both in about equal quantities.

In respect to new ideas in programming, William S. Paley, chairman of the board of CBS, commented recently that he has detected in the last few months a new stirring of ideas and a freshness and imagination in writing that have been missing since the war. It was Mr. Paley's thesis that the war left creative writing too weary to generate any new ideas not only in his own field but in all branches of entertainment. The war weariness is only now beginning to wear off, he said, and the results should soon appear in more vigorous ideas on the radio and elsewhere.

In his year-end report, Niles Trammell, president of the National Broadcasting Company, concentrated on the development of television. "The development of television broadcasting has been so rapid and spectacular in the final months of 1946 that is is difficult to predict accurately the progress it can make in 1947. The new year will witness the first really large scale production of television sets and transmitting stations. The television network will begin to take form in 1947 with extension to new key cities."

Television will undoubtedly continue to make spectacular progress in 1947. However, labor troubles, material shortages and the industry's concentration on radio set manufacture will continue to keep television sets out of the hands of most listeners. As far as the average person is concerned, 1948 will probably be a more important and productive year for television.

Incidentlly, 1946 was a year of continued expansion for the networks. Mutual jumped from 284 to 384 stations, and now bills itself as "the world's largest network," though many of its stations are small. The American Broadcasting Company grew from 198 to 238 stations CBS added eleven new stations to bring its total to 162 and its Latin-American network went from 116 to 124.

Norman Corwin, the most vigorous and original writer in radio, will offer the first of his series of thirteen broadcasts growing out of his 37,000 mile "One World Flight" from 10 to 10:30 p. m. EST tonight over CBS. Corwin brought back with him 100 recorded hours of interviews with Prime Ministers, statesmen and the man on the street in seventeen countries. These interviews, along with interpretation and original drama and music, will form much of the material in the broadcasts. The thirteen week series (Tuesdays 10 p. m.) is one of the most promising single events of the broadcasting year and it might be well to listen.

Long-Projected Corwin Series To Start Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—Norman Corwin's long-projected series, based on his recent trip around the world, has been set for a start on CBS at 10 o'clock Tuesday night, which means it will be opposite Bob Hope of NBC.

Title for the series is "One World Flight," the program is to run 13 weeks and includes recorded interviews and other features turned into narration and dramatization. The opener is to deal with a general outline of the trip.

The Boston Symphony orchestra, playing its last ABC broadcast before it shifts next week to an hour earlier and takes on its second sponsor, will provide its music from Hartford, Conn. Bruno Walter is to be the guest conductor with the concert to concern itself entirely with Brahm's compositions.

The traveling Vox Poppers of CBS will be at San Francisco for their 9 o'clock questions and answers with awards. . . In continuing the You and Alcohol series at 6:15, CBS is to have George M. Stout of California in a discussion of "Systems of Alcohol Control."

Basil O'Connor, speaking from Los Angeles to CBS at 4:15, is to open the 1947 March of Dimes campaign on behalf of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. To make way for this broadcast, the J. C. Flippen Quiz at 4:30 will be reduced to 15 minutes instead of its usual half-hour.

RADIO IN REVIEW

Year's End

The broadcasting industry had a good year in 1946, according to the year-end reports of the four networks, and faces 1947 with optimism tempered with the same amount of uncertainty that faces most businesses this year. Two of the top executives in the industry, Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, and Edgar Kobak, president of the Mutual Broadcasting System, warned that the new year would bring increased costs and increased competition for the advertisers' dollar.

John Crosby

"Costs of operation mounted considerably (in 1946) and have adversely affected our margin of profits," Mr. Stanton said. Costs may well continue to rise throughout 1947—at least the first part of it. We can expect increased competition not only from the considerable number of new a. m. stations that are almost daily being licensed by the FCC but from the growing number of FM stations and from television. While I am convinced that this enlarged competition will ultimately prove healthier for the public and broadcasting as a whole, it will certainly call for increased imaginative operation by these who strive for leadership in the industry."

Mr. Kobak delivered much the same warning. He pointed out that rising costs, material shortages and labor difficulties would cause many sponsors to think twice about the advertising dollar. With competition gradually reasserting itself in the economic life of the nation, he warned sponsors were going to shop for advertising bargains and the radio industry would have to work harder to deliver.

It's difficult to tell just what this will mean to the listener. Increased imagination and the spur of competition could produce better jokes, better scripts and better music on the air. They could also produce more singing commercials, even more irritating hard-selling devices and a competitive relaxation of network standards on commercials. We'll be lucky if they produce both in about equal quantities.

In respect to new ideas in programming, William S. Paley, chairman of the board of CBS, commented recently that he has detected in the last few months a new stirring of ideas and a freshness and imagination in writing that have been missing since the war. It was Mr. Paley's thesis that the war left creative writing too weary to generate any new ideas not only in his own field but in all branches of entertainment. The war weariness is only now beginning to wear off, he said, and the results should soon appear in more vigorous ideas on the radio and elsewhere.

In his year-end report, Niles Trammell, president of the National Broadcasting Company, concentrated on the development of television. "The development of television broadcasting has been so rapid and spectacular in the final months of 1946 that is is difficult to predict accurately the progress it can make in 1947. The new year will witness the first really large scale production of television sets and transmitting stations. The television network will begin to take form in 1947 with extension to new key cities."

Television will undoubtedly continue to make spectacular progress in 1947. However, labor troubles, material shortages and the industry's concentration on radio set manufacture will continue to keep television sets out of the hands of most listeners. As far as the average person is concerned, 1948 will probably be a more important and productive year for television.

Incidentlly, 1946 was a year of continued expansion for the networks. Mutual jumped from 284 to 384 stations, and now bills itself as "the world's largest network," though many of its stations are small. The American Broadcasting Company grew from 198 to 238 stations CBS added eleven new stations to bring its total to 162 and its Latin-American network went from 116 to 124.

Norman Corwin, the most vigorous and original writer in radio, will offer the first of his series of thirteen broadcasts growing out of his 37,000 mile "One World Flight" from 10 to 10:30 p. m. EST tonight over CBS. Corwin brought back with him 100 recorded hours of interviews with Prime Ministers, statesmen and the man on the street in seventeen countries. These interviews, along with interpretation and original drama and music, will form much of the material in the broadcasts. The thirteen week series (Tuesdays 10 p. m.) is one of the most promising single events of the broadcasting year and it might be well to listen.

Long-Projected Corwin Series To Start Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—Norman Corwin's long-projected series, based on his recent trip around the world, has been set for a start on CBS at 10 o'clock Tuesday night, which means it will be opposite Bob Hope of NBC.

Title for the series is "One World Flight," the program is to run 13 weeks and includes recorded interviews and other features turned into narration and dramatisation. The opener is to deal with a general outline of the trip.

The Boston Symphony orchestra, playing its last ABC broadcast before it shifts next week to an hour earlier and takes on its second sponsor, will provide its music from Hartford, Conn. Bruno Walter is to be the guest conductor with the concert to concern itself entirely with Brahm's compositions.

The traveling Vox Poppers of CBS will be at San Francisco for their 9 o'clock questions and answers with awards. . . In continuing the You and Alcohol series at 6:15, CBS is to have George M. Stout of California in a discussion of "Systems of Alcohol Control."

Basil O'Connor, speaking from Los Angeles to CBS at 4:15, is to open the 1947 March of Dimes campaign on behalf of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. To make way for this broadcast, the J. C. Flippen Quiz at 4:30 will be reduced to 15 minutes instead of its usual half-hour.

City May Ask $200,000 For Sewage System

Overhauling Needed, Mayor Post Declares

Mayor Thomas S. Post said yesterday that the city may ask the state legislature to approve a $200,000 bond issue for use in improving Cumberland's present sewage system.

The mayor pointed out at the meeting of the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission yesterday that the sewage system is "overloaded" and that it will have to be overhauled.

H. W. Smith, commission secretary, said that a report is expected soon from Whitman, Requardt and Associates, Baltimore engineering firm, on a proposed sewage disposal plant here, and that after the report is studied by Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer, the exact needs can be determined. The mayor stressed the necessity of formulating a definite plan before the bond issue is requested.

Avirett Named Chairman

Benjamin W. O'Rourke, a commission member, said he will furnish the group with copies of House Bill No. 45 on pollution control which provides for the formation of a commission to check on violations of pollution regulations.

James Alfred Avirett, local attorney and former Army officer in World War II, was unanimously elected chairman of the commission, succeeding Dr. Thomas W. Koon, who died last month.

Avirett was appointed to the commission recently by the Mayor and Council to serve until June 1, 1950. His term as chairman will extend until June 1 of this year, since Dr. Koon had already served part of the one-year term as chairman.

H. W. Smith, commission secretary, said he will arrange a meeting in the near future with A. F. McDonald, Hagerstown, in charge of operations for the Blue Ridge Transportation Company, for a joint inspection of the Bedford-Centre street site proposed for the new bus terminal.

Canal Bridge Discussed

The commission instructed Smith to write to United States Senators O'Conor and Tydings, and to Rep. J. Glenn Beall, asking their co-operation in efforts to secure funds for completion of the Savage River dam.

Following a discussion of the "dangerous condition" of the Wiley Ford bridge over the C. and O. ca-

Criminal Trials To Open Monday In Circuit Court

Major Cases Include Series Of Robberies

Traversers indicted by the January term grand jury are to be arraigned in Circuit Court Saturday, at which time pleas will be entered. Criminal trials are set for Monday morning, according to Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge George Henderson who will preside.

Albert Schimminger has been indicted on three counts of robbery. Arrested last month following a robbery at Westernport, he is charged with participating in a holdup of Kerns grocery store at Westernport and taking $20, and the holdup of Norris's grocery store, Pennsylvania avenue, where $250 was taken from Lloyd E. Norris and $57 taken from Mrs. Anna Mae Newlon. Indicted in the same robberies also is Robert Logue.

Spriggs is accused of obtaining $35 from George P. Wolford on November 2; $45 on the same day from the Queen City Hotel restaurant manager; $250 from Ward N. Hauger, local jeweler, on November 8; $200 from Hauger on the same day; $35 on November 6 from the Queen City Hotel restaurant manager; $25 from Mrs. Paul Scott on November 2, and $75 from Hauger on November 7.

Became Suspicious

Police said Hauger became suspicious after Spriggs boasted about buying a New York hotel and other "big deals." The jeweler notified police and Spriggs was apprehended.

Festus Albert Jenkins, a former Memorial Hospital employe and said by police to be a paroled prisoner, was indicted on charges of larceny and receiving stolen goods. He is accused of taking a "blue silk evening gown, valued at $42,'" from a local cleaning establishment on December 31. The dress was owned by Catherine Naill, and officers quoted Jenkins as saying he "took it to give to a girl friend who didn't have anything to wear to a dance."

Joseph E. Dorsey and Raymond Miller were indicted on charges of burglary. They are accused of breaking into the home of Elmer C. McKenzie, last November 26, and taking a shotgun, barber supplies and other articles, with a total value of $48.

Roscoe Dewey Leslie, indicted on a burglary charge, is accused of breaking into a South End beer parlor, owned by Elmer G. Beck, on December 25, and taking $1,200.

Richard H. Wilson was indicted on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. Wilson is accused of obtaining $51 last September 14 from the Cumberland Savings Bank and $42 last September 13 from the Commercial Savings Bank, with bogus checks.

Three Face Theft Charge

Daniel Thomas White, George Steward and Raymond Gray were indicted on charges of robbery. Police said they are accused of taking $50 from Wilmont Loadman last October 31 on a local street.

Harry Edward Reger, indicted on charges of larceny and receiving stolen goods, is accused of taking a watch, valued at $50, from Vonder Connor, last November 1.

Mantheiy reported the theft to Officer R. M. Nuse, who is investigating.

John Foutz, Frostburg, was being held in city jail last night for military police, who are taking him back to a United States Army camp. Police said he has been AWOL for several months.

Plans Announced For "Y" Dinner, Annual Meeting

Dr. Earle T. Hawkins Will Give Address

The program for the annual meeting of Central YMCA, to be held at a dinner event Tuesday, January 28, at 6:14 p. m. at the "Y" gymnasium, was announced yesterday by Robert L. Sisson, general secretary.

Dr. Earle T. Hawkins, director of instruction and state supervisor of high schools, will be the principal speaker, discussing the topic, "Building American Citizenship." He will be introduced by Edmund S. Burke, president of the "Y".

Results of the election by ballot of 10 members to the board of directors will be announced by Charles A. Piper, chairman of the nominating committee. The 30-member board will meet immediately after the main program to elect officers for the ensuing year.

Drive Report Scheduled

Final report of the YMCA campaign for modernization and mortgage retirement will be given by John J. Robinson, chairman. The goal of the drive, which started in November, is $58,000.

The presentation of past president pins will be made by Edmund R. Tomb, Newark, N. J., executive secretary of the Central Atlantic area, National Council of the YMCA, who was guest speaker at the opening dinner of the modernization campaign here.

Goals of Central YMCA in 1947 will be discussed by Sisson, and the treasurer's report will be given by James W. Bishop. Rev. William A. Eisenberger, chairman of the "Y's" religious work committee, will give the invocation, and Rev. R. L. Henthorne, president of the Cumberland Ministerial Association, will give the benediction.

Tickets Are On Sale

Dinner music will be furnished by the Duke Memorial Bible Class orchestra under the direction of Lloyd Rawlings, and selections will be given by the Fort Hill High School a cappella choir under the direction of Miss Annetta Yates.

Tickets for the dinner are on sale at the main office at the "Y", Sisson said, adding that reservations should be made by January 22. "Y" members are invited to attend, and representatives of local service clubs and fraternal organizations using Central YMCA as a meeting place are also invited.

Report Of Brewery Sale Unconfirmed

Reports in recent days of the sale of the Queen City Brewing Company plant to a Pittsburgh brewery firm could not be confirmed last night, although officials of the local company admit "proposals have been made."

Officials of the Duquesne Brewing Company, Pittsburgh, admitted yesterday they communicated with the Queen City firm in regard to sale of the local plant, but were advised a commitment already had been made.

Reports indicate that in addition to the Duquesne firm, other companies attempting to buy the plant are one in New York and one of the largest companies in the United States, located in the Middle West.

Similar offers have been received by the Cumberland Brewing Company, it was reported.

Cumberland's "strategic location" is a major factor in the efforts of other companies to purchase the local plants. They serve large areas of Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia—since they are the only breweries in Maryland west of Baltimore, and there are only two breweries in the entire state of West Virginia. Scores of large trucks from West Virginia and other nearby states come here daily to "load up" with Cumberland beer.

Jewish Welfare Fund Dinner To Be Held Sunday

Eminent Sociologist Will Be Guest Speaker

Dr. Leo Srole, anthropologist and sociologist who was UNRRA Welfare Director of the Landsberg Displaced Persons camp, largest in the American occupation zone of Germany, will be guest speaker January 19, at a dinner meeting of the Jewish Welfare Fund of Western Maryland and nearby communities, at B'er Chayim Temple, South Centre street.

Max Spear, president of the Fund, will preside and Dr. Samuel Jacobson, chairman of the campaign here, will make a final report of money subscribed to aid needy Jews throughout the world.

The United Jewish Appeal, of which the local group is a part, has launched a $100,000,000 nation-wide campaign for a gigantic relief and reconstruction program in Europe and other lands, for large-scale upbuilding and settlement in the Jewish National Home in Palestine and for the adjustment of newcomers in the United States.

Dr. Srole, who was at Landsberg from September 1945 to August 1946, exposed the poor housing, inadequate food and other deplorable conditions in the camp by resigning in protest in December. His resignation called wide attention to the true situation in Landsberg and Army authorities instituted immediate and thorough reforms. His protest successful, Dr. Srole withdrew his resignation.

As personal counselor to 5,500 Jews in the camp, most of them survivors of Dachau, Auschwitz and Buchenwald, Dr. Srole gave advice, guidance and help to them, starting the process of rehabilitation. He personally supervised the psychological re-adjustment of the homeless and up-rooted, and strove to combat the impatience and pessimism the children felt about the future.

Dr. Srole was also responsible for the community organization of the camp and headed the cultural program of the newly instituted trade, agricultural, elementary and adult education program.

Dr. Srole was born in Chicago in 1908. He has a BA degree in sociology and anthropology from Harvard University and his PhD from the University of Chicago. He taught at Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration and at the University of Chicago. He was chairman of the Sociology Department of Hobart University, Geneva, N. Y., and he also taught at the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. In 1945 he published a book on "Social Systems of American Ethnic Groups," and during the war he served as psychological consultant in the Army Air Forces convalescent hospitals.

His visit here is regarded by representatives of the Jewish Welfare Fund as an opportune time for those interested to get first-hand information about the conditions of the thousands of persecuted and unfortunate people, as a result of the war.

One Cent Separates Celanese And Union In Wage Controversy

Company Offers 12 Cents; Union Asks 13; Negotiators Meet Again Today At 11 A. M.

The Celanese Corporation of America offered a 12-cent-hourly increase to employes yesterday, but the negotiating committee of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America was holding out for a flat 13-cent hourly raise as the meeting adjourned early this morning, a committee official declared.

The official said the company had upped its five-cent offer to 12 cents per hour, with retroactive pay being no bar to a settlement, but, he said, the union was holding out for the 13-cent increase which is based on differences in shift differential features at another plant, which have no application at the local plant.

Negotiations which were adjourned at 12:01 this morning will be resumed today at 11 a. m., the company official stated, adding that union and company representatives were in conference all day yesterday, and returned last night at 7:30 o'clock for a night session.

Union officials contacted early this morning, had "no comment" to make on the progress, but confirmed the 11 o'clock meeting hour for resumption of talks.

The 11 p. m. shift reported for work last night and went on duty without causing any disturbance, the company official stated.

The union and company have been deadlocked in negotiations for several weeks with union heads demanding an 18-cent hourly raise, and the company countering with an offer of a five-cent hourly increase.

This morning's report that the company had increased its offer to 12 cents and the union lowered its demands to 13 cents an hour, is the first report of a break in the deadlock since negotiations were opened. Labor leaders, however, predicted a break would follow the agreement Saturday between the American Viscose Corporation and its TWUA union, where a 12-cent hourly pay increase was granted.

The local union had served notice that a strike would be called this week unless a settlement was reached.

McCauley Given Execution Stay By State Court

Appeal Granted To Police Killer

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 13 (AP) — Mark McCauley, 35-year-old strip coal miner was granted an appeal today by the West Virginia Supreme Court and an automatic stay of execution scheduled for Friday night at the Moundsville State Penitentiary.

Under ordinary rules, the case will not come up for argument until the April term of the Supreme Court.

McCauley was convicted in Mineral county of the fatal shooting of State Police Sgt. Joseph Horne last September 9 at Emoryville.

He also was indicted on a second murder count in the slaying of Tucker County Sheriff O. Gay Hovatter and the wounding of the sheriff's son. The two officers were attempting to arrest the coal miner on a charge of stealing a truck.

Attorney H. G. Shores asked the Supreme Court for an appeal last Wednesday, basing his arguments chiefly on "after-discovered" evidence that McCauley had been confined in 1944 in a California mental institution as a "raving maniac."

Shores said that McCauley still was suffering from a venereal disease which had affected his brain to such a condition that he could not distinguish between right and wrong.

At the penitentiary, Deputy Warden Leo Callison reported that a minister yesterday was McCauley's first visitor. He was not further identified by prison authorities.

Callison said McCauley had read the Bible regularly, but had made no special requests.

In the petition for an appeal, Shores said he did not learn of McCauley's confinement in California until after the death sentence was imposed.

"It will be noted," Shores said, "that he was taken into the hospital a raving maniac and was suffering from syphilis.

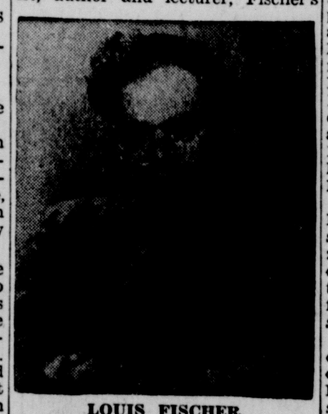

"Should we be permitted to prove the facts, we would be able to further prove now that we have the information that x x x McCauley now has syphilis and has never been cured of his condition and that this syphilitic condition has affected his brain to such an extent that he cannot distinguish between right and wrong."

Political Analyst To Speak Here On Forum Program

Louis Fischer Will Lecture January 28

Louis Fischer, of Philadelphia, Pa., noted political analyst and world traveller, will be the third speaker in the annual Cumberland Community Forum series lecture at 8:15 p. m. Tuesday, January 28, in Allegany High School auditorium.

Equally well known as a journalist, author and lecturer, Fischer's

Peculiarly fitted by a background of keen observation in many foreign lands during the past two decades, Louis Fischer has spoken to, and watched at work, virtually every important world leader. He was the house guest of Gandhi in 1942 and returned again to India in the summer of 1946. He knew Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin. He first went to Germany in 1921 and wrote an article about Hitler two years later to which the German leader replied with a personal attack.

Fischer has written a number of books including "Men and Politics," "Empire," "Dawn of Victory," "A Week With Gandhi," and "The Great Challenge." This latest book deals with the complex problems of war and peace.

Fischer is the author of a weekly column "Men and Politics," which not only appears in a number of newspapers in this country, but is also printed weekly by 10 papers in India, both in Arabic and a Hebrew paper in Palestine and by the Nippon Times in Tokyo.

Fischer was born and educated in Philadelphia. He taught school several years before he became a newspaperman. In 1921 he was sent to Berlin by the New York Post and spent most of the next 25 years on roving assignments in Europe and Asia. He knows the Middle East as well, and is considered one of the outstanding authorities on Russia where he spent many years. After covering the Spanish Civil War, he was in France when World War II broke out and he spent the first few months of the conflict practically commuting between London and Paris.

In the summer of 1946, with writing assignments from Readers' Digest, Cosmopolitan and the New York Post, he flew to India to meet Ghandi, Nehru and other Indian leaders. He also visited Turkey, Palestine, Egypt, Greece and Western Europe.

Barrett, in accepting office, pledged his efforts and those of officers installed with him to a broader program of social activity of interest to the membership, and pledged to serve in his capacity as president in the interest of the members and the organization. He declared, "The retiring officers have made an amazing record and have successfully piloted this organization through many problems over a long period of years. As we younger men assume office, we hope for and solicit the support of the past officers and the membership. The record established and the things accomplished serve as a challenge and a goal to each of us."

Demand For City Lots Increasing

Evidence of the increasing demend for city lots, taken over at various times for non-payment of taxes, paving or sewer liens was shown yesterday when $700 was offered for six lots.

Because three of the lots are sought by two parties the Mayor and Council decided today to advertised for sealed bids to be received January 27.

Last week I. Woodrow Malone, 207 Elder street, offered $375 for Lots 135, 136 and 137, in which the city has $267 invested. Today B. Fay Thompson, 206 Elder street, offered $390 for the same lots. Thompson also offered $310 for Lots 406, 407 and 408 on Mary street and accompanied both proposals with a check for the full amount.

The Schmidt Baking Company was given permission to make an eight-inch sewer tap for its Frederick street property providing it pays the entire cost of installation.

In his monthly report to the council, Charles F. Heller, airport maintenance foreman, recommended that three lights be placed on poles in the parking area as at night "various kinds of parties" are staged and in the morning it is necessary to clean up "bottles and other unsightly rubbish." He also proposed that a fire hydrant be located near the hangars.

The quarterly financial report showed receipts of $212,899.43 for the period ending December 31. Disbursements were $293,378.20 and the balance is $377,447.37.

Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor reported that at the end of December collections for the fiscal year amounted to $764,463.90 as compared to a total levy of $789,680. Only $18,448.33 in taxes are outstanding. Excess collections over estimate include: General licenses, $1,918.55; fines, $444 and state income tax, $15.03.

The city has expended a total of $619,190.53 and of this amount $441,844.20 has been exclusive of service.

Bond Is Refused Broadwater; Held For Grand Jury

Moscow Man Accused Of Attacking Girl, 19

Charged with criminally assaulting Emma J. Miller, 19, Moscow, as she returned home Saturday night, Ellis Broadwater, 19, also of Moscow, waived a preliminary hearing yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court and was ordered held without bond for action of the grand jury.

Broadwater, who was arrested early Sunday morning, denied that he attacked the girl and told investigators in the office of the State's Attorney that Miss Miller consented to his advances, officials said.

In a signed statement, Broadwater said that he, the Miller girl, and Claudine and Mary Warnick, both of Moscow, returned to Moscow from Barton on a late bus, and all four walked up Laurel Hill toward their homes after getting off the bus.

The Warnick girls left Broadwater and Miss Miller at a point in the road where they turn off, the accused man said, and he and Miss Miller began "hugging and kissing."

Girls Denies Consenting

Both began walking toward her home, officials quoted Broadwater as saying. They added he admitted having carnal knowledge of the girl, but only after she consented.

Miss Miller denied that she consented to any such acts, and said she fought Broadwater and screamed for help. The two Warnick girls told county authorities that they heard Miss Miller scream and hurried to their home where they told their father.

County officers said Warnick went to the Miller home imediately, and both William Miller, the girl's father, and he started down the road to meet the couple.

Miller declared that when he came within sight of his daughter and Broadwater, the accused man ran into a thicket and his daughter, with blood-splattered clothing, came running to him.

State police were notified and Troopers A. M. Spioch and W. E. Wilt, Sgt. W. E. O'Hara, and Deputy Sheriffs William "Scotty" Orr and George M. Harris, apprehended Broadwater at his home.

County investigators declared that Miss Miller had a large bruise on her leg, and declared Broadwater inflicted it.

Returned To Jail

Broadwater was returned to the county jail last night but officials said they did not expect the January term of Grand Jury, which was dismissed last Wednesday, to be recalled for the case.

Broadwater, who was represented at the hearing by Edward J. Ryan, was clothed in an Army uniform. He had nothing to say during the proceeding. Miss Miller was also present during the arraignment.

Court Denies Miners' Appeal For Jobless Pay

Upholds State Board In Stoppage Decision

"Those who enlist under a banner so as to share in the fruits of victory, cannot expect to shirk the hardships and dangers of the campaign," Circuit Court judges declared in their opinion on the appeal of coal miners for unemployment compensation during the work stoppage early last year.

Denying the miners' request for compensation and upholding the verdict of the State Unemployment Board, Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge George Henderson cited, "It is the duty of the Court, under the state compensation law, to decide whether under the law certain classes of mine employes, who stopped work on April 1, 1946, because of the National Bituminous Coal Wage Agreement as of that date, are entitled to compensation."

Miners involved in the case include Arthur Metz, Albert Males, John Crouse, Perry Dudley and James Nelson. Classes of employes listed in the action were (1) Miners who voluntarily stopped April 1, 1946. (2) Miners who, because of the railroad car shortage, had to stop before April 1, and did not return after April 1. (3) Maintenance men.

The state board last year denied the claim, following a hearing at the City Hall, and the appeal was heard December 28 before the two judges in Circuit Court, with argument presented by Clarence Lippel, counsel for the miners; former Judge D. Lindley Sloan, George Cochran Doub, Albert A. Levin and William M. Somerville, attorneys for the Upper Potomac and Georges Creek Coal Operators' Association, the Russell Mining Company and the State Unemployment Compensation Board.

Checkweighmen Paid

The Court pointed out that counsel for the miners had asked the judges to review the decision of the board as to checkweighmen, who were granted compensation, but the Court also cited that counsel for the miners, at the hearing before the board, had withdrawn an appeal in behalf of Albert Shaffer, a checkweighman. As a result, the board did not pass on the question of compensation for checkweighmen.

The judges, commenting on the rights of employes in the three classes, pointed out that the state board rejected their claims by a two-to-one vote. The board adopted the opinion of the special examiner who conducted the hearing here last year, that the work stoppage was due to a "labor dispute" within the terms of the act.

Granted In 1939

Counsel for the miners cited that the board in 1939 granted compensation, but the judges pointed out that this award was based, in part at least, on the proven willingness of the miners to continue under the terms of the previously existing contract and the unwilling-

City May Ask $200,000 For Sewage System

Overhauling Needed, Mayor Post Declares

Mayor Thomas S. Post said yesterday that the city may ask the state legislature to approve a $200,000 bond issue for use in improving Cumberland's present sewage system.

The mayor pointed out at the meeting of the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission yesterday that the sewage system is "overloaded" and that it will have to be overhauled.

H. W. Smith, commission secretary, said that a report is expected soon from Whitman, Requardt and Associates, Baltimore engineering firm, on a proposed sewage disposal plant here, and that after the report is studied by Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer, the exact needs can be determined. The mayor stressed the necessity of formulating a definite plan before the bond issue is requested.

Avirett Named Chairman

Benjamin W. O'Rourke, a commission member, said he will furnish the group with copies of House Bill No. 45 on pollution control which provides for the formation of a commission to check on violations of pollution regulations.

James Alfred Avirett, local attorney and former Army officer in World War II, was unanimously elected chairman of the commission, succeeding Dr. Thomas W. Koon, who died last month.

Avirett was appointed to the commission recently by the Mayor and Council to serve until June 1, 1950. His term as chairman will extend until June 1 of this year, since Dr. Koon had already served part of the one-year term as chairman.

H. W. Smith, commission secretary, said he will arrange a meeting in the near future with A. F. McDonald, Hagerstown, in charge of operations for the Blue Ridge Transportation Company, for a joint inspection of the Bedford-Centre street site proposed for the new bus terminal.

Canal Bridge Discussed

The commission instructed Smith to write to United States Senators O'Conor and Tydings, and to Rep. J. Glenn Beall, asking their co-operation in efforts to secure funds for completion of the Savage River dam.

Criminal Trials To Open Monday In Circuit Court

Major Cases Include Series Of Robberies

Traversers indicted by the January term grand jury are to be arraigned in Circuit Court Saturday, at which time pleas will be entered. Criminal trials are set for Monday morning, according to Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge George Henderson who will preside.

Among indictments returned and docketed yesterday were charges of burglary, larceny, forgery and false pretenses.

Albert Schimminger has been indicted on three counts of robbery. Arrested last month following a robbery at Westernport, he is charged with participating in a holdup of Kerns grocery store at Westernport and taking $20, and the holdup of Norris's grocery store, Pennsylvania avenue, where $250 was taken from Lloyd E. Norris and $57 taken from Mrs. Anna Mae Newlon. Indicted in the same robberies also is Robert Logue.

Spriggs is accused of obtaining $35 from George P. Wolford on November 2; $45 on the same day from the Queen City Hotel restaurant manager; $250 from Ward N. Hauger, local jeweler, on November 8; $200 from Hauger on the same day; $35 on November 6 from the Queen City Hotel restaurant manager; $25 from Mrs. Paul Scott on November 2, and $75 from Hauger on November 7.

Became Suspicious

Police said Hauger became suspicious after Spriggs boasted about buying a New York hotel and other "big deals." The jeweler notified police and Spriggs was apprehended.

Festus Albert Jenkins, a former Memorial Hospital employe and said by police to be a paroled prisoner, was indicted on charges of larceny and receiving stolen goods. He is accused of taking a "blue silk evening gown, valued at $42," from a local cleaning establishment on December 31. Plans Announced For "Y" Dinner, Annual Meeting

Dr. Earle T. Hawkins Will Give Address

The program for the annual meeting of Central YMCA, to be held at a dinner event Tuesday, January 28, at 6:14 p. m. at the "Y" gymnasium, was announced yesterday by Robert L. Sisson, general secretary.

Dr. Earle T. Hawkins, director of instruction and state supervisor of high schools, will be the principal speaker, discussing the topic, "Building American Citizenship." He will be introduced by Edmund S. Burke, president of the "Y".

Results of the election by ballot of 10 members to the board of directors will be announced by Charles A. Piper, chairman of the nominating committee. The 30-member board will meet immediately after the main program to elect officers for the ensuing year.

Drive Report Scheduled

Final report of the YMCA campaign for modernization and mortgage retirement will be given by John J. Robinson, chairman. The goal of the drive, which started in November, is $58,000.

The presentation of past president pins will be made by Edmund R. Tomb, Newark, N. J., executive secretary of the Central Atlantic area, National Council of the YMCA, who was guest speaker at the opening dinner of the modernization campaign here.

Goals of Central YMCA in 1947 will be discussed by Sisson, and the treasurer's report will be given by James W. Bishop. Rev. William A. Eisenberger, chairman of the "Y's" religious work committee, will give the invocation, and Rev. R. L. Henthorne, president of the Cumberland Ministerial Association, will give the benediction.

Tickets for the dinner are on sale at the main office at the "Y", Sisson said, adding that reservations should be made by January 22. "Y" members are invited to attend, and representatives of local service clubs and fraternal organizations using Central YMCA as a meeting place are also invited.

Report Of Brewery Sale Unconfirmed

Reports in recent days of the sale of the Queen City Brewing Company plant to a Pittsburgh brewery firm could not be confirmed last night, although officials of the local company admit "proposals have been made."

They emphasized, however, that no action has been taken on the offer.

Officials of the Duquesne Brewing Company, Pittsburgh, admitted yesterday they communicated with the Queen City firm in regard to sale of the local plant, but were advised a commitment already had been made.

Reports indicate that in addition to the Duquesne firm, other companies attempting to buy the plant are one in New York and one of the largest companies in the United States, located in the Middle West.

Similar offers have been received by the Cumberland Brewing Company, it was reported.

Cumberland's "strategic location" is a major factor in the efforts of other companies to purchase the local plants. They serve large areas of Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia—since they are the only breweries in Maryland west of Baltimore, and there are only two breweries in the entire state of West Virginia. Scores of large trucks from West Virginia and other nearby states come here daily to "load up" with Cumberland beer.

Jewish Welfare Fund Dinner To Be Held Sunday

Eminent Sociologist Will Be Guest Speaker

Dr. Leo Srole, anthropologist and sociologist who was UNRRA Welfare Director of the Landsberg Displaced Persons camp, largest in the American occupation zone of Germany, will be guest speaker January 19, at a dinner meeting of the Jewish Welfare Fund of Western Maryland and nearby communities, at B'er Chayim Temple, South Centre street.

The dinner is being served at 6:30 p. m. with arrangements by the B'er Chayim Sisterhood, Mrs. Norman Goldblatt, president, in charge.

Max Spear, president of the Fund, will preside and Dr. Samuel Jacobson, chairman of the campaign here, will make a final report of money subscribed to aid needy Jews throughout the world.

The United Jewish Appeal, of which the local group is a part, has launched a $100,000,000 nation-wide campaign for a gigantic relief and reconstruction program in Europe and other lands, for large-scale upbuilding and settlement in the Jewish National Home in Palestine and for the adjustment of newcomers in the United States.

Dr. Srole, who was at Landsberg from September 1945 to August 1946, exposed the poor housing, inadequate food and other deplorable conditions in the camp by resigning in protest in December. His resignation called wide attention to the true situation in Landsberg and Army authorities instituted immediate and thorough reforms. His protest successful, Dr. Srole withdrew his resignation.

As personal counselor to 5,500 Jews in the camp, most of them survivors of Dachau, Auschwitz and Buchenwald, Dr. Srole gave advice, guidance and help to them, starting the process of rehabilitation. He personally supervised the psychological re-adjustment of the homeless and up-rooted, and strove to combat the impatience and pessimism the children felt about the future.

Dr. Srole was also responsible for the community organization of the camp and headed the cultural program of the newly instituted trade, agricultural, elementary and adult education program.

Dr. Srole was born in Chicago in 1908. He has a BA degree in sociology and anthropology from Harvard University and his PhD from the University of Chicago. He taught at Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration and at the University of Chicago. He was chairman of the Sociology Department of Hobart University, Geneva, N. Y., and he also taught at the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. In 1945 he published a book on "Social Systems of American Ethnic Groups," and during the war he served as psychological consultant in the Army Air Forces convalescent hospitals.

His visit here is regarded by representatives of the Jewish Welfare Fund as an opportune time for those interested to get first-hand information about the conditions of the thousands of persecuted and unfortunate people, as a result of the war.

One Cent Separates Celanese And Union In Wage Controversy

Company Offers 12 Cents; Union Asks 13; Negotiators Meet Again Today At 11 A. M.

The Celanese Corporation of America offered a 12-cent-hourly increase to employes yesterday, but the negotiating committee of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America was holding out for a flat 13-cent hourly raise as the meeting adjourned early this morning, a committee official declared.

The official said the company had upped its five-cent offer to 12 cents per hour, with retroactive pay being no bar to a settlement, but, he said, the union was holding out for the 13-cent increase which is based on differences in shift differential features at another plant, which have no application at the local plant.

Negotiations which were adjourned at 12:01 this morning will be resumed today at 11 a. m., the company official stated, adding that union and company representatives were in conference all day yesterday, and returned last night at 7:30 o'clock for a night session.

Union officials contacted early this morning, had "no comment" to make on the progress, but confirmed the 11 o'clock meeting hour for resumption of talks.

The 11 p. m. shift reported for work last night and went on duty without causing any disturbance, the company official stated.

The union and company have been deadlocked in negotiations for several weeks with union heads demanding an 18-cent hourly raise, and the company countering with an offer of a five-cent hourly increase.

This morning's report that the company had increased its offer to 12 cents and the union lowered its demands to 13 cents an hour, is the first report of a break in the deadlock since negotiations were opened. Labor leaders, however, predicted a break would follow the agreement Saturday between the American Viscose Corporation and its TWUA union, where a 12-cent hourly pay increase was granted.

The local union had served notice that a strike would be called this week unless a settlement was reached.

McCauley Given Execution Stay By State Court

Appeal Granted To Police Killer

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 13 (AP) — Mark McCauley, 35-year-old strip coal miner was granted an appeal today by the West Virginia Supreme Court and an automatic stay of execution scheduled for Friday night at the Moundsville State Penitentiary.

Under ordinary rules, the case will not come up for argument until the April term of the Supreme Court.

McCauley was convicted in Mineral county of the fatal shooting of State Police Sgt. Joseph Horne last September 9 at Emoryville.

He also was indicted on a second murder count in the slaying of Tucker County Sheriff O. Gay Hovatter and the wounding of the sheriff's son The two officers were attempting to arrest the coal miner on a charge of stealing a truck.

Attorney H. G. Shores asked the Supreme Court for an appeal last Wednesday, basing his arguments chiefly on "after-discovered" evidence that McCauley had been confined in 1944 in a California mental institution as a "raving maniac."

Shores said that McCauley still was suffering from a venereal disease which had affected his brain to such a condition that he could not distinguish between right and wrong.

At the penitentiary, Deputy Warden Leo Callison reported that a minister yesterday was McCauley's first visitor. He was not further identified by prison authorities.

Callison said McCauley had read the Bible regularly, but had made no special requests.

In the petition for an appeal, Shores said he did not learn of McCauley's confinement in California until after the death sentence was imposed.

"It will be noted," Shores said, "that he was taken into the hospital a raving maniac and was suffering from syphilis.

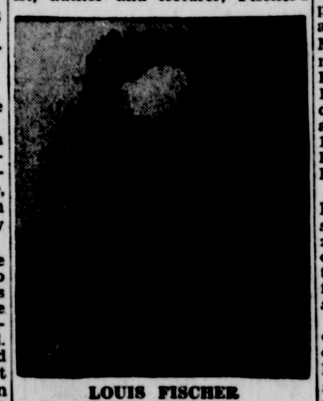

"Should we be permitted to prove the facts, we would be able to further prove now that we have the information that x x x McCauley now has syphilis and has never been cured of his condition and that this syphilitic condition has affected his brain to such an extent that he cannot distinguish between right and wrong."

Political Analyst To Speak Here On Forum Program

Louis Fischer Will Lecture January 28

Louis Fischer, of Philadelphia, Pa., noted political analyst and world traveller, will be the third speaker in the annual Cumberland Community Forum series lecture at 8:15 p. m. Tuesday, January 28, in Allegany High School auditorium.

Equally well known as a journalist, author and lecturer, Fischer's

lecture is designed to make his audience believe in the solvability of man's problems, while at the same time he poses the unsolved problem of man himself.

Peculiarly fitted by a background of keen observation in many foreign lands during the past two decades, Louis Fischer has spoken to, and watched at work, virtually every important world leader. He was the house guest of Gandhi in 1942 and returned again to India in the summer of 1946. He knew Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin. He first went to Germany in 1921 and wrote an article about Hitler two years later to which the German leader replied with a personal attack.

Fischer has written a number of books including "Men and Politics," "Empire," "Dawn of Victory," "A Week With Gandhi," and "The Great Challenge." This latest book deals with the complex problems of war and peace.

Fischer is the author of a weekly column "Men and Politics," which not only appears in a number of newspapers in this country, but is also printed weekly by 10 papers in India, both in Arabic and a Hebrew paper in Palestine and by the Nippon Times in Tokyo.

Fischer was born and educated in Philadelphia. He taught school several years before he became a newspaperman. In 1921 he was sent to Berlin by the New York Post and spent most of the next 25 years on roving assignments in Europe and Asia. He knows the Middle East as well, and is considered one of the outstanding authorities on Russia where he spent many years. After covering the Spanish Civil War, he was in France when World War II broke out and he spent the first few months of the conflict practically commuting between London and Paris.

In the summer of 1946, with writing assignments from Readers' Digest, Cosmopolitan and the New York Post, he flew to India to meet Ghandi, Nehru and other Indian leaders. He also visited Turkey, Palestine, Egypt, Greece and Western Europe.

He declared, "The retiring officers have made an amazing record and have successfully piloted this organization through many problems over a long period of years. Demand For City Lots Increasing

Evidence of the increasing demend for city lots, taken over at various times for non-payment of taxes, paving or sewer liens was shown yesterday when $700 was offered for six lots.

Because three of the lots are sought by two parties the Mayor and Council decided today to advertised for sealed bids to be received January 27.

Last week I. Woodrow Malone, 207 Elder street, offered $375 for Lots 135, 136 and 137, in which the city has $267 invested. Today B. Fay Thompson, 206 Elder street, offered $390 for the same lots. Thompson also offered $310 for Lots 406, 407 and 408 on Mary street and accompanied both proposals with a check for the full amount.

The Schmidt Baking Company was given permission to make an eight-inch sewer tap for its Frederick street property providing it pays the entire cost of installation.

In his monthly report to the council, Charles F. Heller, airport maintenance foreman, recommended that three lights be placed on poles in the parking area as at night "various kinds of parties" are staged and in the morning it is necessary to clean up "bottles and other unsightly rubbish." He also proposed that a fire hydrant be located near the hangars.

The quarterly financial report showed receipts of $212,899.43 for the period ending December 31. Disbursements were $293,378.20 and the balance is $377,447.37.

Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor reported that at the end of December collections for the fiscal year amounted to $764,463.90 as compared to a total levy of $789,680. Only $18,448.33 in taxes are outstanding. Excess collections over estimate include: General licenses, $1,918.55; fines, $444 and state income tax, $15.03.

The city has expended a total of $619,190.53 and of this amount $441,844.20 has been exclusive of service.

Moscow Man Accused Of Attacking Girl, 19

Charged with criminally assaulting Emma J. Miller, 19, Moscow, as she returned home Saturday night, Ellis Broadwater, 19, also of Moscow, waived a preliminary hearing yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court and was ordered held without bond for action of the grand jury.

Broadwater, who was arrested early Sunday morning, denied that he attacked the girl and told investigators in the office of the State's Attorney that Miss Miller consented to his advances, officials said.

In a signed statement, Broadwater said that he, the Miller girl, and Claudine and Mary Warnick, both of Moscow, returned to Moscow from Barton on a late bus, and all four walked up Laurel Hill toward their homes after getting off the bus.

The Warnick girls left Broadwater and Miss Miller at a point in the road where they turn off, the accused man said, and he and Miss Miller began "hugging and kissing."

Girls Denies Consenting

Both began walking toward her home, officials quoted Broadwater as saying. They added he admitted having carnal knowledge of the girl, but only after she consented.

Miss Miller denied that she consented to any such acts, and said she fought Broadwater and screamed for help. The two Warnick girls told county authorities that they heard Miss Miller scream and hurried to their home where they told their father.

County officers said Warnick went to the Miller home imediately, and both William Miller, the girl's father, and he started down the road to meet the couple.

Miller declared that when he came within sight of his daughter and Broadwater, the accused man ran into a thicket and his daughter, with blood-splattered clothing, came running to him.

State police were notified and Troopers A. M. Spioch and W. E. Wilt, Sgt. W. E. O'Hara, and Deputy Sheriffs William "Scotty" Orr and George M. Harris, apprehended Broadwater at his home.

County investigators declared that Miss Miller had a large bruise on her leg, and declared Broadwater inflicted it.

Returned To Jail

Broadwater was returned to the county jail last night but officials said they did not expect the January term of Grand Jury, which was dismissed last Wednesday, to be recalled for the case.

Broadwater, who was represented at the hearing by Edward J. Ryan, was clothed in an Army uniform. He had nothing to say during the proceeding. Miss Miller was also present during the arraignment.

Court Denies Miners' Appeal For Jobless Pay

Upholds State Board In Stoppage Decision

"Those who enlist under a banner so as to share in the fruits of victory, cannot expect to shirk the hardships and dangers of the campaign," Circuit Court judges declared in their opinion on the appeal of coal miners for unemployment compensation during the work stoppage early last year.

Denying the miners' request for compensation and upholding the verdict of the State Unemployment Board, Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge George Henderson cited, "It is the duty of the Court, under the state compensation law, to decide whether under the law certain classes of mine employes, who stopped work on April 1, 1946, because of the National Bituminous Coal Wage Agreement as of that date, are entitled to compensation."

Miners involved in the case include Arthur Metz, Albert Males, John Crouse, Perry Dudley and James Nelson. Classes of employes listed in the action were (1) Miners who voluntarily stopped April 1, 1946. (2) Miners who, because of the railroad car shortage, had to stop before April 1, and did not return after April 1. (3) Maintenance men.

The state board last year denied the claim, following a hearing at the City Hall, and the appeal was heard December 28 before the two judges in Circuit Court, with argument presented by Clarence Lippel, counsel for the miners; former Judge D. Lindley Sloan, George Cochran Doub, Albert A. Levin and William M. Somerville, attorneys for the Upper Potomac and Georges Creek Coal Operators' Association, the Russell Mining Company and the State Unemployment Compensation Board.

Checkweighmen Paid

The Court pointed out that counsel for the miners had asked the judges to review the decision of the board as to checkweighmen, who were granted compensation, but the Court also cited that counsel for the miners, at the hearing before the board, had withdrawn an appeal in behalf of Albert Shaffer, a checkweighman. As a result, the board did not pass on the question of compensation for checkweighmen.

The judges, commenting on the rights of employes in the three classes, pointed out that the state board rejected their claims by a two-to-one vote. The board adopted the opinion of the special examiner who conducted the hearing here last year, that the work stoppage was due to a "labor dispute" within the terms of the act.

Granted In 1939

Counsel for the miners cited that the board in 1939 granted compensation, but the judges pointed out that this award was based, in part at least, on the proven willingness of the miners to continue under the terms of the previously existing contract and the unwilling-
